Becoming Learning Centers

School Librarians In Transition

By Lisa Deonair
Special Staff Writer

COLUMBUS - The libraries in the Columbus Public Schools are at the start of a transitional period, Hugh Durbin, the school system's director of libraries, told the Board of Education last week at a Committee-of-the-Whole meeting.

The transition is from a library that used to only carry literary material to a learning center that includes a large selection and a wide variety of different materials. A learning center is multimedia facility that will include such things as books, pamphlets, periodicals, filmstrips, slides, tapes, pictures, study prints, etc.

These new learning centers will be able to provide children with plenty of spaces for individual work and instruction, group study and relaxation according to Durbin.

"A modern library-learning center," said Durbin, "is a place where students may learn by reading, listening, viewing and doing."

The eventual goal of the school system, according to Durbin, is to eventually equip every elementary, junior high and senior high with a learning center. However, the current city-wide school system is far from that goal.

"Only two of the schools systems 14 senior high and 40 of the elementaries," said Durbin, "have even partially developed learning centers."

The traditional type of library is found in all of the junior and senior high schools and in 33 elementaries. According to Durbin 51 of the elementaries have been provided with some sort of a library through the efforts of their local PTAs and community groups. 41 other elementary schools have no type of library at all.

Durbin told the Board that even though much has been done to improve the facilities there was still much left to do.

The bond issue approved by the voters last fall contains funds to install and equip library-learning centers in each school, according to Durbin. Efforts have also been made to provide persons who are planning new schools with the information needed to build an adequate learning center.

Durbin noted that even though the bond issue funds will cover most expenses and needs, more personnel to man the centers, and a bigger staff training program will be required to properly train the library personnel in the handling of the new equipment.

Concert Set For Sunday

Another "Music In The Air" concert will be held this Sunday at Westgate Park.

Ted Heaton's Stage Band will be playing from the sunken, grassy area in front of the enclosed shelter house on the Wicklow Rd. side of the park.

Time for the concert is 7-9 p.m. In case of rain the band will perform inside the recreation center.

Persons attending may bring their lawn chairs or may sit on the grass.

"Music In The Air" is sponsored by the Greater Columbus Art Council with funds provided in part by the city of Columbus and in cooperation with the United Community Council, the Music Performers Trust funds, the Columbus Department of Recreation and Parks and the Ohio Arts Council.

Sullivant Avenue Office

New Name And Director At S-W Mental Health

By Kathy Devaney

West Columbus—The name of the Southwest Mental Health Center on Sullivant Avenue is changing its name to Hilltop-Lincoln office "to identify with the community instead of a street," new director Dick Hardy said.

The title and duties of the director are also changing. Hardy's title is Director of the Hilltop-Lincoln area.

"My job will be to know the community and reflect the community to Southwest. Before this 90 percent of the director's time was spent in the office. Now I will be spending 70 percent of my time in the community," he said.

The administrative assistant, Pat Gabriel, will take care of the "nuts and bolts" of keeping the office going, he said.

The staff is also changing. They meet for community conferences instead of for case conferences. This encompasses evaluating the entire community and its needs, Hardy said. "In this way the community helps train us by letting us know that the community needs," he said.

"Mental Health is moving beyond four walls. With traditional style we could help 300, but there are 100,000 people in the Southwest area," he said.

The Center has to look to the community for help.

"We need the help of the community," Executive Director Jim Gibson said. "Without that help we will become overloaded with clients. We will have waiting lists and get bogged down."

The Center is looking for community workers who will come in and help at a level at which they are effective. Some want to type, others can work with clients because they have a natural ability, Hardy said.

"It's a myth that only an expert can help. The expert is the last person a person needing help will go to. They'll talk to a neighbor, a friend or even a stranger on an airplane first," he said.

Gibson said there are a lot of people in the community who have skills the Center can use including cooking, shopping for groceries, musical skills, homekeeping, budgeting, sewing, etc.

"The real focus is health not illness. We want to strengthen the health a person already has so they will be better able to function," Gibson said.

Just as with physical health, no one can say a person is completely healthy. There are degrees of health and illness in everyone, he said.

"Part of mental health services is the knitting of the skills of one person to the needs of another. Many people have problems because they have not learned to be creative. Community workers can help such a person," Hardy said.

Community education is also a major emphasis.

"The only suicide prevention program that has ever worked is one in England where lay people were trained to recognize the symptoms of the suicidal person. Community involvement cut the number of suicides," Gibson said.

The Center works with individuals within the community who can help.

"If we upgrade the skills of one teacher dealing with a particular child in trouble, we are not just helping one child. We are helping every child that will come through that teacher's class," Gibson said.

In the past agencies have been set up to meet a community need, he said.

Then the agency became more concerned with its own needs than those of the community. Then the community still had a need. "We're trying not to let that happen to us."

Hardy is a graduate of Upper Arlington High School. He graduated from Indiana University and Andover Newton Theological Seminary in Massachusetts.

He received his clinical training at Boston City Hospital, Wooster State Hospital and had an intern and residency as a chaplain at Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis.

He served for two and a half years in the juvenile court in Indianapolis. In 1968 he returned to Columbus as minister of youth at First Community Church. In 1972 he joined the staff of the Southwest Mental Health Center.

Since that time he has been coordinator of volunteers, interim director of pastoral services, associate director of pastoral services, director of the Town Street office and now director of the Hilltop-Lincoln office.

"I've learned not to bring my books into the office," Hardy said.

Author Tells Of Past Emotional Illness

By Sanford Meitzlsh
Special Staff Writer

COLUMBUS—As she came to in the hospital the doctor asked, "Where have you gone, Nancy?" "Back to when I was two years old, rocking in my father's lap."

Nancy Covert Smith is currently an achieving author, but at one point, as the above dialog indicates, she was suffering from the serious symptoms of temporary emotional illness. Last week Miss Smith told her story to the Ohio Association for Mental Health, during a board meeting at the Marriott Inn.

Miss Smith explained to the board that people suffering the same illness as hers "return to another time, a time of peace." Thus, they refuse to accept reality and stumble through present day life. Symptoms range from crying a great deal and an up and down mood to no responsibility and uncensored fear.

AUTHOR SMITH outlined her recovery into three categories: journey out of yesterday; accept today; look forward to tomorrow.

OUT OF YESTERDAY

"The beginning of any psychological analysis begins with oneself. If I can't love Nancy Smith then I can't have a need for anybody to help me."

Nancy's psychiatrist got her to love herself by showing her that she wasn't to blame for her problems. He achieved this by taking her step by step through her childhood, touching on every problem she could recall, but he had her reverse her position in those situations. By making Nancy the mother and replacing herself with her own children the doctor was able to illustrate to her that she wasn't to blame for her problems.

Thus, Nancy discovered, slowly but surely, there was no need to return to yesterday for peace.

ACCEPT TODAY

"The doctor wouldn't let me back in the hospital and he took me off all prescriptions. He made me accept today without any crutches." Although Nancy was slowly being brought out of yesterday, accepting today brought a new set of problems and challenges.

Nancy had two children and a husband who had suffered too with her illness.

"I wanted to go from a bad mother and wife to a person that I could respect. I have forgotten much of the past but, I can't forget the irresponsible manner in which I treated my husband and children. I'll never forget seeing my daughter standing in front of the school a half hour after all the other children had been picked up, waiting for me to come. And when she got in the car she'd say, 'I love you Mommy.' No, I'll never forget that!"

THOUGH NANCY may never forget, through the help of her psychiatrist added with her own desire to fight, she has changed all that.

LOOK FORWARD TO TOMORROW

The final step to recovery comes when one looks forward to seeing the sun every morning.

"You have to have a reason to get up tomorrow morning. In spirit, I think the milestone of my recovery came when I wanted to be alone with myself and work on my manuscripts."

Through her writing Nancy has found a reason to see the sun every morning and she continues to tell her story in order to make it possible for others to find a reason.

Foundation Funds Allocated

COLUMBUS -- A net total of $42,538,054.23 was allocated in July to Ohio's 615 city, exempted village and local school districts, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson reported recently.

The gross July State School Foundation subsidy payment amounted to $61,132,699.67. However, the actual amounts the school districts received were reduced by direct state payments to the teachers' and school employees' retirement systems and to the county boards of education.

The State Teachers' Retirement System received $14,126,462.87, and the School Employees' Retirement System received $3,024,474 as the employees' share of the pension programs, Ferguson said. The 88 county boards of education shared in $1,443,686.57 for the month.

State School Foundation subsidy payments are sent to the 88 county auditors, who, in turn, distribute the amounts due the districts within the respective counties.

Amounts allocated in July to the districts in this area were:

Columbus, $1,078,732.97; Scioto Darby, $123,891.34; South-Western, $283,237.88.

Murkey The Monster Presented

WEST COLUMBUS—The J. Ashburn Jr. Youth Center "Players" presented the drama of "Murkey the Monster" to the Oakley Day Care Center and the Life Enrichment Program of the Ashburn Youth Center July 6. This drama depicted the problematic nuisance of pollution in society and how each person may become a party to that problem. The drama was by children and for children with an enriching and sensitizing message. This experience is one of the attempts of the Ashburn Center's Life Enrichment Program to make this Summer of '73 a creative and developing one for children in the Hilltop community. This particular program of center activity has over 150 registrants of children 6-13 years old. Activities include sports, games, art and crafts, films, stories and sing sessions as well as outings to such places as Columbus Fire Academy, Schmidt's Fudge Haus in German Village and Franklin Park. Last week the children 6-9 went on a chartered tour to Sea World. Each week 10-16 year olds attend the Domestic Actions Program at the Defense Construction Supply Co. This program is two and three days a week and includes an active arts and recreational program at the Depot and many outings and picnics from the Depot. The Ashburn Youth Center is sponsored by the Safe Street's Act of the Federal Government. It has a professional staff aided by youth leaders from the community. The Center is attempting to provide a program to promote the growth and development of the youth and children of the community by giving them creative activity off the streets. Volunteers are always welcome and anyone interested should contact the Center office 273-3307, or the social worker, Mrs. Jaymes Saunders at 273-4869.

The Downtown Sertoma Club of Columbus has pledged much of its support over the past several years to the Hearing and Speech Center of Columbus and Central Ohio, Inc., 1515 Indiana Ave.

Pedestrian - Has Right Of Way

The Triple-A reminds motorists that usually the pedestrian has the right of way. Even if he doesn't, allow him to have it. Driving a car requires caution and courtesy. Use them both.

Now when you call the new time-temperature-weather number, 281-8211, you'll get the time, temperature, and weather.

That's right. A new number that gives you the time, temperature, and a brief announcement about weather conditions. Be sure to jot it down: 281-8211. Service starts July 23.

Vision Problem Detection Methods Being Developed

Better methods for early detection of a vision problem that affects thousands of children are being developed at Ohio State University's College of Optometry.

The vision problem, amblyopia or "lazy eye," consists of poor sight in one eye and generally occurs from birth to four years of age. If not corrected, it can result in permanent visual impairment for that eye, says Dr. Glenn A. Fry, Regents Professor of Optometry and a pioneer in amblyopia research for more than 20 years. It can also mean poor depth perception requiring coordination of both eyes.

His objective is to develop tests to measure the ability of a child to see as early as the first week of life.

The method frequently used to test an infant's vision is to place a curved canopy above the baby and watch the movement of his eyes as he follows black and white stripes moving across the canopy. This method is difficult to manipulate and measurements are not always accurate, he said.

He is investigating the use of a television set with a test pattern of vertical lines that move across the screen. Experiments with adults are attempting to determine the size of test pattern necessary to produce accurate measurements, spacing of the lines, and the speed with which the pattern is moved.

As these eyes follow the pattern, elaborate equipment measures eye movement and can alert the optometrist to a vision problem. ANOTHER potential method of diagnosing amblyopia may be to measure the response from the brain which varies with the sharpness of the image on the retina, a technique which would help to determine whether a problem is in the brain or the eye.

It is not known whether the brain actually sees, Dr. Fry said, but it can tell whether a clear image is being received by the brain.

A large share of the support for research in diagnosis and treatment of amblyopia has been provided by the Ohio Lions Eye Research Foundation through gifts to the University Development Fund.

"Help from the Lions has been particularly useful in beginning new projects, which then receive funds from other sources after the research is underway," Dr. Fry said.

One sign of amblyopia in children is squinting, he said. "Some parents believe that a squint can be outgrown, so they may ignore the evidence that a serious condition is developing. Before a child enters school, his parents should have his vision test," he said. "Babies all squint until about six months of age, but new methods will allow testing at a critical state before serious problems can develop."

THE MOST common treatment for amblyopia is to cover the stronger eye to force the weaker eye to strengthen itself. Other methods of correction include surgery, visual training, or the use of glasses, which can prevent the further development of the condition.

Let's Tour Beautiful Ohio

Peninsula Pizzaz Makes Cedar Point A Must Stop

By Jules Sauvageot
IMAGINE the Old West without psychopaths. Vaudeville without pratfalls. America the Beautiful without Kate Smith and Down Home without cows.

Oh, there are cows. But they're on the Petting Farm. And "How Ya Gonna Keep 'em Down on the Farm" is Vaudeville. Which is at the Red Garter Saloon. Which is the Old West.

MEANWHILE, "America Sings" and "Country Sunshine" filters through tall trees in a single beam. But that's nothing—the whole point is to leap the 'sixties in a single bound. Backward!

And the place to do that is the Golden Palace Hotel. There, "It's Broadway Again."

What it really is, is Live Show time at southshore Lake Erie's giant Cedar Point amusement land.

KNOWN throughout the Midwestern states and Canada as "the Point," the sprawling funland covers a 500-acre peninsula off Sandusky, Ohio.

The big thing among Midwestern and Canadian families is to "make the Point" at least once a summer.

And despite the largest ride capacity in the world, and a spectacularly authentic "Frontier Trail," it's clear that a lot of families spend half their day taking in the Live Shows.

WELL, Broadway it ain't. But where on Broadway can you ride the Jumbo Jet of the Blue Streak between shows? Where on Broadway can you take the Frontier Lift over the trees, and end up in a shaded amphitheatre under the trees?

And where on Broadway can you take in six mini-extravaganzas in a single day? Over beer, and over some of the best sandwiches this side of Charlie's New York Delicatessen. Which is in New Orleans.

THERE'S a touch of New Orleans at Cedar Point, too. But the riverboats are for between shows.

Which takes us back to the Live Shows.

The Live Shows program began in 1948, when Dallas, Tex. producer Charles R. Meeker, Jr. was approached by Cedar Point board chairman Emile A. Legros. Already known for extravaganzas ranging from the Miss Teenage America pageant to Broadway productions, Meeker began auditioning talented college students at eight universities in Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Indiana.

THE VETERAN producer took on all who qualified, and his continuing policy of "building the acts around the talent" has resulted in six consecutive summers of top college talent ranging from singers, dancers and pianists to harpists, magicians, and sketchpad artists.

With Meeker producing, today's Cedar Point Live Shows are managed by a young, intense veteran of the entire six-year Cedar Point program. James Gaertner, 23, majored in math at Ohio's Denison University.

But there's nothing unusual about that, since the young manager estimates that "40 to 45 per cent of our performers aren't music or theatre majors. They're just talented kids."

Sometime pianist Gaertner has "no hard and fast preconceptions about the shows—no built-in bias about the acts we'll audition."

"If there's talent, we want it."

THIS YEAR'S Live Show talent is all musical, and it's remarkably professional when one considers that the average preparation time for an act is something under a week.

"Our first performers this season arrived on May 15, got their act together, and gave their first performance on opening day, May 19," explains Gaertner.

And everybody has a foot-stompin' good time."

THE PARKS THIS WEEK

Ralph Ramey, Director of Antioch College's Glen Helen Nature Preserve will present a slide talk on Ohio canoe adventures Wednesday, August 8, in the Sharon Woods Nature Barn at 8 p.m.

Ramey, a skilled canoeist and long-time AYH member, will discuss the better places to canoe in Ohio and will give useful tips for canoeists and kayakers whether they be experts or novices.

Blacklick Woods: The films "Golden Eagle" and "Nature's Birds of Prey" will be shown at 8 p.m. Wednesday, August 8, in Beech-Maple Lodge.

Darby Creek: The films "Pondlife of Ohio" and "Nature's Children" are

"Let's face it—they come straight from final exams to Cedar Point. Some get here after we've opened, depending on where they go to school."

This year's Live Show program employs 65 college students and recent graduates—25 technical and production assistants, and 40 performers.

What do they do? Well, what they don't do is play acid rock—or anything, for that matter, that smacks of the drug scene, or the risqué or current pops.

WHAT THEY do is sing, dance and instrumentalize an animated admixture of straight Vaudeville, Zeigfeld-style choreography, country and Western, and traditional Broadway.

It's hokey, it's schmaltzy—and it's aimed right at the hearts of the middle-American families who flock to Cedar Point by the millions each season.

The whole schtick is plenty of action, and plenty of audience rapport.

The nice thing about the entire Live Shows program, says manager Gaertner, is that "it's all just good, wholesome, family fun." The kids work hard and develop their special talents, and many go on to major successes.

The thousands of families who see the shows each year get something special, at not extra cost, besides the usual amusement park fare.

"And everybody has a foot-stompin' good time."

Let's Hope We Can Learn

Government-sponsored housing subsidy programs have been extremely costly, have not improved deteriorating neighborhoods, and have not even done a very good job of providing homes for people.

Former Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney calls the federal subsidy programs for low and moderate income housing a "$100 billion mistake." They have been beset by mismanagement and scandal.

More than 3,000 housing units were foreclosed and more than 12,000 owners were in default in 1970. In 1971 these figures rose to 9,000 and 27,000 in the first six months of 1972 there were 5,995 foreclosures and 34,972 borrowers in default.

More than one quarter of the subsidized homes built under the newest housing act passed in 1968 have serious structural faults according to a recent study made by the General Accounting Office and 44 per cent of existing buildings bought with federal subsidies had serious structural defects.

Subsidized apartment buildings cost up to 20 per cent more to erect than those financed by private capital.

There is needed a thorough reevaluation and search for alternative housing programs. The federal government has been trying since 1932 to improve housing opportunities for the poor and for those with modest incomes. Many of the programs have been costly failures. It's long past time for Congress to find out what programs will actually provide homes and improve neighborhoods.

Perhaps the best answer will be to rely more heavily on the private housing industry and local government programs.

Golden Age News And Notes

WIEN, AUSTRIA:

"Remaining Young in Vienna" is the title of the book distributed by the Vienna Council on Aging for the guidance of all senior citizens. We too got one when we went to interview Martha Foit, Director of Information for the International Press for Stadt Wien. The book was in German, so there's that senior partner of ours with his dictionary.

Meantime, there are the clever and amusing cartoons in it which seem to say that Senior Citizens in Österreich have the same problems as do those in the United States but the characteristic Viennese humor and lightness is much in evidence.

MADAME Foit speaks excellent English (it's a good thing) and we talked at length on what was being done for us older persons. Many of the activities are the same as in America. Senior Citizens centers are called Warmstuben—literally warming rooms—and were created shortly after the war to provide a place that was warm for a few hours a day and at least a cup of coffee.

Of course they have become clubs filled with the same activities as ours. The State has also made provision for subsidizing carfare, for free tickets on excursions, and for free admission to the State Theatre and the circus.

WHAT Mrs. Foit spoke of at length and of which she is justifiably proud, was of the "Pensioners Homes" (Senior Citizens Housing Projects). There are now eight of these in operation in Vienna and five more are in various stages of planning and building. Already there is a backlog of six thousand applications waiting placement.

Rent, food, heat, light and gas are provided. The cost for a single person is $300 and somewhat less than double for a couple. If the pension received by the occupant is not adequate to meet this charge, the state makes up the difference.

Every Austrian senior citizen can depend on it that his pension will arrive on exactly the same day every month.

It is the law that he be allowed 20 per cent of the total amount for personal expenses no matter how great the deficiency in meeting his "Pensioner Home" obligations.

All residents eat breakfast together. As you go into breakfast, you deposit your apartment key with the staff. If all the keys are not accounted for, the staff checks on the remaining rooms to see if the occupants are in good health.

Lunch and dinner are brought individually to each apartment on heated trays and slid through a slot provided for it in the wall beside each door.

Everyone has also their own kitchenette in their apartment. A safety feature is that the gas on the stove automatically turns itself off every fifty minutes. The cook can, of course, turn it right back on.

APARTMENTS for couples contain a sleeping room, kitchenette, bath, and living room, single apartments are the same except the sleeping room is replaced by a curtained sleeping alcove.

All have the pleasure of their own outdoor "loggias" or balconies as we would call them. There is maid service once a week. "She does the heavy work, no dusting," explained Mrs. Foit. There is a laundromat in the basement for the cost of ten shillings including soap. This figures out to about 80 cents.

Mrs. Foit was very regretful that progress has been so slow in building more of these excellent pension homes. She pointed out that it wasn't so much the labor or material costs that were blocking progress but the scarcity of land to put them on. This is most apparent in the city itself where except for the elaborate and beautiful system of public parks, there is scarcely a blade of grass or spot of vacant ground to be seen.

FRANKLIN County is blessed with housing for the elderly but the Council on Aging knows that much, much more has to be done. At present the Council is seeking local funding so that Mid-Ohio Regional Planning Commission can do a study in housing for Franklin County.

Council on Aging knows that there are no alternatives for the person who finds themselves in the middle income retired group - rentals for decent apartments ranging from $60-$140 per month.

As many say "It is better to be poor or rich" in retirement rather than end up in the middle where there are few alternatives open. For information about existing housing for elderly the Council on Aging may be contacted, by calling 481-5668.

the article was interesting and informative.

Now that you are so familiar with our program perhaps we can involve you in some of our activities.

Too Many Stores Spoil The Business

To the Editor:

The Small Business Administration pours millions of tax dollars into starting some individual in a small business knowing full well that the competition from BIG business will have the small business man out of business within a year.

There used to be a law or city ordinance against a second similar business - for example, a grocery store opening within so many yards of an existing grocery store. If this restriction became "operative" by law or is just ignored is not known but it should be reinstated.

I make reference to a carry out grocery at Algonquin and West Broad, owned and operated by a property owner in the neighborhood. Three years ago, a Cincinnati based grocery chain opened a carry-out grocery a short block west on the opposite side of the street. One could hardly quarrel with this; but a few days ago a third carry-out grocery, this time a Cleveland based chain, opened next door to the original grocery.

The cheaply constructed building was built on land purchased by a native of South Carolina who obviously has no concern for the good of the community - just for the profit he can wring out of cut-throat development of our land. AND there are those in the community who will patronize the outsider and make the survival of the small neighborhood business a joke under "free enterprise."

Sincerely,
F.A. Zetty

Boxing Championship matches scheduled for Thursday, Friday, Saturday, August 23, 24, 25.

Inundated for years by the slogan "Keep America Beautiful," we must think it was coined by (a) a non-profit group of concerned citizens, or, (b) a bureau of our federal government.

TV screens have been plastered with it for years and magazines carry full-page well-designed ads promoting anti-litter campaigns. Isn't that a nice thing? - Not really.

This nationwide campaign has been conceived and financed by brewers, bottlers and can manufacturers to fight legislation to ban non-returnable drink containers. By convincing publishers and station owners they are eligible for free space and time, their campaign has cost very little compared to the people-lobbying they have accomplished.

THE REALITY behind the corporate thinking of the drinkers seems to be that, if they can get citizens to pick up their trash, they can continue to package their product in one-time glass and cans. Swinging in the same hammock with them are the chain store associations and the glass manufacturers.

America is only in the early rounds of a fight to save resources and keep solid waste problems to a minimum. With all-time highs in population being set every day, land-fill space is at a premium. Columbus, Ohio has just contracted to buy 202 acres of empty quarries at $9,000 per acre. One third of that space will be filled with one-time bottles and cans.

LUXURY DRINKS in one-time containers are paid for many times. When you buy a product in a throw away can or bottle, you buy the container also, paying for the materials and labor that made it. When you throw it away, you pay the trash man to pick it up and then your taxes pay for the landfill he takes it to.

This week in my supermarket, one dollar spent on Coke in non-returnable 16 oz. bottles bought 96 ounces of product. One dollar spent on Coke in returnable 16 oz. bottles bought 128 ounces of product. If I could just find a way to save 25 per cent on my most purchases, I'd be quite happy.

AS I HAVE mentioned in this column before, Oregon outlawed the waste of natural resources, natural beauty and energy by banning non-returnable. The fight to pass the law was a real donkeybrook. All the might of the retailers, brewers, most soft drink manufacturers, can makers and the whole glass industry was joined in battle against those who wanted to clean up the state.

Corporate ethics are becoming a bit Watergate-ish in the midst of the early rounds of citizen-vs.-corp.

LIFELINE SUGGESTION: Learn the truth behind corporate thinking. Send $7.95 to Environmental Action Bulletin, Emmaus, Pa. 18049, for a copy of Corporate Country by William H. Rodgers, Jr. It exposes Keep America Beautiful, pesticides, detergents, the aluminum industry and atomic plant safety.

Upon her return from Europe, Taryn plans to become involved with Weatherly Theatre.

Aspiring to become a physician upon graduation, Taryn said from Europe, "Everything is grander to the Europeans, but only satisfactory to us." And "I never want to leave home again." "I met the Cardinal and he hugged me." And, "There might be a language barrier, but it is for sure, the smile is a universal thing."

Mrs. Webster Retires After 41 Years

Columbus—It was announced at the Columbus School Board meeting last night that Mrs. Juanita Webster, the director of the Model Cities Education Development Facility, retired July 31, after 41 years of service with the Columbus school system. Mrs. Webster was appointed the director of the facility in 1970 when the system was first established as a part of the Columbus Model Cities Program.

She received her bachelor's and her master's degrees in education at Ohio State University. She also attended Flak University and the University of Hawaii. Mrs. Webster joined the Columbus school system in 1932, and taught at Garfield Elementary, Pilgrim Elementary and Eleventh Avenue Elementary.

University. Dee Dee Adams finished third in the girls' softball throw Wednesday; J.R. McMillan participated in the track events Thursday.

SUNSHINE

Sunshine intermediate boys' softball team is now three and two after beating Lindbergh 8 to 3 and W. Mound 20-5.

Sunshine Center sponsored a basketball clinic last week with Ed Ratliff, Nick Connor and Dwight Lamar as teachers. Participation was good.

LINDBERGH

Lindbergh activities march on despite much rain. The bicycle rodeo was halted for half an hour because of rain. The star attraction of this year's rodeo was an effort proposed by "Bear" Taylor. He rode his bike while carrying three passengers.

All went quite well until "Bear" tried to "pop a wheelie."

Rain drenched the field adjacent to Lindbergh leaving puddles, pools and mud. Yet many dauntless Lindbergh boys and girls braved such hazards to play hours and hours of soccer which appeared to be the game of the week.

We were grateful that rain did not prove to be a hazard at the track meet at O.S.U. Over half the team were brothers. Five brothers from the Craft family showed up at O.S.U.

Another important family name for the track team was Pachuta. There was only one Pachuta, but Joe had the distinction of earning over half the team's medals by placing third in both the low hurdles and triple jump and placing second in the high jump.

(To Leaders: Whenever you are planning some special activity such as a water battle or a stuffed animal pet show, add the information to the end of your playground notes so the paper has an opportunity to give coverage. A two week notice is needed.)

WEST COLUMBUS-Eddie Ratliff and autograph signer Nick Connor have been making the playground rounds conducting basketball clinics for local youngsters. The two demonstrated the fundamentals of dribbling, passing, defense, offense, ball control and timing on rebounding. Ratliff, former East High School and Long Beach State basketball star, recently signed a $1.5 million contract with the Houston Rockets. Connor, one of Ratliff's teammates at East and a star at the University of Illinois, is considering a contract with one of two pro teams.

The Entertainers
At Ramada North

CURRENTLY at the Ramada Inn-North are The Entertainers. They are just that, entertainers. What an appropriate name. Doubling on just about every instrument in the book, these four fellows sound like a full orchestra. Every member plays trombone, a couple play trumpet, and between the four, you hear organ, piano, keyboard bass, violin, guitar, banjo, saxophone, and flute. There are at least a dozen horns on stage. These are not for decorations either. Every number includes at least two musicians playing at least three instruments each. And, this is the minimum of their arrangements.

John Bringetti does a terrific job with the trumpet, his main instrument. He also handles trombone, organ, piano and bass. Bernie Griffith takes care of violin, banjo, guitar and trombone. Drummer Gil Montalvo is one of the best in the business, very smooth and quite creative with the sticks and brushes. And, just wait until you hear him sing. Wow!

Can this boy sing. His voice is smooth, and velvety, with tremendous tonal quality. Gil knows what to do with his full, rich voice also. Nice stylist on both the ballads and swinging tunes.

Antone Chiechi also plays organ, piano, bass, trombone, trumpet, guitar and drums. He, like Bernie, and all the rest are pure musical experts.

THIS IS the final week for the sexy Jo Kiser at the popular Lincoln Lodge. Jo is as talented as she is beautiful. The crowds love her piano and vocal stylings. Jo is a whole show by herself. You can catch Jo this week from 9 p.m. until 2 a.m.

IN THE VOCAL department, each one is equally as good as in the instrumental area.

They all do fine in the solo field and their two, three and four part harmony is tops. The Entertainers even throw in some mighty pleasant burlesque harmonies.

I told you about Gil, but get a load of Bernie's voice, too. He has a wide range, and can also handle any song that's been written.

AS A GROUP, they are, without a doubt, one of the very best I have seen in a lounge. In fact, they are just about the most enjoyable and entertaining I have seen, period.

The Entertainers have excellent stage presence, first rate choreography and darn solid arrangements provided by John and Antone.

Their show moves fast and is well paced. Every set is a complete show, playing all types of music from bo down to Jo Al Jolson with all stops in between. If you love music, this foursome if for you, no matter what kind you like. They play it.

Their instrumental and vocal sounds will send you right into orbit. Everything they do on stage is professional, all the way.

The Entertainers must be seen to be appreciated. All the words in the world can not tell you just how thrilling is their performance. The Entertainers entertain Tuesday through Sunday at the Ramada Inn-North.

their style of using a heavy melody line with simple rhythms gets everyone tapping their toes, or even their silverware, like me.

A new dance floor has been added, so if you want to do more than just tap your feet, there is plenty of room.

A trip to the Kingswood Inn Motel, is similar to a travel experience. One great big pleasure. Besides the finest food in this area, always enjoyable entertainment, you experience very relaxing atmosphere and efficient, friendly service.

The Kingswood Inn Motel is a place I have to recommend again and again. Take my advice, and visit it soon. One other hint, price wise, they are extremely reasonable for today's prices. I really don't think you can beat them anywhere.

Marty Melman is back at the Factory. Marty sold the place a year or so ago, but has taken it back over with an all new approach. He has remodeled the Boiler Room into an intimate lounge, and is catering to a much older clientele than before.

Currently appearing there is the Dave Scott Duo. This duo appeared at the Sheraton Hotel, downtown. So, kids are gone, adults are back at the Factory. My face is red this week. Last week I told you about the Burma Steak House, and how great their steak were for the price. Example, a ten ounce sirloin for $1.99 with salad, potato and Texas toast. Now, last week I said it was on E. Broad, not true. The Burma Steak House is located on Main street just west of Hamilton. Callopie is knocking them dead at Marco Polo's Lounge. They have a new female singer with them, who I understand is way out. More on her next week.

Kingswood Inn
Has Everything

IN THE PAST several weeks, I have told you about the Kingswood Inn Motel and their literally fantastic food. I dined there the other evening and again experienced a great gourmet meal. However, this time I want to tell you about the entertainment.

To begin with a delicious five course meal with the bucket of salad, French onion soup and my entree of petit filet of bouillabaisse, which by the way was a tasty treat in itself. The Bouillabaisse is chopped tenderloin, in a burgundy sauce containing many ingredients, resulting in a flavor that I can still taste. My dining companion had the Dover Sole Lady Hamilton which contained crab meat, a host of secret ingredients that made it yummy. Flaming Cherries Jubilee was for desert. Simply delicious.

Then came the entertainment. Actually, the trio played all during the dinner. Named, Qui, which is French for, "Yes". And, I'll say, "Yes," to them. Their music is ideal for dining and dancing.

The trio features Roger Hunt on organ, piano and vocals. Roger can play the keyboard like Hank Aaron hits homeruns. Yep, that's how good Roger is on the ole black and whites. Helping Roger to hit musical homeruns are Dave Ellis, at the saxophone and drummer Dennis Mizer. Both turn in a top job.

BY THE WAY, Dave also plays clarinet and flute. The three of them make lots of nice music. It is not loud, and

Mothering Lion Cubs Isn't An Easy Job

MOTHERING a baby that will eventually weigh 300 lbs. isn't the easiest job in the world.

That's what the four girls who operate the new Lion Country Safari Preview Center at Kings Island have found out. It is their job to care for two lion cubs.

"Since the cubs are so cute and cuddly, you have to be extra careful not to spoil them," Karen Gray, 17, manager of the preview center, said. "You have to treat them just like babies, even to the point of discipline at times. A teething lion cub just loves arms and legs." The two cubs, ages four and eight weeks, were both rejected by their mothers at the Lion Country preserve in Florida and moved to the animal nursery.

The nursing and bottle feeding is now done by the girls at Kings Island.

"We have the oldest cub almost weaned," Miss Gray said. "She's graduated to small pieces of raw meat and she's gaining five pounds a day now. Pretty soon we won't be able to lift her."

LIKE BABIES, young lions will talk back when distracted or disgruntled, she said.

"It's funny to hear the cubs 'talk' and practice roaring," Miss Gray commented. "The youngest one seems to be embarrassed when we catch him trying to roar."

Since the cubs sleep about 18 hours a day Miss Gray said she and her staff have to constantly explain to the preview center guests that the cubs are not ill and are behaving perfectly normal.

THE PREVIEW center, which opened several weeks ago, is designed to give park patrons a glimpse of some of the things to be seen when Lion Country Safari opens at Kings Island next spring. Besides the two cubs, the center displays photographs of the African wildlife that will be at the park and Miss Gray and her staff give a continuous description of the new preserve.

General Manager Edward J. McHale said the wildlife preserve will be located on 100 acres just north of the park and patrons will be able to visit the attraction via a monorail. Lion Country will be operated as another attraction during the park's season, but will become a separate attraction in the winter months, he said.

"This will be the most unique wildlife preserve in the country," McHale said. "Part guests will board an on-the-ground monorail and ride right at eye level with some 400 to 500 wild African animals in a natural woodland setting."

McHale said the monorail ride will take about 30 minutes over two miles of track. The track, about 15 inches wide and 10 inches high, will "jump" the fences within the preserve to eliminate the need to open and close gates each time a train passes.

At several points along the ride, the train will pass over natural ravines.

About 100 species of African wildlife, some on the "rare and endangered" list, will be roaming freely within the preserve. Concealed fences and natural barriers will separate the killer animals, like the 75 lions, from their prey. Specially trained wildlife wardens will be working with the animals in the field as well as in a special nursery, McHale said.

KINGS ISLAND, now in its second season of operation, consists of a theme park, motor inn, campground and two 18-hole golf courses. The complex is located along Interstate 71 north of Cincinnati.

They Light Up The Sky

Heymakers Don't Need Sunshine

By Ray Adams

ONE OF THE swiftest groups to come down the musical pike in a long time in the Columbus area are now appearing at the Country Dinner Playhouse.

They call themselves "The Heymakers" and appear every evening in a great musical interlude that precedes the theatre performances.

ALL ARE headed toward musical careers and there's not a sour note in the group, meaning disposition, energy, dedication and talent.

Dorris Cass, the do-everything-gal at the Playhouse, personally auditioned the individual singers who make up the group. The group originated here and so far have managed fairly well to stay intact, losing only two members the past seven weeks.

They all double as the waitresses and waiters who play host to the customers and have been known to whistle many a happy tune as they wind their merry way between the tables.

ALL HAVE individual talent but also blend well as a unit, which is gratifying to the ear as they harmonize between the many solo efforts.

Not necessarily in the order of their ability here are some background notes of the group.

Rick Geyer, Capital University graduate from Galloway, Ohio.

Robert (Bob) Parks,

Columbus. Robert (Bob) Gemienhardt, Lancaster.

Nicki Endicott, Capital University student from Nashville, Tennessee.

Al Simonds, Ohio State student from Granville.

Toni Ryan, senior at Capital, an Eastmoor graduate.

Susan Hawk, graduate of Capital, from Newcomerstown, Ohio.

Nancy Jeffers, graduate of Depauw University, (Greencastle, Ind.) from Canton.

THEIR CURRENT

broadway tunes is spectacular. The solos and duets and group work have tremendous and feeling and they also bring alot of life to the bouncy bits of the score.

Rick Geyer summed it up this week when he noted, "We each know the direction in which we plan to travel along the road to our musical careers. I like to think that I have learned a lot each night we perform by sensing the enjoyment that the group is performing. There's a certain magic in knowing that everyone around you is eager to help each other's career by giving one hundred percent each time."

Many extra pluses make this act a little more than the ordinary.

WHATEVER directions their paths travel in the future it's certain that what they have accomplished here in such a short time will have an impact somewhere along the way.

For something different, it's the Taj Mahal on West Broad St. Their food is beautiful. Cuisine from India is featured, along with middle eastern music and the belly away in the Maren Lounge. This is a must on your entertainment menu. A place to eat, that's hard to beat is the Dobbs House at the Airport. Their food is delicious. Menu for the kiddies, too. Also, their menu contains everything from a simple sandwich to a feast. Kids of all ages love to dine there and watch the planes land and take off.

Mom and Dad can have their choice of all legal beverages, also. The Dobbs House is so relaxing. Try it, you'll like it, be it for a snack or a big porterhouse steak. See you Around Town this week. I'll be at the Factory, Marco Polo's, Holiday Inn Reynoldsburg and to Kings Island. Watch next week's column for the latest at the places.

fun...in the SUN!

HOT SPOTS

Have you ever been to a lake for the first time and as you walked up to the dock you saw fishermen getting out of their boat with two or three nice bass or some guys in another boat with a stringer full of walleyes.

Chances are it wasn't their first time at the lake and they know where the hot spots are and once they find them they concentrate on those areas. I fished Hargus Lake near Circleville one morning and caught only one bass.

The following week when I returned, I love the challenge, I said to myself why start fishing where I began last week, why not head out to the spot where I caught the bass. I did and after about five minutes of casting artificials I landed another bass equal in size to the one caught the week before.

Did you know when a bass finds a good place to feed he will take it his home and stay there until he's taken out.

When he's gone another bass will move in about the same size. In my case the bass was laying near an undercut bank at the mouth of a cove. Next time out try fishing the same spot you had luck first time there and you'll have fishermen watch you come in the dock one day and say, "That guy must have a hot spot."

YOU CAN become a better fisherman if you mark the spot, that's right, when you catch a nice fish, remember and mark the spot, it will be a lot easier to find the next time you come back.

You know once you find where the good spots are, you've got it made if you concentrate your fishing efforts on the most productive places.

Sometimes it's not as easy as it sounds when your fishing from a boat.

You've got to take time out and mark the position in your mind each time you catch a fish. Mark with a cabin, the tallest tree, or just about anything you can remember on shore. If you're on a big lake in open water and can't see a landmark, use your anchor to feel bottom of the lake. It's a lot cheaper than an electronic depth finder. More work but it gets the job done. Bottom sounding for those hidden drop offs will help to locate your position next time back.

I WAS fishing Hoover Reservoir one day and wanted to find the old stream bed, so I used my ten pound anchor that has a fifty foot rope attached. The stream bed was hard and I could feel the gravel and rocks. When I moved off the stream bed I could feel only the soft mud bottom. Just remember when you do find a hot spot, take the extra time to fix your position.

EAST HARBOR CAMPGROUND

If you want to cash in on some great walleye fishing and enjoy camping at the same time, you might try East Harbor campground located on Marblehead Peninsula, 7 miles east of Port Clinton, this park is in the center of the famous Lake Erie vacationland area.

Central feature of the park is the two-mile, white sandy beach with its modern bathhouse and concessions. The class "A" facility includes 570 family campsites and 30 group campsites. Restrooms have flush toilets and showers and coin operated laundry facilities in the wash house. The lake offers unlimited boating opportunities and there are many boats and fishing guides for hire. There is a complete commissary on the area and a nature program during the summer season.

SNAKES IN OHIO

Don't "persecute" the misunderstood cold blooded snake. You should learn to recognize snakes as you do other kinds of wildlife. Practically all Ohio snakes are useful and beneficial.

Snakes are secretive and they prefer to move away when disturbed or molested. Like other groups of animals, snakes have some special characteristics. They hibernate in the winter and during their active period, they feed on live animal life such as small rodents, birds, frogs, toads, salamanders, insects and worms.

The lower jaws are hinged to permit swallowing large prey. Their teeth are tiny and hooked back in the mouth to hold food items. The forked tongue is not a stinger but is used as a feeler.

Some Ohio snakes lay eggs, while others give birth to living young which hatch from eggs retained within the females body. Most Ohio snakes are born in late summer or early fall. The young snake develop rapidly and must shed their skin to take care of this growth. Most snakes shed several times a year.

SQUIRREL HUNTING

With the approach of the squirrel season on September 7, over anxious hunters are reminded that hunting during the closed season can be costly. Complaints so far have been few, according to Fred A. Schob, Law Enforcement Supervisor for the Division of Wildlife, District One in central Ohio. "But if the trend continues as it has in past years, there will be a marked increase during August and the first week of September in the number of complaints turned in by law-abiding sportsmen and landowners."

"Every complaint is checked out thoroughly," said Schob, "and with a full complement of officers in the District we expect to have a high ratio of arrests for the complaint's received. Four arrests have already been made and more are expected as officers complete their investigations."

The squirrel season extends from September 7 through November 10, 1973 on private lands and September 7 through December 22 on State public hunting areas. Hunting is permitted from daylight to dark with a daily bag limit of four and a total possession limit, after the first day, of eight.

Get the crab out of your grass

CLOUT knocks out crabgrass fast. Foxtail, banyardgrass and several others too. Yet clout is kind to good grass. Lets it grow unharmed, so it can fill in where the crabgrass was. Now is the perfect time to spread CLOUT — to blast crabgrass before it casts its seeds for an even bigger crop next year. Two applications a week or so apart is all it takes.

ONE FOR THE TRAIL - Horseback riding is a popular activity at Tar Hollow State Park and Forest, which has 19 miles of bridle trails. Here, riders and mounts pause for a break near the entrance to one of the trails. Tar Hollow, located east of Chillicothe on State Route 327, has a 29-site horseman's camping area with ample space for cars or pickup trucks, horse trailers and livestock. Tar Hollow State Park Once Considered Badland

Rugged Hills, Ravines

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ohio has 62 state parks, but most Ohioans are familiar with only a few of the parks and the opportunities for outdoor recreation that they offer. This is one of a series of stories designed to make Ohioans more aware of what their state parks have to offer.

Tar Hollow State Park and Forest, located in a region once considered "badlands" by some Indian tribes because of the deep ravines and rugged hills of the area, remain in a nearly primitive state, unpolluted by development.

REMOVEDLY situated 25 miles southeast of Circleville on the Ross-Hocking-Vinton County line, Tar Hollow is an ideal location for those seeking the wilderness.

"A beautiful place," "Perfect for primitive camping," "great for horseback riding."

Those are some of the comments made by Ohioans vacationing at the 540-acre park located in the 18,126-acre Tar Hollow State Forest.

Tar Hollow also is "a hiker's delight," says Frank Lomax, deputy director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources' office of recreation and resource management.

"HIKING expeditions by Boy Scout troops and organizations such as the American Youth Hostel are very popular at Tar Hollow," Lomax says.

The park and forest area is interlaced with 21.9 miles of trails, including the 18-mile Logan Trail and a portion of the Buckeye Trail.

The trails traverse scenic routes along valley streams, at places ascending some 200 feet to easy-to-walk ridges.

"THE ABUNDANCE of vegetation and wildlife along the trails provide an excellent setting for learning about nature," says park manager Marvin Mince.

Preservation of the area was initiated in the early 1930s under the Resettlement Act. In 1939 a dam was constructed to impound 15-

acre Pine Lake, and a group camping area was built.

THE AREA was administered by the Division of Forestry of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station until 1941 when the Ohio Department of Natural Resources was formed. At that time, the department's division of parks and recreation began operating the park. The division of forests and preserves maintains and controls the forest.

The Four Hills Group Camping area, located in the center of the park, has a large meeting hall with a kitchen and four groups of cabins. There are seven cabins, each sleeping eight people, and one washhouse in each group. There also is a beach in the area.

THE GROUP camping area is available by reservation only from May 1 to November 1. Preference is given to groups of 175 or more from Memorial Day to Labor Day. Groups of 60 or more may reserve the area when it is available.

In addition to the group camping area, Tar Hollow has 90 Class B family campsites, a popular 30-site primitive camping area and a 20-site horseman's camping area. The horseman's camping area is located near the beginning of the forest's 10 miles of bridle trails.

NUMEROUS picnic areas with shelter houses, tables and grills are located throughout the park, including one near the public beach at the north end of Pine Lake.

Lifeguards are on duty at the beach from Memorial Day to Labor Day. Bluegill and other panfish provide good sport fishing at Pine Lake. Boats with electric motors are permitted on the lake.

The park has a naturalist program which provides an outdoor education opportunity for the entire family.

NATURALIST Elaine Neufarth is on duty six days a week, offering a junior naturalist program (ages 7-10), a naturalist side program (ages 11-15), organizing day and night hikes for adults and children and guiding automobile tours through scenic areas of the park-forest complex.

A number of park lookout spots offer scenic views of the rugged, backwoods timber country. Mount Logan, which is depicted on the Great Seal of Ohio, is easily visible from Brush Bridge Fire Tower.

THE PARK amphitheater provides a setting for campfire programs and family movies at night.

Near the amphitheater is a nature center housing a display of small animals, including a red-tailed hawk rescued after being crippled by a gunshot wound.

The interesting name Tar Hollow originated from the area's native pitch pine trees. Pine tar, extracted from the knots of heartwood of the pitch pine, was an essential commodity in early Ohio households. The pine tar was used for medical purposes and was mixed with such substances as lye soap for use as a disinfectant.

Tar Hollow is 60 miles south of Columbus and east of Chillicothe on State Route 327. It is a worthwhile place to visit, whether for a nature study trip, an all-day picnic, a weekend campout or an afternoon drive.

MCL Cafeterias Make Promotions

FRANKLIN County Prosecuting Attorney George Smith is one of 19 District Attorneys participating in a national program to expand the investigation and prosecution of economic crimes-including consumer fraud, embezzlement, organized crime, political crimes and crimes involving computers.

The Committee on Economic Crime, formed last May by the National District Attorneys Association, has received a one-year grant of $52,175 from the U.S. Law Enforcement Assistance Agency (L.E.A.A.).

In nine of the participating cities-including Columbus-the grant will permit prosecutors to add a full-time special assistant for economic crimes to their staffs. The other six cities will receive substantial increases in support for their already operating economic crime prosecution programs.

THE ACADEMY for Contemporary Problems and Battelle Memorial Institute, which supported the Committee through the organizational stage, will continue to provide research support and information services.

John Conrad, the Academy's Senior Fellow in Crime and Justice, and Herbert Eledert, a research scientist at Battelle's Law and Justice Study Center in Seattle, will coordinate these support services.

The Committee's Director is Nathaniel E. Komack, formerly Inspector General of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Deputy Assistant Attorney General in the Criminal Division, U.S. Department of Justice.

IN ADDITION to Columbus, participating cities are Los Angeles, Sacramento and San Diego, California; Miami, Florida; Wichita, Kansas; Baltimore, Maryland; Flint, Michigan; Omaha, Nebraska; Brooklyn, Buffalo and Nassau County, New York; Houston, Texas; Burlington, Vermont; and Seattle, Washington.

Besides supporting special prosecution programs in these cities, the Committee on Economic Crime will establish a national information network to alert District Attorneys and the public in other cities to emerging types of economic crimes and to the results of the Committee's work.

Patrick Healy, Executive Director of the N.D.A.A., said the Committee's success will be measured by the degree to which participating cities increase their identification, investigation and prosecution of economic crime.

SMITH and the other Committee members will hold two working sessions during the annual N.D.A.A. summer conference in Snowmass, Colorado, on August 8 and 9.

Safe Travel Tips Should Be Heeded

The passengers in a car can affect the chances for completing a trip safely. Here are some tips on how to be an asset to the driver from J. David Ryan, general manager of Columbus Automobile Club.

1. Don't distract the driver with sudden outbursts about what's going on around him unless an emergency arises you think he hasn't seen.
2. Don't be a sleepy companion, unless you're the "relief" driver and resting up for your turn at the wheel. Sleepiness is contagious; conversation helps keep the driver alert.
3. Know where you're going and how to get there. Learn to read a map. Guiding the driver relieves him of a major problem, especially if the trip is into an area new to him.

4. Be ready to help the driver with "little things," like finding a cigarette, which might distract him.

5. Keep an eye on the driver. If he appears to be tiring, offer to take the wheel, or at least suggest a rest stop. A rest every two to three hours always is a good idea.

6. Keep children and pets under control. They can be a major source of driver distraction, especially on long trips.

7. Don't do anything you wouldn't want done if you were the driver.

Firemen Planning Fish Fry Aug. 11

The Jefferson Township Firefighters' Association is having a fish fry on Saturday, August 11, from 5:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Firehouse, 6620 Havens Corner Rd., Lakeland.

The price is $1.75 for adults and $1.25 for children. The menu includes ocean perch, deep-fried in a special, exclusive, light batter, baked beans, cole slaw, rolls, pie, coffee, milk and soft drinks.

Proceeds from the fish fry will be used to purchase equipment to be used in fire service and emergency victim care.

The new All-Terrain Vehicle recently purchased by the Firefighters' Association with similar funds will be on display.

This tracked vehicle will be invaluable in fighting grass fires and in rescue operations on muddy and rough terrain impassable to trucks.

The Jefferson Township Firehouse is located at 6670 Havens Corner Road, just west of Reynoldsburg-New Albany Road. All fish-loving citizens are invited to bring their families to enjoy this special occasion.

SPECTATOR NEWSPAPERS

Ohio State Prepares For New Students

Ohio State University has begun a 7-week program of preparing new students for the start of their university work next fall.

OFFICIALS of University College, the entry point for new enrollees, are laying plans to provide summer orientation, testing and class scheduling programs for some 7,000 freshmen and transfer students.

In addition, the campus has scheduled orientation programs for parents during the same period, and 2,000 are expected to take part.

Twenty-six separate programs are scheduled through Aug. 10.

Some 250 new students will come to the campus daily for their 3-day sessions. Initial event for most and parents will be a post-luncheon meeting at Room 144, Bevis Hall, on the west campus. Vice President John T. Mount, dean of University College, will discuss the role of the college in introducing the students to the Columbus campus.

SIMILAR programs are planned also at the university's regional campuses, starting June 29 at Lima and Mansfield, and July 6 at Marion and Newark. At the university's Agricultural Technical Institute, Wooster, programs are set for Aug. 18 and Sept. 12.

Other campus events for the new students will include mathematics and English placement tests, proficiency examinations, planning of class schedules, student life programs and various recreational activities.

"The credit by examination program, through which students can earn credit toward graduation, is getting particular emphasis in the testing program this year," Mr. Mount said. "An increasing number of students each year use this means to obtain university credit."

THE OFFICE of Student Affairs will provide programs on student life, including session on housing, the University Health Service, counseling and consultation services, veterans information, student rights and responsibilities, the Campus Ministry

Association, plus tours.

Faculty members and their wives or husbands will be on hand to talk informally with each parents' group at a social hour and dinner. University Women's Club members and husbands will be hosts at the social hour.

"We have extended a special invitation to parents in the Columbus area to attend these events," Mr. Mount said, "even if they are unable to take part in the full parents' orientation program. The social hour will start at 5:30 p.m. and the dinner at 6:15, both in the west cafeteria of Morrill Tower, 1900 Cannon Dr."

STUDENTS and parents who attend the program will have overnight accommodations in Morrill Tower.

On hand to help both students and parents and to serve as guides will be 15 student assistants selected from among 125 applicants for the orientation assistants' positions.

Autumn quarter classes start Sept. 20 at Ohio State.

ONE FOR THE TRAIL - Horseback riding is a popular activity at Tar Hollow State Park and Forest, which has 30 miles of bridle trails. Here, riders and mounts pause for a break near the entrance to one of the trails. Tar Hollow, located east of Chillicothe on State Route 337, has a 30-acre horseman's camping area with ample space for cars or pickup trucks, horse trailers and livestock. Tar Hollow State Park Once Considered Badland

Rugged Hills, Ravines

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ohio has 62 state parks, but most Ohioans are familiar with only a few of the parks and the opportunities for outdoor recreation that they offer. This is one of a series of stories designed to make Ohioans more aware of what their state parks have to offer.

Tar Hollow State Park and Forest, located in a region once considered "badlands" by some Indian tribes because of the deep ravines and rugged hills of the area, remain in a nearly primitive state, unspoiled by development.

RECENTLY situated 25 miles southeast of Circleville on the Ross-Hocking-Vinton County line, Tar Hollow is an ideal location for those seeking the wilderness.

"A beautiful place," "Perfect for primitive camping," "great for horseback riding" — these are some of the comments made by Ohioans vacationing at the 540-acre park located in the 16,136-acre Tar Hollow State Forest.

Tar Hollow also is "a hiker's delight," says Frank Lomax, deputy director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources' office of recreation and resource management.

"HIKING expeditions by Boy Scout troops and organizations such as the American Youth Hostel are very popular at Tar Hollow," Lomax says.

The park and forest area is interlaced with 21.9 miles of trails, including the 16-mile Logan Trail and a portion of the Buckeye Trail.

The trails traverse scenic routes along valley streams, at places ascending some 200 feet to easy-to-walk ridges.

"THE ABUNDANCE of vegetation and wildlife along the trails provide an excellent setting for learning about nature," says park manager Marvin Mace.

Preservation of the area was initiated in the early 1930s under the Resettlement Act. In 1930 a dam was constructed to impound 15-

acre Pine Lake, and a group camping area was built.

THE AREA was administered by the Division of Forestry of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station until 1949 when the Ohio Department of Natural Resources was formed. At that time, the department's division of parks and recreation began operating the park. The division of forests and preserves maintains and controls the forest.

The Four Hills Group Camping area, located in the center of the park, has a large meeting hall with a kitchen and four groups of cabins. There are seven cabins, each sleeping eight people, and one washhouse in each group. There also is a beach in the area.

THE GROUP camping area is available by reservation only from May 1 to November 1. Preference is given to groups of 175 or more from Memorial Day to Labor Day. Groups of 50 or more may reserve the area when it is available.

In addition to the group camping area, Tar Hollow has 90 Class B family campsites, a popular 30-site primitive camping area and a 30-site horseman's camping area. The horseman's camping area is located near the beginning of the forest's 10 miles of bridle trails.

NUMEROUS picnic areas with shelter houses, tables and grills are located throughout the park, including one near the public beach at the north end of Pine Lake.

Lifeguards are on duty at the beach from Memorial Day to Labor Day. Bluegill and other panfish provide good sport fishing at Pine Lake. Boats with electric motors are permitted in the lake.

The park has a naturalist program which provides an outdoor education opportunity for the entire family.

NATURALIST Elaine Neufarth is on duty six days a week, offering a junior naturalist program (ages 7-10), a naturalist side program (ages 11-15), organizing day and night hikes for adults and children and guiding automobile tours through scenic areas of the park-forest complex.

A number of park lookout spots offer scenic views of the rugged, backwoods timber country. Mount Logan, which is depicted on the Great Seal of Ohio, is easily visible from Brush Bridge Fire Tower.

THE PARK amphitheater provides a setting for campfire programs and family movies at night.

Near the amphitheater is a nature center housing a display of small animals, including a red-tailed hawk rescued after being crippled by a gunshot wound.

The interesting name Tar Hollow originated from the area's native pitch pine trees. Pine tar, extracted from the knots of heartwood of the pitch pine, was an essential commodity in early Ohio households. The pine tar was used for medical purposes and was mixed with such substances as lye soap for use as a disinfectant.

Tar Hollow is 60 miles south of Columbus and east of Chillicothe on State Route 337. It is a worthwhile place to visit, whether for a nature study trip, an all-day picnic, a weekend campout or an afternoon drive.

District Attorneys Participate In Economic Crime Control

FRANKLIN County Prosecuting Attorney George Smith is one of 15 District Attorneys participating in a national program to expand the investigation and prosecution of economic crimes—including consumer fraud, embezzlement, organized crime, political crimes and crimes involving computers.

The Committee on Economic Crime, formed last May by the National District Attorneys Association, has received a one-year grant of $53,175 from the U.S. Law Enforcement Assistance Agency (L.E.A.A.).

In nine of the participating cities—including Columbus—the grant will permit prosecutors to add a full-time special assistant for economic crimes to their staffs. The other six cities will receive substantial increases in support for their already operating economic crime prosecution programs.

THE ACADEMY for Contemporary Problems and Battelle Memorial Institute, which supported the Committee through the organizational stage, will continue to provide research support and technical and information services. John Conrad, the Academy's Senior Fellow in Crime and Justice, and Herbert Eledheris, a research scientist at Battelle's Law and Justice Study Center in Seattle, will coordinate these support services.

The Committee's Director is Nathaniel E. Kossack, formerly Inspector General of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Deputy Assistant Attorney General in the Criminal Division, U.S. Department of Justice.

IN ADDITION to Columbus, participating cities are Los Angeles, Sacramento and San Diego, California; Miami, Florida; Wichita, Kansas; Baltimore, Maryland; Flint, Michigan; Omaha, Nebraska; Brooklyn, Buffalo and Nassau County, New York; Houston, Texas; Burlington, Vermont; and Seattle, Washington.

Besides supporting special prosecution programs in these cities, the Committee on Economic Crime will establish a national information network to alert District Attorneys and the public in other cities to emerging types of economic crime and to the results of the Committee's work.

Patrick Healy, Executive Director of the N.D.A.A., said the Committee's success will be measured by the degree to which participating cities increase their identification, investigation and prosecution of economic crime.

SMITH and the other Committee members will hold two working sessions during the annual N.D.A.A. summer conference in Snowmass, Colorado, on August 8 and 9.

Vibe Man Swings At Music In Air

Lionel Hampton and his Orchestra will fill the air with music at Franklin Park Sunday, August 5. The free concert will be held in East High School if it rains.

At 7 p.m., Tom Battenberg's Big Band Sound will fill the air at Schiller Park and Ted Heaton's Stage Band will entertain at Westgate Park. These free concerts will be held in the park recreation centers in case of rain.

Wednesday, August 8 on the State House lawn you can hear Tex Wheeler's Country and Western Group from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

These free music in the air concerts are sponsored by the Greater Columbus Arts Council with funds provided by the City of Columbus and the Music Performance Trust Funds, and in cooperation with the United Community Council, the Columbus Department of Recreation and Parks, and the Ohio Arts Council.

Republican Club To Help Retarded

The Capital City Young Republicans Club is sponsoring a picnic Sunday, August 5, for mentally retarded young people.

The picnic will take place at Broomwood Acres, a 115-acre retreat operated by the Franklin County Council for Retarded Children, Inc., near Sunbury, Ohio.

Attending the picnic will be the young retarded persons who are enrolled in the Council's Citizens Advocacy program and the volunteers who work with them on a one-to-one basis to help them develop to their fullest capacities and live as "normally" as possible.

Volunteer advocates are trained to understand the problems of mental retardation and to use that knowledge in a close friendship with one mentally retarded young person.

The advocate's job is to serve as a guide, counselor, and special friend in his mentally disabled protégé.

Members of the Young Republican public service committee arranged for food, entertainment, and prizes for the picnic. Area residents serving on the committee include: Linda Litteral, 430 S. Waverly; Patricia Umbleby, 744 Sheridan Avenue; and Richard and Bonnie Brown, 1006 Fountain Lane and Carol Porter, 2008 Commons Rd., No., Reynoldsburg.

Sgt. Parker In TAC Show

U.S. Air Force Sergeant Roger A. Parker of 1823 Penfield Road, represented the Tactical Air Command (TAC) in the vocal group category at the world-wide Air Force Talent Contest at Lackland AFB, Tex., recently.

Sergeant Parker, a liquid oxygen specialist with the 4th Supply Squadron at Seymour Johnson AFB, N.C., was a featured performer in the TAC show presented during the week-long competition at Lackland.

He earned a spot in the Air Force contest by winning a previous competition at his base and the TAC finals.

Sergeant Parker is a 1970 graduate of East High School.

Safe Travel Tips Should Be Heeded

The passengers in a car can affect the chances for completing a trip safely. Here are some tips on how to be an asset to the driver from J. David Ryan, general manager of Columbus Automobile Club.

1. Don't distract the driver with sudden outbursts about what's going on around him unless an emergency arises you think he hasn't seen.

2. Don't be a sleepy companion, unless you're the "relief" driver and resting up for your turn at the wheel. Sleepiness is contagious; conversation helps keep the driver alert.

3. Know where you're going and how to get there. Learn to read a map. Guiding the driver relieves him of a major problem, especially if the trip is into an area new to him.

4. Be ready to help the driver with "little things," like finding a cigarette, which might distract him.

5. Keep an eye on the driver. If he appears to be tiring, offer to take the wheel, or at least suggest a rest stop. A rest every two to three hours always is a good idea.

6. Keep children and pets under control. They can be a major source of driver distraction, especially on long trips.

7. Don't do anything you wouldn't want done if you were the driver.

Firemen Planning Fish Fry Aug. 11

The Jefferson Township Firefighters' Association is having a fish fry on Saturday, August 11, from 5:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Firehouse, 6620 Havens Corner Rd., Blacklick.

The price is $1.75 for adults and $1.25 for children. The menu includes ocean perch, deep-fried in a special, exclusive, light batter, baked beans, cole slaw, rolls, pie, coffee, milk and soft drinks.

Proceeds from the fish fry will be used to purchase equipment to be used in fire service and emergency victim care.

The new All-Terrain Vehicle recently purchased by the Firefighters' Association with similar funds will be on display.

This tracked vehicle will be invaluable in fighting grass fires and in rescue operations on muddy and rough terrain impassable to trucks.

The Jefferson Township Firehouse is located at 6670 Havens Corners Road, just west of Reynoldsburg-New Albany Road. All fish-loving citizens are invited to bring their families to enjoy this special occasion.

Ohio State Prepares For New Students

Ohio State University has begun a 7-week program of preparing new students for the start of their university work next fall.

OFFICIALS of University College, the entry point for new enrollees, are laying plans to provide summer orientation, testing and class scheduling programs for some 7,000 freshmen and transfer students.

In addition, the campus has scheduled orientation programs for parents during the same period, and 2,000 are expected to take part.

Twenty-six separate programs are scheduled through Aug. 19.

Some 250 new students will come to the campus daily for their 2-day sessions. Initial event for most and parents will be a post-luncheon meeting at Room 144, Bevis Hall, on the west campus. Vice President John T. Mount, dean of University College, will discuss the role of the college in introducing the students to the Columbus campus.

SIMILAR programs are planned also at the university's regional campuses, starting June 29 at Lima and Mansfield, and July 6 at Marion and Newark. At the university's Agricultural Technical Institute, Wooster, programs are set for Aug. 16 and Sept. 12.

Other campus events for the new students will include mathematics and English placement tests, proficiency examinations, planning of class schedules, student life programs and various recreational activities.

"The credit by examination program, through which students can earn credit toward graduation, is getting particular emphasis in the testing program this year," Mr. Mount said. "An increasing number of students each year use this means to obtain university credit."

THE OFFICE of Student Affairs will provide programs on student life, including session on housing, the University Health Service, counseling and consultation services, veterans information, student rights and responsibilities, the Campus Ministry

Association, plus tours.

Faculty members and their wives or husbands will be on hand to talk informally with each parents' group at a social hour and dinner. University Women's Club members and husbands will be hosts at the social hour.

"We have extended a special invitation to parents in the Columbus area to attend these events," Mr. Mount said, "even if they are unable to take part in the full parents' orientation program. The social hour will start at 5:30 p.m. and the dinner at 6:15, both in the west cafeteria of Morrill Tower, 1900 Cannon Dr."

STUDENTS and parents who attend the program will have overnight accommodations at Morrill Tower.

On hand to help both students and parents and to serve as guides will be 15 student assistants selected from among 125 applicants for the orientation assistants' positions.

Autumn quarter classes start Sept. 30 at Ohio State.

Cutting Noise

West Columbus-The tree being planted here by Army Sergeant James E. Swindler is to be seen and not heard. The setting of 370 small shrubs and trees is part of a noise reduction and beautification program at Camp Zama, Japan, where the sergeant is an inspector with the U.S. Army Supply and Maintenance Activity (USASMA). Noise from the activity's vehicle testing track at Sagami, where rebuilt combat vehicles are inspected before being shipped, was annoying to Japanese residents nearby. USASMA soldiers built a 12-foot-high, 2,125-foot-long wall from shipping containers. Then to further buffer the sound and to make the area more pleasing to the eye, they began the tree-planting project. Helping the 34-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Swindler, 222 Powell Ave., are Teresa Wilson and Stephanie Craft of the USASMA housing area. (U.S. Army Photo)

ROTC Unit Visits Armstrong Museum

GALLOWAY-RANDY Carter and Carlos Sagraves, members of Westland's Junior Air Force ROTC program, inspect a jet in front of the Neil Armstrong Museum near Wakarusa. Eleven boys toured the museum which contains items from Armstrong's school days; the space capsule and suit he took to the moon; a piece of moon rock; paintings and other art work given to him from admirers from around the world, as well as the story in pictures of man's early attempts at flight. The unusual structure of the building makes it look like a scene from the moon. Shown inside the

Rolling Crime Unit Brings Experts To Scene

By Kathy Downey

Columbus-The average length of time to gather evidence at the scene of a crime is 9 to 12 hours.

The mobile crime laboratory of the Columbus Police Department is involved in gathering evidence at all major crimes; homicides have the number one priority. It is attached to the technical evidence section of the detective bureau.

At the scene of a homicide the two-man team visually inspects the scene, photographs everything pertaining to the crime, measures and draws a sketch of the scene pinpointing where items are.

Then the men collect evidence which may include vacuuming for microscopic particles, taking blood samples and dusting or photographing fingerprints, according to Sgt. James Cottrill, who heads up the unit.

The men are responsible for processing the victim-removing clothing, fingerprinting for identification and photographing wounds.

After returning to headquarters they refine the drawing and make a progress report to the investigating detectives and to Cottrill.

"Before this unit was established two and half years ago, the identification bureau would be called to take fingerprints, the photography department would send someone to take pictures and the detectives would gather their own evidence. Now one man does all this. This gives the detective more time to interview witnesses and suspects and also makes for a better presentation in court," Cottrill said.

Two vans are required to carry all the equipment needed. There are various sized bags, bottles and boxes for evidence; lighting equipment, measuring and drawing equipment; carpentry, mechanics and plumbing tools; ropes, chains and barricades.

One of the newest pieces of equipment is an anti-putrefaction mask which filters out all odors when the men have to work with a decaying body.

Most of the nine patrolmen assigned to the unit have completed courses at Columbus Technical Institute in criminal investigation and are working on their own time for criminology degrees, he said.

Cottrill is hoping to get a new truck and an additional fully staffed unit.

"My nine men average 160 hours of overtime a month and there are 30 men waiting to join this unit," he said. The overtime doesn't include time in court.

The unit traveled 50,043 miles in 1972 on 4,935 runs. The men processed 1,889 crime scenes, collected 4,835 pieces of evidence, took 4,839 crime scene photographs and lifted 8,848 latent prints.

Israeli Girl Scout Leader Teaches Americans

By Elsie V. Weaver
Staff Editor

West Columbus-Naomi Uziel loves teaching it in the out-of-doors.

You can see it as she kicks up her heels and sings in Hebrew in one of her native Israeli folk dances shoulder to shoulder with new friends, American Girl Scouts at Camp Kenjockety. You can see it as she flings more salt into the pot on the log fire, sticks an inquiring finger into the fudge cooling in a pan on a rock, or when she talks glowingly of all the materials available for arts and crafts at the camp.

Naomi from Jerusalem, is one of 34 members of the Israeli Federation of Boy and Girl Scouts, to come to America to work as counselors in Girl Scout and Boy Scout camps, Young Jewish camps or in Jewish community centers.

SCOUTING IN Israel would seem to be almost a way of life rather than just a weekly gathering, as it is for many Scouts. From 14 years up, most Israeli youths belong to the Scouts. They meet twice a week deciding what to do to help their country and holding discussions on economics, politics and social problems. They decide each year on projects which help people, such as sales of goods to benefit the blind. They take trips, and despite the fact they are apolitical, they sometimes take part in demonstrations, such as carrying placards at the Walling Wall to protest Soviet treatment of Jews.

Sixteen and seventeen year olds are leaders of the younger Scouts. Naomi, who is 17, has been a Scout for seven years and for the past two years has been a leader for a troop of fifth grade girls. During the past year she organized a group of inner city boys and girls and encouraged them in a learning program.

ASKED WHAT she will do after she finishes high school, she answered, to the amusement of the American Girl Scouts nearby, that she will go to the Army. She is looking forward to it because of the chance to serve her country. She feels she is mature enough and ready for military life. After serving the required 18 months, she might even elect to stay in the Army longer. She has learned Arabic and thus might be assigned to a listening post.

What does she think of America? "It's too big, and too materialistic," she answers. "What will I take back? Oh, mostly material things. America is too materialistic. I want to go back and tell the people of Israel not to become that way, in step before they do."

DESPITE HER criticism of America, she had fun here, and learned a lot, Naomi says.

A lot of young campers at Kenjockety will tell you that they are far richer for having known Naomi this summer but not in any materialistic way.

Buckeye Boys' Ranch Tennis Scored A Lot More Than Love (0) With Fans

Picture of wet spectators by Thom Downey.

GROVE CITY-All eyes were on the players in the City National --Buckeye Tennis Championships to benefit Buckeye Boys' Ranch in Grove City July 31-Aug. 5. Jimmy Connors, seeded number one in the tournament and the first two-time winner, wasn't too happy (in photo above) with a shaky tie game with Pancho Gonzalez. Pancho played the fiddle while Jimmy cried. Jimmy beat Japan's top player, Jan Kaiwarumi (shown at left). Spectators watching the legs of Pancho and his son Richard would have had a hard time telling the difference. Pancho is 45 but moved like his 21 year old son. Pancho demonstrates a mean reach, but it wasn't enough to beat Connors. Pancho took the first set in a 12 point tie-breaker, but Connors came back to take the last two sets. Because Paul Gerken had tendonitis and was unable to play, Connors and Brian Gottfried put on a one set exhibition. Brian was out numbered when Connors got a little help from his friends the ball boys, Randy McLoughlin and Paul Matrin. Capacity crowds made most of the matches. The spectators above were there for the raucous Tuesday matches. Connors took the pace of a little soldier after a good passing shot. The last picture shows his winning forehand. (Photos by Kathy Downey)

Governor Proclaims Retailer Month

Governor John J. Gilligan has proclaimed August as "Let's Hear It for Ohio Retailers Month." The announcement came as merchants all over Ohio begin the month long celebration.

Many retailers are selling Ohio made products and have scheduled live demonstration of Ohio artists and craftsmen in their stores.

"Ohio's 83,000 retail establishments have contributed greatly to our quality of life. It is only fitting that in celebrating Ohio's 170th anniversary, we salute a vital segment of our state's economy—retailing," the Governor said.

THE EVENT is being coordinated through the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development and the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants, the statewide retail trade association.

"The Ohio Council is pleased to be involved with a program that calls attention to the importance of retailing in our everyday lives. Ohio's retail community continues to lead the nation in quality and diversification.

The state's consumers are fortunate to have this caliber of merchant in the marketplace," said Richard H. Kertcher, Kertcher's, Ravenna, chairman of the Ohio Council.

"Ohio's economic growth rate continues to lead all the midwest states.

Her retail community plays a vital role in that growth," said Dr. David C. Sweet, Director, Department of Economic and Community Development.

A major campaign using the "Let's Hear It for Ohio" theme has been launched.

One of the features of the "Let's Hear It for Ohio" program is a 45 rpm record—"Because I Love Ohio," recorded by River. It features a contemporary and a rhythm and blues version, and is being played over nearly every Ohio radio station.

Many trade associations including the Ohio Newspaper Association and local chambers of commerce have joined in celebrating and saluting Ohio.

Retarded Children Benefit With Governor At Cedar Point

ALL OHIOANS are invited to have dinner with Gov. John J. Gilligan, Friday, Aug. 17 at southshore Lake Erie's giant Cedar Point amusement complex.

Retarded children will receive all proceeds—and some 350 children from hospitals throughout Ohio will be bussed to Cedar Point to spend that afternoon as personal guests of the Governor.

Proceeds from the $35-a-plate dinner will go directly to the Ohio Association for Retarded Children (OARC)—but donors will get some good things for themselves, too:

A gala dinner with the Governor.
All-day park-and-ride passes to Cedar Point.

An evening of entertainment by young performers from Cedar Point's famous live shows program.

But reservations for the first annual Governor's Day at Cedar Point must be taken on a first-come-first-served basis, and the date grows near.

Send checks to: Governor's Day Office, Attn: Miss Joanne Zidar, Cedar Point Amusement Land, Sandusky, Ohio 44870.

Gov. Gilligan expressed hope that "all the profits from Governor's Day help make life in the future better and more rewarding for Ohio's mentally retarded children."

And that, of course, depends on the generosity of Ohioans everywhere—all of whom are invited to contribute to the OARC children, and to have dinner with Gov. Gilligan at Cedar Point.

Miss Teenage America

Beauty-Brains Cliche Comes True For Once

By Julie Savagot
IN A WORLD where every "queen" is billed as "brilliant"—and every honor-winning co-ed is billed as "beautiful"—it's refreshing to find a girl who actually qualifies on both counts.

The girl is Melissa Marie Galbraith. She's just 18, she's a National Honor Society student, and she's Miss Teenage America, 1973.

Melissa whirled into Sandusky, Ohio Sunday, July 29, for some last minute preparations before her scheduled appearances at southshore Lake Erie's giant Cedar Point amusement land, Aug. 8 through 19.

At Cedar Point, she'll be touring everything from the main Midway to Frontier Trail, to the six live shows that run at four locations throughout the park.

BUT ON SUNDAY, Melissa just wanted to talk about "things in general." And for a girl who won over 31,000 original entrants and 51 finalists in the national contest, Melissa is disarmingly modest:

"My father's in the Army, and I've been many places in the world. But I'd never seen much of the United States before. Now I've been through the West and in Hawaii—and in the South America and the Bahamas, too."

"I think the travel has been one of the richest experiences for me."

"But most of all, I just enjoy meeting people."

ONE THING about being Miss Teenage America is a situation that affects all famous persons—autograph signing.

Of course, Melissa experiences the autograph sessions that occur when any famous personage appears in public. "You know," she says, "there are really two age groups that normally ask for autographs—youthers than I, and adults from 25 on up."

"In my own age group, they're very hesitant about asking for autographs. Or even talking!"

"I think," smiles Melissa reflectively, "that my age is an age where you have a lot of pride. And I certainly don't think most kids my age want to ask another kid for autographs..."

MISS Teenage America, 1973, has opinions on other subjects, too. Since her victory, Melissa's received the predictable offers of modeling jobs. But she doesn't want to model for a living "because I think they tend to think of you as a model only."

"They don't come to you as a person, who has a mind. And I don't think that kind of life is for me."

There's no question that Melissa does, indeed have a mind. And she's been using it to maintain her straight-A academic average at Clarion (Pa.) Area High School, where she'll be a senior next year.

SHE USES a tutor for chemistry and geography—the only two subjects she couldn't complete on schedule while traveling around the World as Miss Teenage America.

Nor does Melissa feel that the demands of her position prevent more conventional involvements. "In Louisville, Kentucky, I was scheduled to ride a float. But that same day I was supposed to be inducted into the National Honor Society."

"So they just flew me home to Clarion. They really look out for me. Very helpful... very understanding."

MELISSA was something of a combined business-guest of honor at Cedar Point, Aug. 5. That's "Clarion-Jefferson Counties Day at Cedar Point," wherein Miss Teenage America's hometown area friends travel en masse to spend a day in the park with their celebrated daughter.

"My high school band was at Cedar Point in June," notes Melissa. They had such a good time our band director had trouble getting them back on the bus! I think it's going to be fun, too."

SO IT IS that the life of Clarion, Pennsylvania's Melissa Marie Galbraith—Miss Teenage America—will continue to be one hectic, exciting episode after another through the remainder of her reign. August 5, Clarion-Jefferson Counties Day at Cedar Point... then elsewhere, day by day, right up until Melissa relinquishes her crown to the 1974 Miss Teenage America, at the nationally televised pageant in Memphis, Nov. 24.

"But I'm really enjoying myself," says Melissa. "It's the greatest experience in the world..."

EAGLE CREEK Bridge, on State Route 763 in Brown County, will soon be the only remaining wooden, covered bridge on the state highway system. Ohio Transportation Director J. Phillip Richley has promised to keep the rebuilt bridge on the state system as a reminder "of our colorful past and inheritance."

Tender, Loving Care Will Be Given Covered Bridge

"TENDER, loving care" will be given the last wooden, covered bridge on the state highway system, according to J. Phillip Richley, Director of the Ohio Department of Transportation.

Richley said the Eagle Creek Bridge, on State Route 763 in Brown County, will be given special care since it represents Ohio's rich heritage. The bridge will be retained as part of the state highway system routing.

"The bridge represents a part of a past that all Ohioans share," said Richley. "We will continue to preserve it as a tribute to the state's colorful past and a reminder of our inheritance."

IT WILL become the only wooden bridge on the state highway system when a new bridge is completed to replace the Governor Kirtler covered bridge on State Route 136 in Adams County. The covered Kirtler Bridge will remain as a historic landmark but will revert to the Adams County Commissioners and the county historical society.

The Eagle Creek bridge is known locally as the Bowman Bridge because the Bowman family had a general store nearby when the wood truss structure was originally built in 1872.

"The Bowman family took a great interest in the wooden bridge," said Richley. "Their store was located north of the covered structure and customers began to call it Bowman Bridge."

THE RUSTIC, one-lane bridge is surrounded by sycamore trees and blends with the scenic, southern Ohio countryside. Rebuilt in 1952, the Douglas Fir bridge is 14 feet, 10 inches wide, spans 168 feet and has a 10-and-a-half-foot clearance.

Built on dry-laid limestone abutments, the bridge is listed in excellent condition by ODOT's Regional District Nine Office. Eagle Creek is the dividing line between two townships on the south.

"While a one-lane, wooden bridge is not usually part of the modern highway system Ohio has developed, the Bowman Bridge is worth the special rating," said Richley. "The highway carries mainly local traffic and few trucks, so it can be retained on the system with little chance of hindering free-flowing traffic."

"THIS BEAUTIFUL bridge will continue to be used daily much the same as our large, multi-lane structures. But those crossing this wooden structure will have a view into a part of our history which added to Ohio's greatness."

Alcohol, Drug Institute Scheduled For Teenagers

More than 400 Ohio high school students are expected on the Ohio Wesleyan campus for the Teenage Institute on Alcohol and Other Drugs, August 12-16.

The five-day institute will enable participants to hear presentations and to participate in discussions ranging from physiological and psychological to the ethical aspects of alcohol and drug abuse among teenagers.

Presentations and discussions are conducted in an environment of trust and freedom so that teenagers may develop their own judgments on how to deal with the problems of alcohol and drugs.

"THE PROGRAM will provide Ohio teenagers with a unique understanding and insight into alcohol and drug use problems, which they hopefully will convey to their friends and classmates," according to Dr. John W. Cashman, director of the Ohio Department of Health.

This is the ninth consecutive year for the institute. It is sponsored by the Alcoholism Program, Ohio Department of Health, in association with Ohio Wesleyan.

A grant of $12,640 from the Department of Health provides student stipends and finances staff, materials and speakers.

Supporting organizations include the Ohio School Counselors Association, Ohio Department of Liquor Control and the Ohio Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Participants, from junior and senior classes throughout the state, were chosen on the basis of ability and willingness to use the institute experience to contribute to school and community education.

IN ADDITION to "working sessions," they will enjoy folk singing, dances, pizza parties and a variety of sports activities in OWU facilities. Staff will include 30 discussion group leaders who also serve as floor counselors.

Robert Sweet, a specialist in addictions and dependencies, is institute director; Mrs. Paula Wead, who specializes in interdisciplinary health education and special education problems, is coordinator; Dr. Joseph Wiltemans, psychologist and a professor at the Virginia Commonwealth University, Medical College of Virginia, is program director.

AMONG the key speakers will be the following: H. Stephen Glenn, program director, U.S. Office of Education; Regional Treatment Center, Division of Addiction Sciences, University of Miami School of Medicine; Dr. Rupert Salisbury, assistant dean of the Ohio State University College of Pharmacy; Dr. Michael Gerald, assistant professor of pharmacology, OSU College of Pharmacy; Patrolman James Bonham, community services officer of the Columbus Police Department; Capt. Frank

Natural Resources Division Passes On Helpful Hints

DOG TRAINING REGULATIONS

Nothing is more enjoyable than taking a young pup to the field for a little training prior to the opening of gun seasons for small game. It's also good for the pup to break himself in gradually.

This can be done by taking short walks each evening with dog under leash. The training of dogs is prohibited on state lands through August 31 due to nesting birds and young animals.

Gl Palmer, Law Enforcement Supervisor, Wildlife District Two, cautions all dog trainers that they are responsible for any wild animals killed by their dog prior to the open season.

SEVERAL complaints were received the past few weeks on coon dog trainers training their dogs. Coon hunters apprehended shaking young coon from trees or possessing weapons while training their dogs face possible $200.00 fines plus the loss of their dogs.

Numerous farmer complaints of hunters hunting in unharvested crop fields has resulted in it being necessary to enforce the "No Hunting Without Written Permission" law.

FREE PLANTING STOCK AVAILABLE

The Game Management Section of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Division of Wildlife, advises they have a program to assist eligible landowners in improving wildlife habitat conditions on their farm.

WILDLIFE in Ohio is generally a by-product of other land uses such as farming, forestry and urban development. Within the various regions of the State, the amount and variety of wildlife is dependent upon soils, climate and the regional land use patterns.

Most private owners can improve the abundance of wildlife on their land by modifying land practices in current use of by planting made specifically for wildlife.

A PRIMARY responsibility of the Division of Wildlife is to provide technical assistance to landowners who are interested in improving food and cover conditions for wildlife on their farms.

Some permanent types to planting stock are furnished free from the Division of Wildlife to eligible landowners. Eligible landowners include those permitting a reasonable amount of public hunting on their acreage, or plants can also be provided for plantings to be used for educational and demonstrational purposes on land owned by sportsmen's

Tourist Information Centers Assist 16,000 Motorists

MORE THAN 16,000 motorists visited Ohio's three tourist information centers since their opening in June, according to the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

During June, 5,456 visitors from 48 states and 15 foreign countries stopped at the centers which are located on eastbound Interstate 70 on the Indiana border in Preble County; on westbound Interstate 90 on the Pennsylvania border in Ashtabula County; and on northbound Interstate 71 in Medina County.

During July, 10,517 motorists from 48 states and 20 foreign countries visited the three centers.

THE BUSIEST of the three centers was the Preble County facility which was visited by 7,426 tourists from June 16th to July 31st. The second busiest facility was in Ashtabula County where visitors traffic totaled 4,438 from July 8th - July 31st. Total traffic at the Medina County Center totaled 4,512. Visitors from the state of Ohio represented the largest group per state to stop at the centers, followed by New York and Illinois, respectively.

T-Ball Baseball Variety Helps Develop Skills

T-ball baseball is a variation of Little League for boys ages 7 to 9. It is different in that the batter hits a stationary baseball atop an adjustable rubber "T".

From there on it is played like regular baseball.

The "T" stands just behind the homeplate and is adjustable in height from the ground so that the batter may put the baseball in position for his anticipated swing and he may readjust its height between swings or after a foul ball if he so desires.

A player stands on the pitcher's mound for the defense team but he doesn't pitch.

The game moves a lot faster and there are no walks. A player hitting off the "T" will not necessarily develop a good batting eye but he will develop coordination and rhythm at his own speed.

All players essentially get to hit the ball and run.

The other advantage is the absence of "Little League elbow or arm" which is undesirable especially at this early age.

The Western Athletic Association has had a "T" ball league for approximately five years besides the older leagues, such as regular Little League, Pony League, etc.

The championship playoffs, a two out of three series, this year was between the Brookshire Bobcats, 17-4, and the Valleyview Tigers, 15-3. Both teams played well, but the Brookshire Bobcats came out on top in the first two games.

The Bobcats defense was the first game and their hitting took the second game with the help of two smoothly executed double plays.

After the game, Corrova's Restaurant on Sullivan had a reserved table waiting for all the Bobcats with free pizza, all they could eat. It was a good year for the "T" ball league and the Bobcats.

Blacklick Woods Course Will Challenge Golfers

The long awaited new golf facilities at Blacklick Woods Metropolitan Park are expected to be open in early August, completing what will certainly be among the finest public golf accommodations in the Midwest.

Known as the Blacklick Woods Metropolitan Golf Course, the new golf complex consists of an 18-hole championship course, a new par-3 course and the new Blacklick Woods Activities Building.

The 6888-yard championship course (formerly Stony Creek), has been refurbished by the construction of five new greens and six new tees. Water continues to be a hazard for the golfer as the fairways cross Blacklick Creek six times and go around or across two small ponds several times.

The completely new par-3 course will be of particular interest to the golfers who have only two or three hours to play. However, it is a course that will require the use of every club in the bag at least once.

Courses of this type have also proven to be very popular with persons learning to play golf who do not wish to play the more difficult and busy championship course.

The beautiful new Activities Building, containing the golf pro-shop, snack bar and dining room, toilet facilities, golf cart rental and storage, indoor driving range, and a meeting room, will of course serve golfers and non-golfers alike.

A new entrance road serving the Blacklick Woods Metropolitan Golf Course is located on Livingston Avenue, 1/4 mile west of State Route 258. Parking is provided for 275 cars.

All-Stars Selected

The all-star selections have been made to represent St. Mary Magdalene in the Hilliard Pee Wee baseball tournament starting Aug. 13. They are: John Sapp, Jeff Borch, Mike Grasscole, Pat Mahling, H. J. Haney, Jeff Hockingberry, Doug Furnace, Matt Montgomery, John Kusan, John Gruce, Bobby Blair, Mike Jordan, and Mike Gallagher.

Advisory Committee Cautions

Preventive Measures Necessary To Avoid Sports Activity Deaths

(Ed. Note: The Ohio high School Athletic Association and the Ohio State Medical Association have issued a joint statement on sports medicine. The statement follows.)

Columbus, O.—Heat Stroke has claimed the lives of at least 42 young men in American football in the past ten years. Last summer a young Ohio high school player collapsed during pre-season conditioning and later died. Last week a 250 pound Cleveland area youngster collapsed during a physical workout and died the same day from heat stroke.

Physicians and leading coaches have for years outlined the preventive measures necessary to avoid these deaths but there continues to be widespread confusion and misunderstanding in interpreting these recommendations.

The purpose of this statement is to attempt to clarify some of these points for coaches, trainers and parents of high school, junior high, Little League and college football players.

1. CONDITIONING AND ACCLIMATIZATION TO HEAT: It is essential that conditioning start at about 30 minutes a day and gradually increase to the 1 1/2-3 hours practice session by mid-August.

The use of rubber sweat suits or in fact, any kind of sweat suit is to be vigorously condemned. There is a mistaken and highly dangerous impression prevalent that using a sweat suit will increase weight loss.

It will, of course, increase water loss on a given day but the athlete will drink this all back within a few hours. Placing any covering over the skin prevents air from flowing across the skin, thereby robbing the human body of the only way it has to cool itself.

Early conditioning should be conducted in shorts, when the full uniform is used, it should be loose fitting and light weight or one of the new fish net materials for maximum ventilation.

2. EVALUATE ENVIRONMENT CONDITIONS: The old adage "It is not the heat, it's the humidity" is certainly applicable to early season conditioning programs and practice sessions. Several deaths have occurred when the temperature was under 70 degrees, but the humidity was over 90 percent.

The only effective way for the body to dissipate the heat generated by muscular exercise is by the process of evaporative cooling (air blowing across the sweating skin surface). Thus the more moisture in the environment (humidity), the more difficult for the body to cool itself.

It is absolutely essential for each coach or trainer to know exactly both the temperature and the humidity. There is no room for guess work. An inexpensive and convenient way for a coach or trainer to measure the environmental conditions on the field is by the use of a sling psychrometer, a unit that costs about $15 and measures dry bulb temperature and wet bulb temperature. By using these two readings, the relative humidity can be completed. The use of the wet bulb reading alone is a reasonable accurate measure of the environmental conditions.

Each fall, a supply of weight charts which include a scale for recording the wet bulb temperature, is provided to each high school in Ohio by the Joint Committee. This chart provides three alerts:

Green Alert: No precautions necessary.
Orange Alert: Water mandatory-Cautions should be used.
Red Alert: Practice plans altered or postponed. Anytime the humidity is over 90 percent the red alert is in effect.

3. IDENTIFY SUSCEPTIBLE INDIVIDUALS: Almost all heat stroke deaths have occurred in interior linemen (centers, guards, tackles).

They usually are stocky with a large muscle mass that generates heat. Accurate weights should be taken BEFORE AND AFTER each workout. Those players losing over three percent of their body weight should be particularly observed (i.e. 6 pounds loss in a 200 pound athlete).

4. PROVIDE WATER AND FLUIDS ON THE FIELD: During the past ten years there has been a tremendous change in approach to this subject. From a position of rarely permitting water on the field, we are now providing unlimited ice water at all times through practice and games. On very hot days The Ohio State University Football team will consume 50 to 100 gallons of water during a practice session. We provide ample electrolyte replacement solution at break time and after practice. During the OSU-California game in the fall of 1971, over 2000 pounds of ice were used on both benches.

Most colleges and high schools already are providing unlimited fluid replacement, but too many Junior High Schools and Little League teams still are following the obsolete regimen that most of their coaches had learned. Again, the most important replacement item is water. Salt and other substances are very secondary.

5. HEAT STROKE: Is a true, life threatening medical emergency! Individuals will lapse into unconsciousness, have a dry and very hot skin, with a rising temperature and they do not sweat. Those players should have their clothing removed and an ambulance called.

During the wait for medical assistance, any means of cooling the body should be instituted immediately. This can include application of cloths, cold compresses to head, fanning with towels, or rubbing the extremities and trunk with ice. The purpose of emergency first aid procedures is to lower the body temperature.

Minutes are precious in preventing death. A temperature of 104 degrees or high will cause irreversible changes in the body cells. In a true heat stroke such temperatures are reached rapidly.

It is tremendously important that all coaches, trainers and parents will do all possible to prevent further tragedies from happening this year.

The awareness of parents is particularly vital in those instances where their athletes decide on their own and without supervision, to go through their own pre-season, pre-practice conditioning program. Here is where the parents, by insisting on moderation and precaution against heat stroke, can help to protect the lives of their children.

It is tremendously important that all coaches, trainers and parents will do

SAFETY SLOGAN
"Slow Up Today, Show Up Tomorrow" was the winning slogan in this year's safety slogan contest, says Highway Safety Director, Pete O'Grady. It's easy to let speed get out of hand when driving long distances. "Let's Hear It For Highway Safety in Ohio" by keeping speed under control.

Sun's Rays Affect Movement Of Fish

FISH REACT to summer much as man does; they seek cooler, move livable places. Nature provides fish with their own air conditioning system called the thermocline. As water warms in a lake it stratifies into three layers. One, the thermocline, becomes more favorable to fish as a place to live.

This doesn't mean that fish feed in their comfortable layer of water; evidence to the contrary indicates that they feed where they don't live during summer. The outdoor recreation department at Mercury outboards reports that during the hot summer months fish spend their days lounging in cool water, and their nights dining on a plentiful supply of other aquatic life that inhabits the warm upper layer of water.

Research has shown that light, not heat, limits fish movement during summer. When the sun is up light rays penetrate the water at a more direct angle, making fish more vulnerable to predators. To compensate for this, fish venture into shallow water to feed only in early morning and again just before dark.

NIGHTTIME provides perfect cover for marauding bass, walleye, pike and other fish that use the lack of light to prey upon smaller fish, frogs and insects. Since night vision is limited for most fish, they locate their food by sound. Fishermen take advantage of this by using lures that are heard, or whose movements in water are detected as vibrations. These include chugger plugs, popping bugs, spinners, wobbler lures and live bait.

One other category of lures that works favorably for the Mercury fishing staff are those that can be fished on the bottom of the lake. These include plastic worms and jig and oel combinations. The slight sounds these lures make as they scrape over rocks or silt along on the mud are easily detected by fish, and are interpreted as being something worth eating!

AROUND TOWN

NEW MANAGER AT MARIOTT
 THE NEW manager at the Marriott Inn brings to the motel all the charm, personality and warmth of a true southern gentleman. Theo Wright, a native of Atlanta possesses the true characteristics of a good host.

I know that his desire to please the customers at the Marriott Inn is going to be a pleasure for you who patronize the place.

Theo brings to the Marriott Inn a wealth of knowledge with him. He has served in various executive capacities in the south and south-west parts of the country. After a ten year stint at the Hyatt House in Atlanta Theo was vice president of operations for a chain of Sheraton Hotels, then he moved on to Vice President of Operations for Continental Host, a string of hotels in the south-west.

Having only been at the Marriott Inn a couple of weeks, Theo is impressed with the staff, the quality of food and the over all operations of the motel. That, I would have to second I believe the waitresses are the prettiest, friendliest Around Town. The food is way at the top of my list for pure enjoyment.

Theo plans no changes in the operations, just improvements, here and there, with special emphasis on pleasing the customers. At this time, Theo has many ideas that he wants to put into operation which he believes will make a visit to the Marriott Inn even more enjoyable. More on these later, as they develop.

While putting in twelve to fourteen hours a day, Theo does still find time to visit his family, wife Gloria and two boys, Steven 10 and Timothy 6.

I asked Theo if he had any special hobbies and his answer was golf. He also gave me one of the most honest answers I've heard from a golfer when I asked him his score, Theo said, "I normally shoot in the 80's, but if I went out tomorrow, I'd be lucky to stay below a hundred."

That's Theo Wright, an honest, hard working individual whose main interest is making the guests at the Marriott Inn happy. This is his devotion.

While the Marriott Inn has been one of my favorites since its beginning, I know that under the leadership of Theo Wright, I, like you, are going to want to go back more often. Just sitting with this man with his southern drawl adds a lot of hospitality to the place.

So, as they say down south, you all come for a visit. Theo will be more than glad to give you a gracious greeting.

THE FACTORY REUTILIZED

Marty Melman has taken back the Factory. For those of you who may not know much about the Factory, it is a swinging place on the east side of town. The back room is the Boiler Room. In the past, it was a huge spot, booking the loud, hard rock type of music, catering to a young crowd.

Here lies the story. The Boiler Room has been cut in half. It is now a small, intimate lounge, with duos providing the entertainment. Marty has given the room a lot of sophistication. Without me telling you, I am sure you realize that Marty is attracting a much older clientele.

Currently appearing in the Boiler Room is the Dave Scott Duo. They opened the Factory after a lengthy engagement at the Sheraton Motor Hotel in downtown Columbus.

Their music is ideal for the room. It is soft and melodious with nice, simple rhythms. This twosome is ideal for easy listening or ballroom dancing.

Dave Stanton plays bass guitar, piano, and serves up some very nice vocal work. His partner is Scott Steelman. Scott plays organ and piano. With the two principal instruments being keyboard instruments, this makes the Dave Scott Duo unique. Both Dave and Scott are solid instrumentalists. They know what they want to do at the keyboard, and they do it.

THE SAME is true for their vocal stylings. Be it a solo offering by one of the fellows or some close harmony work, the end result is entertaining. Scott and Dave happen to own two voices that blend well together. Both have pleasing tonal qualities. Add it all up and you are given the chance to hear classy vocalizing.

To me, it is a real pleasure to sit in a room and be able to talk in a normal conversation, and yet enjoy the entertainment. Most of all, for those of you who have been in the old Boiler Room of the Factory, you won't believe the changes.

If you are looking for a spot, particularly on the east side of town, where there is soft music, nice atmosphere, good music for dancing, then this is the place. The Dave Scott Duo makes it all happen, and it happens in a relaxing, low key surroundings. The Old Factory isn't as noisy as it used to be, that's for sure.

RAMADA SWINGS AT AKRON

TOOK the traveling typewriter to Akron last week to the brand new Ramada Inn, in the Rubber City. I'm sorry to say, it is much prettier than the three Ramadas in our area. It is built very similar to the rest of the Inns but the color schemes are much prettier and more cheerful.

The dining room is simply a treat for your eyes. Decorated in shades of green, the decor is relaxing and inviting. Of course the food is as delicious as at the Ramada Inns in Columbus.

I had a New York strip steak that was the finest as you could have anywhere in the country. It was cooked to perfection, and succulent and tender. The special house dressings were truly a tantalizing taste treat. If I had closed my eyes, I would have believed I was dining at Ramada north, south or east in Columbus.

The same is true for the service, very efficient and pleasant.

Entertainment-wise, the quality is equal to what we experience in Columbus, just about the best there is on the road. The Ramadas are known for having the best, most expensive lounge acts that are available.

This is true for the Steve Grimm Show, the current offering at the Akron Ramada Inn. This is a rather high powered musical group who rely heavily on top notch vocal and instrumental talents.

What ever they do on stage, they do well. Colleen Raye is a buxom singer with a voice that is strong with beautiful tonal qualities. What a stylist. The same can be said for hubby Steve Grimm. This handsome fellow owns a terrific voice with a very wide range. Steve has great control, also.

Backing up Steve and Colleen are trumpeter Terry Stewart, Jimmy Feather at the drums and Richie Ackerman with the electric bass. All are first rate musicians.

THE GROUP owns some mighty good arrangements. All in all, they are worth the hour and forty five minute drive. In fact, if you want to escape for a weekend, this is a good place. You'll enjoy the food, the entertainment, the large pool and most of all, the friendly, personable staff at the Ramada Inn at Akron. Take my advice, and take a mini vacation there soon. You'll come away relaxed and refreshed.

SKIPPING AROUND TOWN

The downtown Sheraton Hotel has closed its lounge off of the lobby and is completely remodeling the place. Opening the first part of September, the new lounge is named "Sadie's Stage Door," and will feature the top names in contemporary music. Fred Hill, the Guest Service Agent at the Sheraton Motor Hotel, is quite enthusiastic about the new room. Fred tells me that it will be to swingingest lounge (Continued On Next Page)

STARDOM is headed the way of Christine Ranck and a lot of other youngsters who cavort daily at Kings Island under the guise of "Give My Regards To Broadway".

The show (performances 7 or 10 times daily) is one of the many hidden pleasures that sometimes are overlooked by Kings Island visitors who see the "rides" and stop at that point.

This exceptionally fast-paced 35-minute (give or take a second or two) show is one of the many entertaining shows on the giant midway that is called Kings Island. BUT NOW to Christine, since she is a local girl by way of Worthington. Christine would be the first to say that the teamwork of "Give My Regards To Broadway" is what makes the show tick. And she is right.

There wasn't a second wasted in the show we observed and the teamwork was fast evident when a dancer's gown got caught in a boofers coat and not a step went out of place while they struggled to free themselves from each other.

PRETTY and brunette, Christine Ranck sings, dances, has a flair for comedy in her expressive face and has all the natural and developed talent that George Whites Great White Way used to have before it became fuddled with inferior flash-in-the-pan boofers, dancers, musicians, singers and actors.

She's Eastman School of Music (Rochester, New York) graduate and her most-remembered role, according to her mother, Mrs. Robert W. Ranck, 5748 Olentangy River Rd., (her father is Dr. Robert W. Ranck, a practicing dentist) was the lead of Maria at the University of Rochester performance of West Side Story, as.

Reliving her performance of last Friday we remembered the gentleness she also showed and can now easily ascertain why the role of Maria fit her perfectly.

A June 1973 graduate of Eastman, Christine didn't take voice seriously until her freshman year there. She had attended Worthington High School until her junior year, then attended a private school in Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania.

She and another performer had formed a duo in Rochester and had performed locally in coffee houses and even did an original production as part of their education process.

She excels at choreography, loves to write and is in love with her career that she hopes will lead to greater things.

Christine admires her co-workers. "We're all part of a team," she says "and sort of lean on each other to be sure we put the most into every moment of our performance."

CHRISTINE took us back a few years when she soloed "Summertime" from the Porgy and Bess score and also as a change of pace vocalized "The Sound Of Music".

With her talent and desire to succeed we don't believe that the sky is her limit—that's not quite distance enough.

Christine Ranck. That's a name you'll be hearing more about in years to come.

She's a regal queen, but more important—she's a true lady of the living theatre.

in downtown Columbus. Tell you more about it when it opens. You fans of Susan Rose, will be sorry to hear that Susan is packing her Hammond Organ, her voice and is moving to Cincinnati. Hubby was transferred to the River City. Our loss is Cincinnati's gain. Good luck Susan. Two of the nicest guys behind a bar are Mike Grim and Vito Caponigro at the Ramada North. Both are friendly and loaded with personality and charm. For the best cheese cake in the world, it is Charbert's on east twelfth. It is out of this world. Keith-Charles Duo are back in the lounge at Lincoln Lodge. This is a fine musical-comedy duo that have always been crowd pleasers. Keith sings and plays drums, and boys does this boy sing. His partner Charles plays up a storm at the electric organ. Together, they are terrific. For a real fun evening plan on going to the Country Dinner Playhouse. The show, "The Odd Couple," is hilarious and Ronny Graham is full of laughs for his audience. You may know him better as Mr. Dirt, on the Mobil Oil commercials. The food is great, and until the 19th of this month, all escorted ladies get in at half price. This is a good entertainment bargain. See you Around Town.

STARS ARE NOT BORN—they're developed by hard work, patience and a lot of enthusiasm and vitality. Here's Christine Ranck doing just a few of the things that come naturally. Top left: Kings Island Manager of Press Relations and Publicity Tom Olds, left, entertainer Bruce Dillon (New Lebanon) and Christine got with some three-part harmony. Bottom left, Chris in a dance routine and in another skin of the Charleston period. GRASSHOPPERS AND CRICKETS
Next time you're walking through a field to get to your favorite trout or bass stream, catch yourself some grasshoppers or crickets and you'll have two of the best trout and bass baits to fish with.
During the season when grasshoppers are jumping all over the fields near water, I've seen trout and bass gorge themselves on any grasshopper unfortunate enough to fall in the water.
NOW TO catch a fish, use light weight line and a small hook, No. 8 or 12. Float your grasshopper or cricket down stream into pockets and pools below riffles making sure you use a quiet approach to the area before you begin to fish.
If you don't get a strike fishing topwater, then clamp on a small weight and sink the grasshopper or cricket down to deeper water where fish sometimes lay.

The Squirrel Must Have Been Sick

Dear Sir:
In your Outdoors Ohio column July 25, you had a story "Squirrel for Birdie on Fairway". A golfer had kicked a young fox squirrel to death.
Had the game protector used some common sense he would have realized the squirrel must have been sick. If so, it was better off put out of its suffering. It could have been sent into the State University for a rabies check. I doubt very much that anyone could kick a healthy young or old fox squirrel to death.

Golden Age News And Notes

Win, Austria: The old woman looks at the large kitchen clock. "He must be coming any minute now." She gets up a little laboriously, picks up a glass with lemon squash from the kitchen table and goes to the sink. "It's hot today," she says, "he will be thirsty." She runs cold water into the glass. Another glance at the clock. Eleven thirty. The old woman goes to the window. "What's keeping him?" So begins the description of "Meals on Wheels" in the book Heritage and Mission, Social Work in Vienna published by the city. Vienna serves more than 2500 senior citizens daily meals. Let us continue to eavesdrop: The doorbell rings. She rushes to open the door. "You forgot to look through the spy hole, Frau Havlick," says the young man who comes in. "Yes I know," the old woman admits. "But look, it can only be you at this time. And then I forgot. I am so happy to see you." The young man puts the shiny dishes on the kitchen table.

There's goulash soup today and yeast buns; four buns with vanilla sauce," he says, "you like puddings don't you, Frau Havlick?" "I do, and in this heat, one does not want meat anyway. The meat patties yesterday did for supper too. It was so much, too much for an old woman." She points to the glass on the table. "Would you like a sip in this heat?" The young man gratefully accepts. "You are quite right not to drink hard stuff," she chatters on. "It's no good. I know about it with my friend's boy. He became a drunkard and had been such a nice boy. Won't you sit down a little?" "Well, two minutes," says the young man and sits down. "You know Herr Wilhelm is also waiting for his food and all the others too. And I have to be at work at two." "And how's your fiancée?" asks the old woman with a knowing twinkle in her eyes. "Fine thank you. She has a new job, now, much better pay. We might be able to get a fat soon." THE OLD woman has taken the dishes of the day before from her kitchen cupboard. And what are we getting tomorrow?" she asks. "Oh, no, tomorrow is Saturday. You are not coming tomorrow. Pity. It is not just the food, you know. Even if it is a blessing not to have to climb up to the fifth floor every day. But I do so enjoy talking to you, the likes of me are alone a great deal." The youngman has finished his drink and picked up the dishes "Till Monday, then, Frau Havlick!" He shakes hands with the old woman. "And don't forget to look through the spy hole before you open the door. So much happens these days." He is gone. The old woman shuts the door behind him and goes back into her kitchen. She opens the dishes. "Still all nice and warm," she says, "Well, I'll eat straight away and save myself heating it up!" The program your columnist writes about—in addition to central feeding of senior citizens—is currently in the "hoped for funding process." The Franklin County Council on Aging has submitted to the State Administration on Aging a comprehensive nutrition program for Franklin County. Funds being sought are from Title VII of the Older Americans Act and the nutrition program has been approved by both the Senate and the House of Representatives. Currently the State Administration is awaiting word from Washington about the funds allocated to the State of Ohio. If approved the nutrition program—both home delivered and central feeding—will be able to be started in full. It will be operated by the Community Health Care Services Agency for the Columbus Public Health Department, Dorothy Royce, Director, and Jean Jones, Nutritionist.

Mr. Dinner Will Come To Your House Anytime

MR. DINNER is a new concept in the food service field in Columbus—a home dinner delivery service. In the past a person had three options when he was hungry—going out to a restaurant, cooking a meal at home, or driving out to bring dinner back home. Now Mr. Dinner offers a fourth alternative—dinner catered to your home. Now the weary housewife, working people, or the elderly can order an a la carte dinner by 10 a.m. and have it delivered to their residence by 6 p.m. The service may be ordered for one person or the entire family; one evening or the whole week. The dinners are ready to pop into the oven and out within 10 minutes at the diner's convenience. Using only top-quality, freshly-prepared foods, U.S. Choice meats, grade A vegetables—Mr. Dinner packages the pre-selected portions in disposable aluminum containers that eliminate the washing of pots and pans after dinner. The purpose of Mr. Dinner is to provide a well-balanced dinner at economical prices while saving shopping preparation, clean-up, and effort.

Mr. Dinner also has a menu that changes daily and weekly to provide out customers with a wide variety of selections. The manager of Mr. Dinner is Richard Patrick, a native of Circleville and a graduate of Wittenberg University. The Food Service manager is Charles E. Sanborn of Granville, who has had over 12 years of experience in all facets of the food service industry. Sanborn is keen on the Mr. Dinner concept and emphasizes this service for the elderly who can't shop and cook for themselves, anyone who is convalescing and especially the housewife who welcomes a vacation from the kitchen at any opportunity. Catering any occasion is another phase of the Mr. Dinner operation Patrick and Sanborn hope to expand in the near future. All in all, Mr. Dinner's theme of "From our kitchen to your door" should alert Columbus people that they may now have the services of a chef in their home at any time.

Multiple Sclerosis Appoints Chairman

Mrs. Melvin Winner, 408 Westphal Ave., Columbus, was reappointed chairman of the Gift and Memorial Committee at a recent meeting of Multiple Sclerosis Key No. 1. According to Mrs. Winner, there has been a most enthusiastic response to the use of Gift and Memorial cards. Many people are using the cards to remember friends and relatives for birthdays, weddings, anniversaries, graduations, etc. or from courtesies. The cards represent a donation to Multiple Sclerosis by the sender as well as a special thought to the recipient. Mrs. Winner paid that the success of the sale of Gift and Memorial cards is because of the special thoughtfulness they convey. People also like the ease and convenience of merely calling Mrs. Winner, who takes care of mailing and details. Each card is handsomely printed on high quality paper and has the name of the sender. They may be obtained for a minimum of one dollar donation per card. All proceeds go for Multiple Sclerosis research and patient care in Franklin County. For more information call Mrs. Winner, 231-4473.

WEST COLUMBUS—Lt. Robert Kuss of the Prairie Township Fire Department and Lts. Ralph Rickey and Ralph Perdev of the Jackson Township Fire Department look over a chair as one clue for discovering the cause of the fire. This was one problem displayed at the 19th Annual State Arson School conducted in Columbus last week. The fire was caused by having two wires spliced to the wrong type of wiring. The iron plugged in with several other electrical units was used to throw the men off the trail. This fire kept burning throughout the night, much to the surprise of the State Arson Bureau investigators who set it.

Arson School Training—Education, Investigation

BY KATHY DEVANEY

Observing, questioning and probing through ashes are part of the job of an arson investigator which were put into practice Wednesday and Thursday as 80 men from 36 Ohio fire, state, police and sheriff departments met for the 19th annual state arson school sponsored by the Department of Commerce, Division of Ohio State Fire Marshal. There were also men from Indiana and Pennsylvania departments.

The men viewed house, auto, set and accidental fires at some deserted homes along Big Darby Creek. Members of the State Arson Bureau and members of fire departments set the fires and then acted out the parts of victims as the firemen asked questions and investigated to find out the causes of the fires.

Melvin Billman of the State Arson Bureau was in charge of setting fires that can be found in the home.

"WE TRY TO teach them to think of possibilities. That's the purpose of teaching," he said.

The first fire was accidental. Someone had been cleaning coins with sodium hydride; the cleaner spilled, came in contact with water and started the fire. The clues of an empty can and a warning label were there.

The second problem was very tricky. The wrong type of wires had been used for splicing. The inspector muddled up the clues by having an extension cord under the carpet and all kinds of plugs in one socket.

ONLY ONE man found the real cause, Billman said, and he was an electrician.

The inspectors were also tricked by this problem. They set the fire and put it out. When they came back in the morning the chair was almost burned up. They thought they had put out all the smoldering pieces of fabric.

Other problems included a radio that shorted out and set the kitchen on fire and a boozing, careless smoker with a sloppy wife who set his chair on fire with a cigarette.

Paul Evans of the arson bureau set five different arson fires using five methods he didn't want published because he was afraid kids might try them.

"THE WAY TO spot arson is to find clues in the wrong places such as candle wax in an unlikely spot," Evans said.

Robert Grandstaff, assistant chief of the Lancaster Fire Department, set 10 accidental fires.

"These accidental causes have to be eliminated before arson can be considered," he said.

This house contained examples of the stupid things people do which lead to fires and also some things people do but never thing could cause a problem.

"WE FIND pennies in fuse boxes or the big fuses with aluminum foil wrapped around them. Since the fuse can't blow, a wire or appliance heats up and burns," he said.

Grandstaff recommends checking the circuit breakers every 30 days to make sure they haven't oxidized and no longer work.

Extension cords are run under carpets. The constant walking over them breaks down the insulation, it shorts out and sets the carpet on fire.

"PEOPLE WITH 30 year-old houses still have the original wiring. They add all sorts of electrical appliances and never change the size of the wire. Eventually there may be a fire," he said.

One problem that is easily overlooked is the driving of nails into the wall. The nails may go through the wire, breaking the insulation and causing a fire when the wire gets hot.

Another nail problem is caused by putting on aluminum siding. The long nails used may slice through a wire causing it to short out later or it may electrify the siding.

GRANDSTAFF WARNED of storing chlorine for swimming pools in the garage because if it comes in contact with any organic material it will burn.

He also warned of putting out charcoal briquets with water and trying to save them for future use.

"A person puts out the coals, puts the grill in the garage and four or five hours later they start burning again," he said.

In one fire the owner was burning paint off the house, saw a wasp nest and burned that off. Behind the wasp nest was a birds nest which caught the roof on fire. Another person was soldering a copper pipe near the floor and caught dust and spider webs below on fire; the fire then moved under the wooden floor.

Warning Sent To SWEA

S-W Board Approves Lunch Price Increase

By KATHY DEVANEY

The South-Western City School Board has sent a warning letter to the SWEA (South-Western Education Association) about breaking their contracts with the Board.

In a motion by Kenneth Relyea to accept certificated resignations, the Board agreed to send a letter to SWEA "expressing the Board's dissatisfaction with those members of the teaching staff who don't live up to and fulfill their contractual agreements and in the future the Board will look unkindly on those who partake of that action."

The motion by Relyea came after Dr. Roland E. Long withdrew his motion to accept the resignations but not to give recommendations to those resigning after the July 10 deadline.

"The July 10 deadline for rejecting a contract or for resigning is state law. Anyone resigning after that date has broken the contract just as if it were in the middle of the school year. It's a waste of time to bring these (resignations) to us. This contract is more of a one way street than I thought," Long said.

Dr. Martin L. Stahl, superintendent, admitted there wasn't much the Board could do if a teacher wants to resign.

"If the Board doesn't accept the resignation then the teacher has to remain on the staff. If he leaves the Board can take it to the State Board and ask for a certificate revocation," Stahl said.

Long said a contract should be binding on both parties and that school boards have to stand up and be counted on the issue.

"I guess the teachers I'm really after are the bad teachers who we can't remove without pressure from the teacher organization and law suits. I hope SWEA realizes from this action that this contract is important," Long said.

In other action the Board approved a 5 cents increase for school lunches, subject to the approval of the State Department of Education. Food Service Program, and a 1 cent increase in the price of an extra 1/4 pint of milk. This would increase lunch prices as follows: Elementary from 40 cents to 45 cents, middle and high school from 45 cents to 50 cents and adults from 50 cents to 55 cents.

The increase was based on several factors, including the general inflationary spiral, checking with other school districts, the State Department of Education and vendors. Examples of the effect of the inflationary spiral on items needed for the food service program are:

Ground beef cost $1.01-1.05 a pound in 1972-73; in 1973-74 cost is estimated at $1.41-1.45 a pound for an increase of approximately 40 per cent.

Weiners cost $.80-.85 a pound in 1972-73; in 1973-74 the estimated cost will be $1.01-1.04 a pound, approximately an 11 per cent increase.

Milk showed almost a 10 per cent increase from last year (from $.0684 to $.0754).

The cost for staple foods has also increased over the past few years and it is anticipated that this year they will also increase. The trend in prices is shown by the following examples from the administration:

Cost of a case of no. 10 cans of green beans was $5.40 in 1970-71; $5.85 in 1971-72, an 8 per cent increase; and $6.50 in 1972-73, an 11 per cent increase. The cost of peaches was $7.10 a case in 1970-71; $8.50 in 1971-72; and $9.35 in 1972-73, 10 per cent increase. Applesauce has also shown a 10 per cent increase, from $5.35 in 1970-71 to $5.85 in 1972-73.

The taxpayers after checking with other school districts, the State Department of Education and vendors indicates that there will be limited availability of supplies and equipment and that there will be price increases.

The administration has found that the following exist: only a small per cent of the usual quantities of commodities was available last year; a definite answer about milk reimbursement has not been received and was not received last year until the end of September; there has not been a statement on the milk reimbursement per lunch; and additional costs may be incurred by meeting the requirement of a Type A lunch because some food items are in short supply or unavailable.

Vendors are able to provide quotations on a short term basis and will not make yearly cost commitments, the administration reported.

The Board approved the appropriation of $45,000 for Project REAL, which is completely funded by the federal government and which gives vocational experience to high school students so they are better able to choose a career.

The Board adopted a revised salary schedule for certificated and classified employees in accordance with the negotiated agreement in the spring. The schedule includes a $100 increase on the base salary for certificated and 3 1/2 per cent on the base salary for classified personnel.

This brings the starting salary for first year teachers with a bachelors degree from $7,400 to $7,500 per year and those with a masters degree from $8,140 to $8,250.

City National Bank, Huntington National Bank and Ohio National Bank were designated as depositories of active funds of the Board of Education.

The Board approved making plans and applying for the right to build an exit road from Westland High School to W. Broad St. Because of the opening of I-70 and subsequent removal of heavy traffic, it is felt the plan may be approved.

School bus no. 36 was sold to the Church of Christ Christian Union for $1,500. Two lower bids were also received.

The Board has employed the architectural firm of Lyman J. Strang and Associates to begin work on the truck mechanics building approved by the State Department of Education. The building would be used for vocational education. It would be built on a matching funds basis with the state for equipment and construction.

The Board approved the use of Brookpark Middle School the second Saturday of each month for a recreation program for mentally retarded children.

The Board was informed by the administration that it will be moving the last two weeks in August to a new office building at 465 Kingston Ave., Grove City, 43123. The phone number will remain the same, 675-3318.

Housing Authority Offers Homes To Eligible Families

Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority is making available to eligible families a limited number of three bedroom homes. There is no down payment and house payments are determined by income. The homes are located throughout the city of Columbus.

To be considered eligible, a family must have at least three and no more than six members. The family's income must be approximately $5000 and no more than $8000 per year, depending on the size of the family. The applicant should be working at a steady job and be young enough to carry out the obligations and responsibilities of home ownership.

Interested families can apply at three locations—572 S. Gift St., 513 Souder No. B; and at 2467 Newburgh Dr., between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Families should take with them copies of the birth certificates of their children and a copy of their marriage license. After applying, the Housing Authority will determine if they are eligible by income. Then a home visit will be made to explain more about the program to them.

The next step toward a new home for the couple is for the application to go to a selection committee. The approved families then begin a six-week class that prepares them for home ownership.

Topics for the classes include: Consumer Credit, Basic Law, Consumer Awareness, Insurance, Budgeting and Maintenance. After completing the class, the family would be ready to move as soon as the new home is completed.

The new home buyer will be moving into a new home and a new community. In order to help the home buyer and his neighbors fully enjoy the benefits of both, a community organization made up of home buyers will be formed. The organization will be the backbone of the community government.

All the members in the new development will enjoy the facilities of the community center, a building exclusively for the use of the community.

Anyone with questions may call one of the three offices. The number at the Gift St. office is 228-5671; at the Souder office 221-0000; and at the Newburgh Dr. office, 478-0300.

Golden Age News And Notes

WIEN, AUSTRIA: Old people in general are provided for in Austria. Of course, some have provided for themselves throughout their working life, through their social insurance contributions. However, not every one has been in a position to do that and quite a few would be penniless in advanced years.

often through no fault of their own, if the community did not look after them.

EVERY old person in Austria can depend on it that his pension will arrive on a certain day every month.

Regardless of whether he has earned it in full, in part or not at all, whatever the reason may be. Every Austrian receives enough to cover absolute essentials and if he has not earned it, the community helps out.

The community either makes up the minimum pension or else provides welfare up to the amount of the minimum pension.

Almost 7,000 old or disabled citizens are supported by the city of Vienna in this manner. One-time relief can also be granted to bridge a destitute situation or cover the period while the pension application is pending.

ONE MIGHT say that the minimum pension is very little and only covers absolute essentials not leaving enough for the old to have any enjoyment in life.

(Locally any senior looking for gainful employment to supplement a retirement income may contact the Senior Citizens' Placement Bureau at 252-5224.)

However, the City of Vienna also makes sure that there is room for a little happiness and sociability without being legally bound to do so.

FIRST there are the Senior Citizen Centers or clubs (Warmestuben (warming rooms)). In 1971 in these clubs 330,000 cups of coffee, 1,145,000 pieces of cake or sweet buns and 57,000 lunches were consumed. Besides food, these centers provide facilities for constructive hobbies. In addition, anyone who has a problem will always find someone there to help and advise, either a colleague or one of the leaders who have all studied the worries of senior citizens.

(Columbus Recreation & Parks Department operates six full-time senior citizens recreation centers. For further information contact the Supervisor's office at 441-0519.)

A film at the club, a visit to the theatre, an evening at the Circus or at the ice revue in the Town Hall—senior citizens receive free tickets to these.

There are also bus trips into the lovely countryside around Vienna, and boat trips up the Danube. About 8,000 Viennese senior citizens take part in these excursions every year.

All these things are just the "first push" for older persons to find sociability and communications among themselves. No Senior Citizen need ever feel lonely in Vienna. (If you need a daily friendly conversation and are a senior citizen, Tele-A-Friend is operated in Franklin County by Columbus Area Community Mental Health Center. Their number is 234-7444.)

AS IN our country, the age of the automobile has left many Viennese old people by the wayside. Even those who could afford to run their own car would find it impossible to find their way in the city traffic. Most older persons in Vienna take trains or buses.

Since it is not possible to keep public transport fares on a level compatible with the minimum pensions, the fares are reduced.

Like the Austrian Federal Railways who issue pensioners' cards which entitle the holder to a 50 percent reduction, the City of Vienna has been issuing such cards for years. (This fall (October 1, 1973) should bring about the rate reduction for senior citizens now the Central Ohio Transit Authority is operating the transit system in the community.)

FOR ALL these available services, the City of Vienna sends information cards to all households in the municipality giving the essential data on social services in the respective districts. There is also an emergency telephone service.

Monday to Friday 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. every Viennese has a direct line to the social worker on duty in the Town Hall. Whether it is a question of reaching an urgent service, obtaining information or just good advice—every Viennese knows he can get help by dialing this special number.

(The special number to call for information and referral is the Franklin County Council on Aging, 661-6-54.)

Housing Authority Offers Homes To Eligible Families

Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority is making available to eligible families a limited number of three bedroom homes. There is no down payment and house payments are determined by income. The homes are located throughout the city of Columbus.

To be considered eligible, a family must have at least three and no more than six members. The family's income must be approximately $500 and no more than $800 per year, depending on the size of the family. The applicant should be working at a steady job and be young enough to carry out the obligations and responsibilities of home ownership.

Interested families can apply at three locations—272 E. Gift St., 513 Souder No. B; and at 2467 Newburgh Dr., between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Families should take with them copies of the birth certificates of their children and a copy of their marriage license. After applying, the Housing Authority will determine if they are eligible by income. Then a home visit will be made to explain more about the program to them.

The next step toward a new home for the couple is for the application to go to a selection committee. The approved families then begin a six-week class that prepares them for home ownership.

Topics for the classes include: Consumer Credit, Basic Law, Consumer Awareness, Insurance, Budgeting and Maintenance. After completing the class, the family would be ready to move as soon as the new home is completed.

The new home buyer will be moving into a new home and a new community. In order to help the home buyer and his neighbors fully enjoy the benefits of both, a community organization made up of home buyers will be formed. The organization will be the backbone of the community government.

All the members in the new development will enjoy the facilities of the community center, a building exclusively for the use of the community.

Anyone with questions may call one of the three offices. The number at the Gift St. office is 228-5871; at the Souder office 221-6004; and at the Newburgh Dr. office, 478-0880.

Kids Care

WEST COLUMBUS-Four Powhatan Avenue youngsters, bored with their summer vacation, decided to do something positive toward helping their fellowman by collecting contributions for CARE, the overseas aid and development agency, last week. Eight year old Lisa Campbell, 75 Powhatan, and her neighbors, Robin, Neva and Jay Houston, 75 Powhatan, spent two days visiting homes in the Westgate area passing out CARE literature and asking for donations. Elated with their success in collecting almost $30, they now plan to expand and stage a carnival before the school season begins. Any school age children in the Columbus area, who want to try to donate funds for CARE's programs, can get the CARE coin boxes and literature for their project by calling the CARE office at 224-5178. Shown counting their donations are (left to right) Robin Houston, Lisa Campbell, Neva Houston and Jay Houston.

K of C Tourney Trophies Presented

WEST COLUMBUS-The Knights of Columbus had their slow pitch tournament state finals at Westgate Park last Sunday. Middletown and Ottawa played for the state championship. The Middletown runnerup trophy was presented by Fred Koenig, state softball chairman. The State Deputy Trophy and first place trophy was presented to the Ottawa team by Joe Reis, state deputy from Columbus Council 2204. The most valuable player was Randy Schrader from the Ottawa Council. Teams eliminated in the finals were Cincinnati, Navarre and Maple Heights, which came in third. Bob Strapp was tournament chairman.

New World Of Electricity Will Illuminate The Fair

THE OHIO Electric Utility Institute will present "A New World of Electricity" in the Electric Building at the Ohio State Fair, August 23 through September 3.

The Institute is comprised of the eight investor-owned utilities in Ohio: The Cincinnati Gas & Electric Company, Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company, Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company, The Dayton Power and Light Company, Monongahela Power Company, Ohio Edison Company, Ohio Power Company, and Toledo Edison Company.

The purpose of "A New World of Electricity" is to show what electricity is doing to provide comfort and convenience in the home, on the farm, in business and industry, and in helping to solve ecology problems.

COOKING demonstrations, five daily, at Noon, 1, 2, 3, and 4 p.m., will be presented by members of the Travelers Aid-International Institute. Eleven different ethnic groups will prepare delicacies of their homelands in these "New World of Cooking" demonstrations. Copies of recipes will be available, and awards will be given at each show.

Other features in the Electric Building include: "Home Entertainment-Crystal Sets to Videotape"—a display of historic radio memorabilia from the Gray History of Wireless Museum and, by contrast, the newest in home entertainment: an Admiral Cartrivision videotape recorder.

The Baldwin Piano Company will be "Teaching Music Electrically" in their exhibit. Actual classes will be held in the Baldwin booth, using the "Electroconnect" and other modern applications of electronics in the teaching of music.

A MODEL of the cooling tower for the William H. Zimmer Nuclear Plant is one of many features in the Nuclear Energy exhibit. Three nuclear plants now under construction in this part of the country will be highlighted in the exhibit, and "Uncle Ben," a huge animated light bulb patterned after Ben Franklin, will tell the story of nuclear energy.

The Farm Food Factory of the Future, designed and built by the Ohio Edison Company, incorporates ideas, structures and equipment available enabling the farmer to produce more food and fiber with less labor and expense, electrically.

Two beautiful Garden Lighting Displays show both outdoor and indoor garden lighting. The outdoor display highlights lawn lanterns, ground floods, border and path lights, etc. The garden setting includes a variety of flowers.

THE INDOOR garden Lighting exhibit, entitled "Light Gardening-Bright Ideas for Growing Plants Indoors," shows how lighting simulates sunlight so that plants can thrive year-round. The hobby has thousands of enthusiasts in his area. Industry exhibits include Electric Heating, Microwave Cooking and the Westinghouse Cool-Heat Range.

Two Ohio companies, Black and Clawson and Armco Steel, are presenting displays showing how their companies are participating in recycling and ecology activities. Other ecology displays show the recycling of paper and fragmenting automobiles.

"Electricity in Hospitals" and "Electricity in Schools" show the many ways in which electricity aids health and helps our children in various learning processes.

WHEN YOU visit the Ohio State Fair, be sure to see "A New World of Electricity" in the Electric Building.

Balloon Race Will Be Fair Highlight

It will be "Up, Up and Away" during the 6th Annual 7-Up International Balloon Race at the 1973 Ohio State Fair.

Lift-off is set for 12 noon, Friday, August 31, from the infield area.

In making the announcement, Vic Lucas, General Manager of the Ohio State Fair, noted that although balloon racing is a relatively new sport in this country, "the 7-Up International Balloon Race at the Ohio State Fair is now the most continuously held race at one location that is officially sanctioned anywhere in the world."

Among the ten entrants for the race will be Dennis Floder of Flint, Michigan. Floder, currently United States national Champion, flies under the name of Captain Phineas Fog, the hero of Jules Verne's Around the World in 80 Days.

Also entered in the tournament will be an entry from France called the "Paris Match," sponsored by the magazine of the same name.

Lucas added that the President of the Balloon Federation of England will be a special guest at the 7-Up International Balloon Race. "He'll be on hand to observe how these events are staged in this country," Lucas said.

Courtland Communications Buys New York Papers

Courtland Communications Corporation, a Cleveland based multi-media chain, has announced the acquisition of Southern New York Publishers, Inc. of Monticello, New York, the publisher of Republican Watchman News, Liberty Evening News and Watchman News Shopping Guide.

The announcement of the acquisition was made jointly by Eldon C. Gensheimer, Executive Vice President of Courtland Communications, and Rubin Katz, President of Southern New York Publishers, Inc.

The three newspapers published by Southern New York Publishers, Inc. have total circulation in excess of 31,245 and according to Gensheimer the acquisition of these three newspapers completes a 3-year master plan through which Courtland achieved total circulation in the New York counties of Rockland, Orange and Sullivan.

"We are now able to offer our advertisers complete saturation of all three counties," stated Gensheimer, "with only one advertising purchase—an advantage that no other newspaper can provide."

Gensheimer went on to say, "We purchased Rockland Leader, Inc. of Nanuet, New York in June 1972 which enabled us to offer complete distribution in Rockland County. Then came Hartwood Communications Corporation of Warwick, New York in October 1972 which gave us a major foothold in Orange County. We finalized our coverage of Orange County last month when we acquired the Orange County Free Press. Southern New York Publishers, Inc. now gives us complete saturation in adjoining Sullivan County."

Gensheimer announced that Rubin Katz will remain on as General Manager of the new Courtland subsidiary and that the company expects no change in either format or personnel.

This acquisition brings the number of publications in the Courtland chain to 26 with total circulation in excess of 210,000.

Courtland Communications owns six other publishing companies - in Englewood, New Jersey - Palisades Newspapers, Inc.; in Euclid, Ohio - Collinwood Publishing Corporation; in Columbus, Ohio - Gibraltar Publishing Company; in St. Clair County, Michigan - The Independent Press-The Review. Courtland also owns two printing plants located in Nanuet, New York and Richmond, Michigan, as well as radio stations WFAS-AM and WWYD-FM, full-time stations located in Westchester County, New York.

American Packages A Premium Product

Flight Attendants (Not Hostesses) Fill The Air With Beauty, Care

By Ray Adams

HEY, THERE do you have a healthy, vibrant appearance?

A well proportioned figure? Good posture and graceful walk? Hair well groomed and smartly styled? A clear, well cared for complexion? Hands that are smooth and perfectly manicured? Meticulous wardrobe appearance? A good dental display?

AT LEAST 20 year old? A female—or male? Then with these and other high standard qualifications you just might qualify for American Airlines Flight Attendant training.

The days of female ONLY are gone yet most of those who qualify are of this beautiful species. Ask the man or woman who travels via the airlines a lot which they prefer.

We did and the women won out 17-1.

AMERICAN Airlines Port Columbus Manager Sidney Small, American Airlines Flight Service Supervisor Carl Wimmer and two Flight Attendants, Judy O'Dell (Dickson, Tennessee) and Joan Biggs, New York, were all compatible with information on the ins and outs of becoming a Flight Attendant.

They all included in their package these important items—you MUST like people, be a good conversationalist and know your job thoroughly. Flight Attendant Judy O'Dell attended Middle Tennessee State for two years and worked with emotionally disturbed adolescents. After college she worked in several businesses getting to know more about people.

She's relatively new to American Airlines with four months under her wing and looks forward to a rewarding career.

"You must be tolerant of people's feelings," she told us. "It's self-satisfaction to know you've made someone's first flight a little easier or have comforted someone who just needed a good listener."

Joan Biggs echoed Judy's remarks and added, "You must want to work hard and always be willing to continuously learn to stay on top of your position."

FLIGHT Service Director Carl Wimmer who lives on Columbus' North Side told us that his work entails a lot of closely-knit public relations in making everyone's flight, from pilot to passenger a memorable event.

"I try to observe the kind of service the flight attendants give without a critical evaluation. I enjoy telling them what they are doing right—the plus factor—so that they will know someone has recognized their assets and this gives them a sense of pride."

He continued, "A smile is a great umbrella when you're in the air and our Flight Attendants have the kind of warm smiles that put passengers at ease. You must be flexible as a Flight Attendant since most people are apprehensive of flying especially when it's their first time."

HE ADDED, "Those who want to become Flight Attendants would be wise to get public contact jobs such as sales clerks and to like. This way they will know how much of people they can handle prior to the time they apply to the Airlines."

Sidney Small believes that at least two years of some advanced education (and even a full four-year college degree) have many advantages to those who would seek Flight Attendant careers.

"A college education shows that the person has stuck it through to try to reach a goal. Those who continue learning after they have the degree use that education to its full benefit," he remarked. "We want the best educated person we can get who fits our other requirements. The competition is keen and those who eventually qualify are not only terrific employees but terrific people."

New Albany High School graduate Vicki Ranney has her heart set on becoming a Flight Attendant. Her present height, though, five foot one and three-fourths puts her the shade under that means no.

Small outlined some of the basic requirements that Flight Attendants are required to have from the information sheet sent to all who inquire.

CITIZENSHIP
Must be U.S. Citizen. We are restricting our recruitment to United States citizens or aliens who are already United States residents with permanent visas.

Vision
Vision must be at least 20-60 in each eye separately. If vision is not this good, correction must be used to attain at least the 20-60 standard. Only contact lenses are acceptable for correction and the wearer must be able to tolerate lenses without signs of eye irritation for at least ten (10) hours per day.

Education
The applicants must have a high school diploma or a General Education Development rating equivalent to high school graduation. College level education is very desirable, and will be considered in the applicant's favor in evaluating qualifications. The applicant who has not had the opportunity to obtain college training should have two years of work experience, if possible. Part-time or vacation work experience is considered a plus for college students. Work in contact with the public is usually most beneficial in preparing for a Flight Attendant career.

Suggested Preparatory Courses

If you are still in school, we suggest the following preparatory courses listed below which will supply basic fundamental knowledge necessary in the constant contact with people of varying tastes and temperaments, care of children and sick persons, serving of meals, etc.

Not to be forgotten is health to assure a vibrant appearance and a well proportioned figure which is so important to the Jet Age Flight Attendant.

Psychology, English, Sociology, Public Speaking, Nurses Aid, First Aid, Physiology, Nutrition or Home Economics, Hygiene, Languages, Music, Art, Current Events, Geography, Physical Education.

Height
Height is measured in stocking feet with hair pressed down on the top of the head. The applicant who is just a "shade" under 63 inches in height, or over 72 inches, will not qualify. Sorry, but no waivers can be granted in this or any of the other requirements.

Weight
Weight must be in proportion to height. A table giving maximum weights for specific heights is available on request. Also included is the maximum hip circumference permitted for each height. Hip measurements should be taken at the largest circumference. Applicants whose figure proportions exceed the maximums will not be selected for training.

Personal Appearance

1. A healthy, vibrant appearance.
2. A well proportioned figure-physique (see height and weight table).
3. Good posture and graceful walk.
4. Hair well groomed and smartly styled. (If color treated, it must have a natural looking appearance, be in good healthy condition, and must be complementary to the skin tone.)
5. A clear, well cared for complexion. (Disturbing scars, moles, large pores, noticeable blemishes and excessive facial hair are not acceptable.)
6. Hands that are smooth and perfectly manicured. (Nails and cuticles should look perfect and well cared for.)

7. Meticulous wardrobe appearance. (Your clothes are a vivid expression of your personality; good taste and judgement are very important.)

8. A good dental display is extremely important; fairly straight teeth, good bite, clean and white.

Training Schools
American Airlines has no interest, financial or otherwise, in any commercial airline training school. We do not require nor prefer that applicants be graduates of such schools.

No school is authorized to guarantee its graduates employment by American Airlines, Inc., or even preferential consideration.

Our employment is based upon a personal interview and an exhaustive investigation into the applicant's total background. Our aim always is to employ the persons best qualified for the position in question. In most classifications any necessary training is given by us after employment.

American Airlines has its own Flight Service College outside Dallas, Texas, where Flight Attendants and Airline Pilots and Flight Engineers get their training.

Some make it—some don't. Flight Service Director Carl Wimmer told us there are some area persons at these schools.

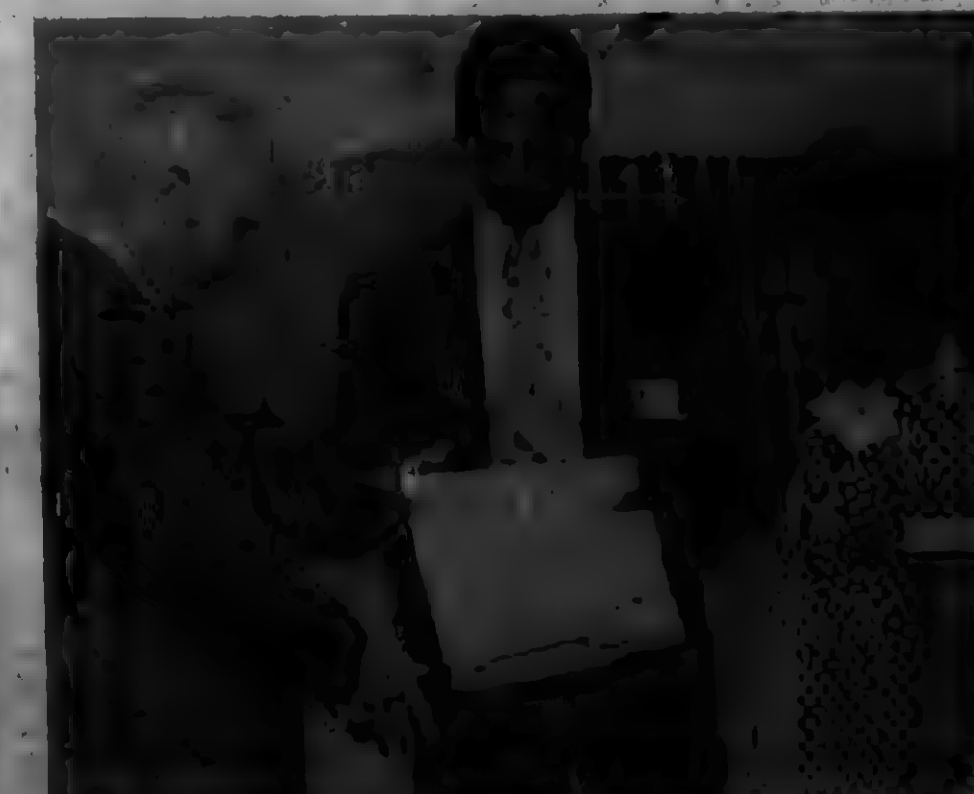

That will be a later story when we pay a visit to that spot.

FLIGHT SERVICE Director Carl Wimmer lets everyone know all there is to know about American Airlines and here reviews some high points with Vicki Ranney.

IT'S ALL IN A DAY'S work for two of those people as American Airlines Port Columbus Manager Sidney Small, left, and American Airlines Project Manager for Airport planning Carl High review some plans while Vicki Ranney intently listens.

Hair-The Sweater Girl

'IN' fashion
with Tess Stern

Very put-together with shoulder length pageboy with fuzzy curly sides and flipped up bangs...wearing Outlander's sleeveless V-neck vest with matching blue striped cardigan.

A short layered cut with puffed and tousled bangs and close sides...the perfect style for Halston's floor length red sweater dress...his signature cardigan tied loosely over the shoulders.

A sleek, short cut with flipped up side and waved bangs above a camel sweater set and paley shirt by Knapp for J.L. Sport.

AS A PROFESSIONAL FASHION WATCHER, I've discovered, that for Fall, proportions are switching around...the young woman who has grown up in snug sweaters and wide pants and shaggy hair, is now going to flip over the bulkier sweaters, straighter pants and skirts...the new longer proportions, the fanny sweater pulls, shades of the sloppy joe, and everything that is big, baggy, bulky, slouchy and roomy.

If you've been wondering...where is the hair headed? During the Hair and Beauty Show in New York, for the fashion press...we asked leading hairdressers throughout the country, and the magic word was "relaxed"...relaxed which doesn't mean untamed. Fall's sweater girl will be put together and refined, from the hair down to her shoes...above all, the hair will be neat.

DAVID MILLER, spokesman for the Trimmers throughout the country, sees the newest hair cut as shorter, with the big emphasis on bangs...waved, straight and bluntly cut, flipped...in all variations. Perfect for the new abawi collars, the tilted berets, the tweedy men's hats, and the skimpy brimmed cloche.

PIERRE HENRI, Style Director for Saks Fifth Avenue Beauty Shops, envisions his sweater girl look as short, sensuous, and curly, with emphasis on the upturned, fringed over the forehead bangs.

VINCENT ROPPATTE, Style Director of the Enrico Caruso Salon in New York, sees his sweater girl with all the interest up front, with puffed and tousled bangs and short close sides...a perfect look for the high necklines on most of this year's sweaters.

FROM AROUND the country we heard words like "flipped up fronts", "curly sides", "pageboy". Hair has a definite proportion and shape. The Sweater Girl for fall is going to find out she loves looking beautifully turned in instead of just thrown together...and she'll most likely turn a few heads in the process!

Go—"where the living is Easy"...Sunset Hills Estates.

Just a 20 minute drive from downtown Columbus in Sunset Hills Estates. There is every convenience and recreation facility planned to make living worth while. 220 rolling acres, including a 13 acre wall stocked lake offers plenty of room to roam and relax. Jim R. Bohn (right) points to the plan view of Sunset Hills. A nine hole regulation golf course will be a popular feature for future residents.

James R. Bolin the son of the developer stands beside a finished Modular home. Minimum size of the modular home is 12' x 60'. Each home will have a 10 x 30 covered patio. Blacktop parking area for 2 cars. Each home is skirted for a finished appearance. Nothing is crowded together. There are Cul-de-Sac streets and rectangular grid plots with no more than 12 houses to a block.

This home is ready to be skirting in. Modular homes are sturdy and well planned with all the latest in features and construction. All utilities are underground. When you buy a home in Sunset Hills you get a complete home. There is a monthly economical maintenance fee. If you own a modular home 2 years or less in age you can move it on to an attractive lot.

When you stand on the shores of this beautiful lake you start planning your new home site. The lake is well stocked. Around the lake are hiking trails, picnic areas and good terrain for winter sports. No-swimming here not been overlooked. A generous size pool will be centrally located for all the folks of Sunset Hills. Starting price for a new home is around $14,500 (this includes all accessories).

Winners are selected by an independent scholarship committee of educators.

Selection is based on test scores, information on high school academic records, extracurricular activities, school recommendations and the students' own statements.

Miss Gelfius was salutatorian for Westland's class of 1973 out of 396 students. She was the senior class treasurer, attended Buckeye Girl's State as well as being a National Merit

AROUND TOWN

Freedom Tree At Ramada South

BY THE TIME you read this, yours truly will be experiencing the wonderful southern hospitality of Atlanta, Georgia. During my week's stay in the 'swinging city,' I plan on visiting Atlanta Underground, and several of their better clubs and restaurants. Be sure to watch this column in weeks to come for some interesting stories on what's going on in Atlanta.

In the meantime, back in good ole Columbus town, Freedom Tree is their current attraction at the Ramada Inn-South. If you are lovers of the top twenty or forty type of group, then you'll dig this one, that's their bag.

Coming on with good, solid arrangements, Freedom Tree comes across as an entertaining musical ensemble. What they may lack in showmanship, they make up for in musical talents. In fact, this is what saves them. The instrumental abilities of all four is more than acceptable. Terry Laasopana turns in a rather fine job with the sticks and brushes. Guitarist Jim Gombatto shows some fairly nice work with the electric strings.

Jim Kupl at the organ does

Joe Lord At Imperial North

Up at the Imperial House-North there is a totally different type of musical some fancy work, that pleases the people. Louis Fusilli, plays sax, flute, congo drums and handles the M.C. work. He does fine in all categories. Louis produces nice, and I do mean nice, sounds on the sax.

Then there is part and pretty, Nancy Berger, a gal owning a voice that grabs you by the ears. When she sings, Nancy means business. She doesn't play around with the lyrics or melody line. While she may lack an individual style, Nancy does have a pretty definite approach.

The main problem with the Freedom Tree is their almost total lack of pacing and movement of the act. There are too many dead spots between numbers. It needs to be much tighter and much stronger.

Musicians they are, showmen they are not. That is why I said at the beginning of the review, that if you enjoy the top hits on today's charts plays in a contemporary manner, then you will have yourself a pleasant evening with Freedom Tree at Ramada Inn South.

Then there is cute Joanie Stuart, one of my favorite local singers. I have not seen nor heard her work for a while, and it is a welcome sound to hear Joanie again. This girl, too, has appeared regularly on local television, and I know that she has many friends who will be glad to know they can catch her at the Imperial House-North. Put all the members together and you will be pleased to hear music played the way good music should be played. The Joe Lord Quartet deals mostly with the good songs of yesterday. It is the type of music where you can hum along and tap your feet with, if you want to.

The musicians are at the Imperial House-North Monday through Saturday. Joanie is there only on Friday and Saturdays. However, I feel, that she may be singing a few more nights a week. Let's hope so, because it is a treat to hear a good, local vocalist. Columbus deserves more of Joanie Stuart.

So you readers who enjoy this style of music make sure that you stop in at the Imperial House-North. Let the hotel know that this is what you want. Joe Lord and his group will be there for a few more weeks. Plan on visiting them a couple of times.

Shipping Around

Most all of the Ohio State Fair stars will be staying at the Ramada Inn-South. Denise Scalzo, of the motel really pulled off a big win when she landed people like Helen Reddy, Mac Davis, The Jackson Five, Sonny and Cher, Charley Pride, Dionne Warwick, Doc Severinsen

Sometimes I'll even wait until my fish is so tired he's laying belly up when I lead him to the net. Most of the fun of fishing is playing a fish after you have him hooked. I've seen too many anglers reel in so fast they'll pull the hook out of the fishes mouth. Always remember, don't try to land a fish until the fight is out of him and always not a fish head first. A fish that goes in tail first has a better chance to jump out.

Kelly's Island Located along the north shore of this picturesque Lake Erie Island, this 304 acre park has a class "B" campground with approximately 125 sites, all within walking distance of the beach.

Several large sites are also available for groups using the area. The island can be reached by private boat or via ferry service from Sandusky of Lakeside. Air travel service is also available from Sandusky.

Deep grooves in the limestone bedrock carved by the glacier of 13,000 to 15,000 years ago and pictures inscribed in a rock by early Indian inhabitants of the area are among the sites to be seen on the Island.

Seasons Set Ohio's season for four popular marsh and shore birds has been established, along with the early teal season. Gallinules, Sora and Virginia Rails may be taken from September 1 through November 9. Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. The daily bag limit is 4 with possession limit of 8. A federal migratory waterfowl stamp is required.

Mercury Level A report on the levels of mercury contamination in Ohio's major Lake Erie tributaries has been published by the Department of Natural Resources. The report, compiled by David A. Slith of the department's Division of Geological Survey, describes the laboratory methods used and contains tables showing the mercury content of samples collected from six tributary harbor systems, including the Ashtabula, Black, Grand, Cuyahoga and Maumee Rivers and Sandusky Bay.

Identified as Information Circular No. 40 "Mercury Concentrations in Sediments of the Lake Erie Basin, Ohio," the report will be of interest to agencies concerned with the quality of the environment.

Freedom Tree At Ramada South
BY THE TIME you read this, your truly will be experiencing the wonderful southern hospitality of Atlanta, Georgia. During my week's stay in the swinging city, I plan on visiting Atlanta Underground, and several of their better clubs and restaurants. Be sure to watch this column in weeks to come for some interesting stories on what's going on in Atlanta.

In the meantime, back in good old Columbus town, Freedom Tree is the current attraction at the Ramada Inn-South. If you are lovers of the top twenty or forty type of group, then you'll dig this one, that's their bag. Coming on with good, solid arrangements, Freedom Tree comes across as an entertaining musical ensemble. What they may lack in showmanship, they make up for in musical talents. In fact, this is what saves them. The instrumental abilities of all four is more than acceptable. Terry Lassponara turns in a rather fine job with the sticks and brushes. Guitarist Jim Gombetto shows some fairly nice work with the electric strings.

Jim Kapi at the organ does some fancy work, that pleases the people. Louis Fusilli, plays sax, flute, congo drums and handles the M.C. work. He does fine in all categories. Louis produces nice, and I do mean nice, sounds on the sax. Then there is purt and pretty, Nancy Berger, a gal owning a voice that grabs you by the ears. When she sings, Nancy means business. She doesn't play around with the lyrics or melody line. While she may lack an individual style, Nancy does have a pretty definite approach.

The main problem with the Freedom Tree is their almost total lack of pacing and movement of the act. There are too many dead spots between numbers. It needs to be much tighter and much stronger. Musicians they are, showman they are not. That is why I said at the beginning of the review, that if you enjoy the top hits on today's charts plays in a contemporary manner, then you will have yourself a pleasant evening with Freedom Tree at Ramada Inn South.

How To Hook And Not A Fish

PROBABLY the most told fish story is the one that got away. It's happened to all of us, we don't expect to land every fish that strikes, but you and I can improve our odds with a few of these tips.

Some of the reasons we miss hooking a fish is that we strike too late and fail to set the hook, or we may set the hook too fast and take the lure away from the fish, or we set the hook with too much force and break our lines and lose everything including the lure.

I've found the best way to set a hook is to keep my rod tip parallel to the water as I retrieve and when a fish strikes I pull back to the right or left keeping tension on my rod, then once I feel it's hooked, I'll lift the rod tip over my head keeping tension while I let the fish fight the force of the rod until he tires and is ready to land.

Several large sites are also available for groups using the area. The island can be reached by private boat or via ferry service from Sandusky at Lakeside. Air travel service is also available from Sandusky.

Deep grooves in the limestone bedrock carved by the glacier of 13,000 to 15,000 years ago and pictures inscribed in a rock by early Indian inhabitants of the area are among the sites to be seen on the island.

Sometimes I'll even wait until my fish is so tired he's laying belly up before I lead him to the net.

Most of the fun of fishing is playing a fish after you have him hooked. I've seen too many anglers reel in so fast they'll pull the hook out of the fishes mouth.

Always remember, don't try to land a fish until the fight is out of him and always net a fish head first. A fish that goes in tail first has a better chance to jump out.

Kelly's Island

Located along the north shore of this picturesque Lake Erie Island, this 394 acre park has a class "B" campground with approximately 125 sites, all within walking distance of the beach.

Woodcock and Wilson's Snipe may be taken from September 17 through November 20. Shooting hours for both woodcock and snipe are from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset, with a daily bag limit of eight snipe and five woodcock and a possession limit of 16 snipe and 10 woodcock after the first day.

A federal migratory bird stamp is not required to hunt these species, however, they may be taken only with a shotgun capable of holding no more than three shells.

Ohio hunters often overlook the hunting opportunity provided by these excellent game birds. Not only are they excellent table fare, but they provide the sportsman early season hunting field and an opportunity to sharpen his shooting eye for the

Seasons Set

Ohio's season for four popular marsh and shore birds has been established, along with the early teal season. Gallinules, Sora and Virginia Rails may be taken from September 1 through November 9. Shooting hours are from sunrise to sunset. The daily bag limit is 4 with possession limit of 8. A federal migratory waterfowl stamp is required.

Cherry Creek Is A Very Pretty Spot

Cherry Creek was opened in 1970 by Ernest G. Fritsche and since that time more than 100 apartments and 130 condominiums and single family dwellings have been built.

Covering an area of over 300 acres, Cherry Creek will have approximately 1200 homes when all building is complete.

The most recent addition to the area is the luxurious Clubhouse which is for the exclusive use of the residents of Cherry Creek.

This 14,356 square foot Clubhouse includes spacious lounge, indoor swimming pool, saunas, exercise rooms, meeting rooms and game rooms. On the Clubhouse grounds are tennis courts, large patio and barbecue facilities. An outdoor swimming pool is under construction.

Supervising activities at the Clubhouse is Dennis Griffin, full-time Recreational Director. He plans all social activities held at the Clubhouse.

Future plans for Cherry Creek call for the building of a shopping center that will include: supermarket, beauty parlor, barber shop, drug store, drycleaners and hardware store.

Cherry Creek is the most recent area to be developed by Ernest G. Fritsche

Let's Tour Beautiful Ohio

Ohio River Trip Would Be A Great Adventure

(One of a series of short tours of Ohio travel attractions prepared by Columbus Auto Club Travel Department)

An auto trip along the Ohio River from historic Gallipolis to Portsmouth where the Scioto River joins the Ohio with possible side trips to West Virginia and Kentucky or vice versa is this week's AAA tour suggestion.

Gallipolis, "City of the Galls," was founded by French Royalists in 1793, the third permanent settlement in Ohio by settlers fleeing the French Revolution.

OUR HOUSE, built in 1819, as an early inn and tavern has been restored and is now administered by the Ohio Historical Society. Its taproom, ballroom, and other public rooms are of interest to tourists. Lafayette was entertained at Our House in 1825.

The late O. O. "Odd" McIntyre, a famed New York columnist, is Gallipolis' most famous citizen.

Rio Grande College is located a few miles north of Gallipolis. Another point of interest at Rio Grande is the 2000-acre Bob Evans farm, open to the public as a rural community center.

A brief out-of-state trip would be to nearby Point Pleasant, West Virginia, where the Great Kanawha River joins the Ohio River.

This resort and industrial area is believed to have been used first by George Washington in a survey trip in the 1790's. Many relics are on display from the Battle of Point Pleasant in the Mansion House, erected in 1798 and now the oldest building still standing in the Kanawha Valley.

For those making the trip to Portsmouth with a few hours additional travel time, a bridge crossing the Ohio River into Kentucky will bring visitors quickly to such "south of the border" attractions as Greenbo Lake and Greenup Dam with its Riverview observation platform and recreational area.

PORTSMOUTH is no longer the bustling river trade center that was the trademark of this river front city a few years ago. Today there are only occasional business and pleasure calls by boats and barges.

Portsmouth has become a busy industrial city protected by high flood walls.

A few miles away, near Lucasville, is the new maximum security prison that has replaced the Ohio Penitentiary in Columbus.

Twelve miles to the southwest, on State Route 128, near Friendship is the Portsmouth State Park. Just opened the first of this year is the 50-room Shawnee State Lodge, Ohio's newest vacation facility.

The 664-acre recreational tract lies within the 37,000-acre Shawnee State Forest. Swimming, fishing, boating and camping are available here at the 17-acre Roosevelt Lake.

AAA suggests this routing to today's tour area: From Columbus, go south on U.S. 28 to U.S. 35; southeast on U.S. 35 to the tour area.

PROPER POSITION

When you are riding in a car and you see an accident coming, you can often save yourself from serious injury by taking a more favorable position, says your Ohio Department of Highway Safety. When you see a front-end collision coming, the thing to do is lean forward as far as possible. Get yourself in contact with the part of the car's interior in front of you before the collision. At the moment of collision your body bounces forward, picking up speed. So, what to do is to move forward to reduce the distance you will be thrown.

Vapor Lock Causes Explained

One of the problems auto manufacturers have not over come completely—which can be irritating to the motorist—is "vapor lock", the Allstate Motor Club points out.

What causes vapor lock? A fuel pump is full of gas normally. Inside there is a diaphragm that goes up and down. As the diaphragm goes down, it squeezes the gas past a check valve toward the carburetor.

If the fuel pump is filled with vapor, the gas flow is blocked.

The main cause of vapor is excessive heat from the engine, plus outside temperature. The engine overheats, it actually "boils" the fuel in the pump and lines, and vaporization starts. The carburetor is now starving for gas. At this point, the car "stalls".

What can be done once vapor lock occurs? The Allstate Motor Club recommends turning off the engine and allowing it to cool. Open the hood, allowing the air to cool the pump. To speed the cooling process, pour water or other cool, non-flammable liquids on the fuel pump.

When the pump has cooled, the vapor will condense into liquid and the pump will start again.

Although vapor lock occurs primarily in the western states, due to high altitudes, it also occurs when creeping along in bumper-to-bumper traffic on a hot day. The stop-and-go driving causes overheating and the fan is unable to cool the engine.

When stopped in bumper-to-bumper traffic on a hot day the engine maybe cooled by putting the car in park or neutral and accelerating periodically to allow the fan to pull more air through the radiator.

S.W. Schools Ready For Sept. 4 Opening

Gateway—Registration of children who were not in South-Western City Schools last year, and who have not been previously registered will be taken in all South-Western City schools beginning immediately.

Parents of young people in high school are urged to register them as soon as possible in order that schedules may be prepared before the opening of schools Sept. 4.

Schools will be open for registration 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. each weekday.

Schools will open doors Tuesday, Sept. 4, for the new school year. A full day of school will be conducted and school lunchrooms will be in operation. Kindergarten students will not come to school the first week. Their classes will begin Monday, Sept. 10.

Parents are reminded that state law compels students new to the school system to have had immunizations (shots and vaccinations) for communicable diseases including poliomyelitis, smallpox, diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus.

Pupils entering school for the first time must present birth certificates, or equivalent records (hospital records or sworn affidavits by physicians, etc.). However, if equivalent records are presented, the regulation birth certificate must be presented within 30 days.

Almost no changes in attendance areas, or in school boundaries, have been made. Generally, the schools attended by children will be the same as those serving the area last year.

The few changes which have been made are as follows:

Children living in Cherry Creek and adjoining areas will attend Stiles Elementary School. Last year, they attended Prairie Lincoln Elementary School.

Children living in Lake Darby Estates last year so this does not change any child's attendance area but merely begins new assignments.

School buses will operate on schedules very similar to last year. Parents are asked to have children at the bus stops 15 minutes or more earlier than at the close of school last year. After the first day, the bus driver will instruct the students as to the time the bus will be stopping on subsequent days.

Libraries Rate Low Columbus Schools Meet State Standards

By Lisa Ann Doonan
Special Staff Writer

The results of the State Evaluation of Secondary Schools was presented by Ted Mayer, executive director of secondary education, to the Columbus Public School Committee-Of-The-Whole meeting Aug. 14. The results according to Mayer were very high in all areas except in library learning centers.

The reports were compiled by a team of 32 educators in a review that is required by state law every four years.

Included in the review conducted May 2-11, were the Columbus school system's 13 senior high schools, two junior-senior highs, 34 junior highs and the Adult Day and Evening high schools.

The review is to determine whether the schools comply with the state minimum standards in eight general areas that range from administration and physical facilities to the staffing and curriculum.

MAYER SAID that the team that had reviewed the Columbus Schools had reported a "high degree of compliance" and had found that the schools met or exceeded the standards that had been set.

Such words as, "capable, experienced, effective, imaginative, vigorous and dedicated" were used to describe the administration of the 43 schools by the review team.

According to Mayer the reviewers commented on the high morale of the teaching staff, and a commitment by the teachers to provide a good learning climate.

One reviewer felt that the highly diversified curriculum increased the student interest, improved the teacher performance, that it was geared to the needs of the students and the teachers' capability, it was flexible and provided opportunity to teachers to instruct in areas of special interest.

THE REVIEWERS did find that the junior high curriculum was still on a more traditional level of subjects but that the new industrial arts and pre-algebra courses are a step to the curricular revision.

The specialists "had high commendation for the language arts program which was said to be in front ranks of the large urban programs and could possibly be used as a model."

The advances in the social studies through diversification of the program also drew favorable comment along with comment on the mathematics instruction. More individual instruction and practical application were stressed as being needed in the mathematics.

The resources in the arts instruction including the exemplary Arts Impact program were commended, but scheduling deviations due to crowded conditions were mentioned as needing attention.

THE SPECIALIST IN physical education noted with the favor on lifetime sports and outdoor recreation, but noted that the program was too much oriented toward and often dominated by interscholastic athletics in some instances.

The potential of the reading improvement program at the junior high level with its reading teacher-leader in each school and the support of the administration was noted by a specialist observer to say it could well serve as a model for all Ohio Schools.

To help place the data presented in the reports the following information was submitted.

At the senior high school level the eight standards contained 135 sections which are divided into subsections. For the 14 high schools and the junior-senior high schools a total of 68 deficiencies were reported by the review board. This is about 3.5 per cent of the total 1,944 items, this means that 96.5 per cent of the areas reviewed were found to be satisfactory.

At the junior high school level the eight standards contain 100 sections which also have subsections. For the 26 junior high schools a total of 122 deficiencies were reported which is 3.9 per cent potential of 3,124 items which means that 96.1 per cent of the sections were found satisfactory.

THE BOARD ALSO heard an in depth evaluation on vocational education in the Columbus school system.

The program is known as Project PRIDE (Program Review, Improvement, Development and Expansion of Vocational Education); the evaluation was conducted during the past school year in cooperation with the State Department of Education.

Fred Ricketts, director of practical education, said that nearly 1,000 students, parents, teachers, businessmen and tradesmen played an active part in the project, serving as committees that completed the detailed studies of the school systems vocational programs and facilities.

Ricketts said, "that major recommendations of PRIDE call for establishment of advisory committees for all vocational programs, increased time for selected programs, a continuous effort to develop vocational curriculum and additional evaluation."

Overall, Ricketts said, PRIDE found vocational education in the Columbus schools to be healthy and congratulated the school system on its vocational master plan.

Mt. Carmel Committee Studies Patient Care

Columbus—Mount Carmel Medical Center and Mt. Carmel East Hospital have set up a patient care committee to study whether patients are treated with dignity and are made to feel comfortable.

"With hospitals being forced to adopt more businesslike characteristics and adapt to fiscal realities, they often fall into the trap of becoming more and more impersonal," according to Don Smith, director of Public relations.

The committee has been set up to seek answers to the following questions:

"Is the patient being treated as a person and not just as a case? Is the patient really as comfortable as he can be? When the patient is being transported from his room to x-ray do we enable him to maintain his sense of dignity? Is food being kept as warm as it should be? If the patient is in a semi-private room, do we help him maintain the privacy he requires?" And many other areas.

The group is concerned with the comfort and dignity of the individual patient and compassion for the sick as well as professional care and efficiency of hospital use, Smith said.

Patients will also contribute to the study. They will be questioned about their care and their suggestions will be incorporated into the committee's study.

The committee will be composed of a physician chairman and representatives of the Clinical Services, emergency Department, Nursing Service, Administrative Staff, Technological Staff and Pastoral care.

Representatives of all areas of the hospital will be used for resource information also.

New Pastor To Be Installed

There will be an informal reception for the new pastor 3-4 p.m. to which the public is invited. It will be in the "Fellowship Hall" of the parish.

Rev. Wright graduated from Capital University in 1962 and the Lutheran Theological Seminary in 1968.

Buckeye Boys Ranch Breaks Ground For Pool

Grove City—For years members of the Sustaining Board I have worked to raise money for the construction of a swimming pool at Buckeye Boys Ranch in Grove City and last week ground was broken for the pool.

Since the Ranch is a rehabilitation and treatment center for emotionally and socially disturbed boys from 10 to 18 years, one of the most important phases of their treatment is in the area of physical education, where an outlet for pent-up emotions and energies can be constructively released.

Instructions in swimming and life-saving techniques also will be given for both educational and safety purposes.

The Scientific Advisory Board of the Ranch has highly recommended such a program as fulfilling a real need in the readjustment of the young boys in the care of the Ranch.

Planning for the pool has been carried forward by a committee consisting of Mr. Richard Kuhnheim of Worthington, Service Board Chairman, Athletic Facilities Planning Committee; Mrs. Philip Corey, president of Sustaining Board I which is financing the pool; Mrs. John T. Mount, Project Chairman for Board I; Mrs. Eugene Yonta, Chairman of the Board of Buckeye Boys Ranch Service Board; Les Bostic, Executive Director of the Ranch; William Gardner of Westerville, member of the Board of Trustees of the Ranch; with the assistance of Mike Peppe who served as a consultant for the committee.

Columbus—Major improvements were made by the Columbus Public Schools during the past year, according to a report issued by school superintendent Dr. John Ellis.

The 11-page report, entitled "1972-73: A Year of Improvement," reviews progress made by the schools in several key areas.

In an introductory letter to readers, Ellis says the report "emphasizes positive action because we have had a very positive year."

INCLUDED IN the report is a review of the school construction program, staff development and human relations activities for the year, and development and implementation of the Columbus Plan.

Also covered in detail are numerous improvements in the instructional programs of elementary, junior and senior high schools, advances in career and vocational education, special education, adult education and several special projects.

Other sections of the report review developments during the year in the areas of personnel and finance.

In the report's conclusion, Ellis states that "a review of the year's accomplishments helps us see that substantial progress has been made and that 1972-73 was truly a year of improvement for the Columbus schools."

HE POINTS OUT, however, that 1972-73 "was not a year in which all our problems were solved," and highlights some difficulties facing the school system.

The superintendent commends the Board of Education, the school system staff, PTA members and the people of Columbus for making the city "a very special place," and concludes: "We face the new school year with a sense of readiness and eagerness to continue serving the growing Columbus community."

The Answer Is 'Know'

JUST ABOUT every cliché has been used to get the message across of the value of education along the road to success. What hasn't been emphasized enough, we feel, is the necessity of continuing that education once success, at any measured degree, has been reached. Too, those who want to develop later life skills for personal development or to reach perfection goals in hobbies, often wait until "too late" for the start of the learning process. A guide to the answer of some of these philosophies is in today's issue of The Spectator. It's titled "Back To School and On To College" and is worthwhile reading, both side and copy for people of all ages. In today's complex world "The Answer Is Know" to the universal question of understanding our universe.

Chubby Girls And Teens Never Had It So Good!

'IN' fashion
with Tess Stern

Junior-Teens have a ball in Hang Ten football jersey knit shirt with red 10 and stripes, topping a stripe cotton knit rugby shirt and blue denim straight leg jeans. A-line football-inspired dress in navy Orion knit with white patches at elbow...striped knit ribbing on cuffs and turtleneck...Chubby Girls sizes 14 1/2-16 1/2.

White Sherpa Chubbie with striped sweater-knit trim, topping variety-bright cordotti-knit pants...matching sweater knit vest. Junior-Teens warm-up in this red-fur take-for Chubbie with real suede trim... teamed with colorized plaid cotton pants.

Fashions available at Lane-Bryant's Eastland, and Westland Shopping Centers.

SHOPPING FOR BACK-TO-SCHOOL CLOTHES is more exciting this fall than ever before...and Lane Bryant gets into the excitement with their Varsity Look in specialized sizes for Chubby Girls and Junior-Teens...sportswear and dresses that carry that "old school spirit".

FEATURED IS a charming collection of short dresses that look like elongated letterman-sweaters and football jerseys...and two-piece dresses that are as cute as a cheerleader's uniform, in bright school colors. Silhouettes are flattering...tent and A-line, giving a slimming look to the well-rounded girl...with plenty of new fashion mileage for school and extra-curricular occasions.

SPORTSWEAR, too, is reaching new goals...a pre-coordinated look. Just like grownups, there's a new focus on longer sweaters, chubbie jackets and super-looking short coats. Girls will flip over the longer sweaters (many in fancy lengths), the sweater sets, varsity cardigans, and the shetland crew-neck pullovers. Collars come in for their share of excitement, especially the shawl collar on a wrappy sweater-jacket, boxy pea-coats and duffle coats are the fashionable way to weather the big freeze...everything big, baggy, bulky, slouchy and roomy.

LOOKING FORWARD to that fall football game, there's nothing more wearable and groovy than fake fur...for instance, a red-fur take for jacket with real suede trim...or a white Sherpa Chubbie with striped sweater knit. Wool plaid coats are winners too. Under these super tops are narrower pants and jeans, plus the newest fashion look of short flippy skirts.

It was Ladies Night Out for the Civitan Club of West Columbus Aug. 21 as members and their wives dined at the Chubbie at Scioto Downs and attended the races. The club is pleased to announce that they have made the final payment on the scoreboard they donated to Westland High School as one of their community projects.

Mrs. Thomas Schneider, 4833 Taunton Way, will hold an informal coffee at her home Aug. 27 for members and guests of the Lincoln Village Women's Club.

There will be a square dance on the blacktop at St. Cecilia School, 440 Norton Rd., Saturday evening, Sept. 1 from 9 until 12. Admission will be $5 a couple. Sweet corn will be sold and beverage provided.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Noblitt, 4443 Musket Way, have returned from a three week tour of Europe which included Istanbul, Turkey and Athens, Greece. Their daughter, Carol, is spending the summer studying German and Art at the University of Vienna in Austria.

The James Meyer family wishes to thank those who patronized their muscular dystrophy carnival at which they made slightly over $80 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Dance students of Nancy Bailey Moore will be appearing at the Ohio State Fair in the Lausche building Aug. 27 at 2 p.m. Many of Mrs. Moore's students are Lincoln Village residents. Sandy and Shelley Lewis will present a mother-daughter act.

The Kiddettes, consisting of Christy Johnston, Chris Neff, Triana Glassburn, Elizabeth Gerris, Lori Baker, Anna Easterday, Debbie and Lisa Daniels and Darla Lang will perform as a group. These girls will also do their own specialty numbers.

In addition, Lori Peck, Beth Davis, Teresa Snow, Robyn Burris, Courtney Neff, Nicki Cook, Cassie Baker, Kelli Wilkinson, Leslie Godall, Gay McLaughlin and Dena Lang will be dancing and twirling.

Also Aug. 27 at noon, Debbie Glassburn of Palmetto Street, a student and teacher under Mrs. Moore will present her students.

They are Tobyn Burris performing jazz and gymnastics; Linda Smith, tap and jazz; Susie Smith, tap

Toastmistress Club To Meet Aug. 29

Lincoln Village-To complement the theme, "The Discovery of Humor," various members of the Columbus Toastmistress Club were asked by Toastmistress Betty Ashbaugh to give brief extemporaneous remarks about a humorous experience during the club's regular meeting held Wednesday, Aug. 15, at the Jai Lai Restaurant.

The program also featured five to eight minute speeches related to the theme from three members-LaDonna Cherry, Elizabeth Irwin and Bea Thurell, who were introduced by the Toastmistress for the evening, Juanita Badgett.

A new member, Ruth Walker, was inducted by membership chairman, Jane Chester. Mrs. Walker is an assistant vice president of Railroad Savings and Loan Co. She lives in Lincoln Village.

Education chairman Mrs. Millie Cushman outlined a new method of speech evaluation to be used during the current six-month term. Speeches will be evaluated by a panel of members, who will be asked to critique various aspects and portions of a speech. It is hoped that this method will lead to more constructive, enlightening, educational criticism with the end result of greater improvement in the member's speech technique. The next meeting of the group will be held Wednesday, Aug. 29, at the Jai Lai based on the theme, "The Discovery of the Value of Work."

Local Artist Entered At Fair

Mrs. Robert F. Lauer, 104 S. Westgate, entertained guests Aug. 18 with the playing of bridge and dessert.

This was a regular bridge session of the group.

However, it was special this month because Mrs. Lauer's daughter Sharon Visentine honored the ladies with the showing of some of her portraits. "S. Visentine" has the distinction of having been chosen to enter one of her paintings in the professional class of art division of the Ohio State Fair.

Sharon formerly lived on the Hilltop and it is hoped by Mrs. Lauer that residents take the time to visit the display of her work at the Fair this year.

Open Monday thru Saturday 10 A.M.-9:30 P.M., Sunday 12-5 P.M.

It's Fair Time. The Ohio State Fair opens tomorrow, and what a fair this year's 1973 extravaganza promises to be. The entertainment lineup looks like to Who's Who of Hollywood and Broadway, plus a host of spectacular special events.

Opening the free grandstand entertainment this year is the one and only Mac Davis and Helen Reddy. They will be there this Thursday and Friday. Followed by a dynamic group for the younger generations, Rare Earth. Then on Sunday, one of the State Fair's favorites, Doc Severinsen along with Dione Warwick will headline the grandstand entertainment.

Monday, August 27 sees the Osmonds performing for two days. Wednesday is the big blockbuster, the one that everyone is talking about, Sonny & Cher. Thursday finds The 5th Dimension on stage, followed on Friday by the Jackson Five.

Saturday, September 1, Charlie Pride takes over the entertainment at the grandstand, with Al Green doing his thing on Sunday. The n closing out the fair on Labor Day is the entire troupe from the Grand Ole Opry.

That's the free entertainment schedule at the grandstand. There are a lot more exciting happenings.

The N. R. Fufstuf Show will perform twice a day for the children. Then something for everybody at the fair, the Schlitz 40-Horse Hitch. This is a real sight, one that you haven't seen since 1904. The horses, driver, wagon and harnesses are a story themselves.

For you who enjoy watching your favorite local and area TV personalities in person, both WLWC and WBNS-TV will be broadcasting several live shows each day from the fair. WLWC will televise the Bob Braun, Paul Dixon and Phil Donahue shows with their entire casts.

WBNS-TV presents Friendly Junction, Flipflo At The Fair, Farmtime At The Fair and a couple of interesting shows hosted by Dan Imel throughout the fair. Ten Balloonists will compete in an International Balloon Race at 11 noon, Friday August 31. There will even be an entry from France.

For those who enjoy a good boxing match, The Sixth Annual Ohio State Fair National Amateur Boxing Tournament will take place at the fair, with over 300 youngsters from throughout the United States participating.

As always, the famed All Ohio Boys Band, The All Ohio Youth Choir and the All Ohio Youth Symphony will be making several appearances during the fair.

There are countless more exciting events every hour of every day during this years Ohio State Fair. So, follow their motto, "Let Yourself Go! Go to the FAIR."

Currently doing a fine job of entertaining the people at Lincoln Lodge is a group called, This 'N That. This 'N That is not a dynamic duo, just one of the most enjoyable ones that have come down the pike in quite some time.

Dick Bittner is the organist and Ron Foeller handles the drums. Both of them sing. Each of them own a voice in their own right. But, wait until you hear their vocal harmonies. Simply beautiful. They give out with some of the prettiest, closest harmony I have heard for a while.

This duodec just one thing, ENTERTAIN. Dick handles the black and whites in a very tasty style. While he plays the typical type of electric organ, he realizes that it has many other purposes than just to see how loud it can be played. Dick carresses the keyboard as if it were a delicate instrument.

The same is true for Ron with the drums. He does a lot more than pound the drums and cymbals. Both of them knows the meaning of music and what it is all about. They have class, style and a taste for real music.

The same is true for the both of them in the vocal department. Ron has a voice that I could listen to all night long. His tonal qualities are very pure and not doctored up with gimmicks. Ron sings, and I do mean sings. His voice is rather full and rich. Dick is no slouch in this area either.

While This 'N That do most all type of music, their style and sound seems to me to mend itself best to the better country and western songs. When they perform some of these tunes, Dick and Ron receive their biggest applause.

To keep their act moving, they throw in some humor. Just enough, and at the right time to break up the routine.

As I said at the beginning, they are not a powerhouse duo. But, I will guarantee you are thing, if you enjoy listening to music, and I mean good music played the way music should be treated, then I know for certain that you will have a pleasant evening when you catch This 'N That at the Lincoln Lodge.

As I told you in last week's column, I was taking the old typewriter on the road, to let you know what is happening in other parts of the country.

After visiting Atlanta, which I will tell you about next week, I headed for the land of sunshine, and ended up in Naples Florida. This is one of the most beautiful towns I have seen in Florida. While many of the other cities are lovely, I dug this one the most. I hope the Chamber of Commerce doesn't get too upset with that last sentence.

But, Naples reminds me of a picture post card of Florida.

Regardless of what time of year, winter or summer, you must make this a stop or your winter headquarters. There are many fine restaurants in the area. Prices are just about the same as in Columbus. For you who enjoy taking in the tourist attractions, there are plenty of good ones in the area. Not the types that skin you.

My recommendation for accommodation is the beautiful Hilton Inn in Naples. What a picturesque setting. It has a large pool, loads of palm trees and is only a few blocks from the gulf. The rooms are extremely nice with a restful decor. Everyone at the Hilton Inn, from the maids, desk clerks to waitresses, to management are friendly and hospitable.

Of course, like most restaurants in Florida, the Hilton Inn's dinner menu is loaded with delicious seafood items. Dining there was worth the trip.

Summer and winter rates for rooms are more reasonable than you may think.

A trio, The Starliners, were appearing in the lounge while I was there. And, if this act is any indication of the quality of entertainment that regularly appears in the lounge, then I have to recommend you stop in just for the entertainment.

I have to recommend Naples, and the Hilton Inn winter or summer. The only thing you won't like about the place is leaving it.

Football Coaches Receive Governor's Community Award

The five Ohio high school coaches enshrined in the Ohio High School Coaches Football Hall of Fame Friday night (won by the North 25-0) during halftime ceremonies at the North-South All-Star Game at Fawcett Stadium in Canton were also surprised with an award from Gov. John J. Gilligan.

The Governor's Award for Community Action was presented to each of the five inductees by Joseph J. Sommer, director, Ohio Department of State Personnel, on behalf of Governor Gilligan. Receiving the Governor's award were: Mike Hagley of Columbus North, Elmo Lingrel of Middletown, Lou Meszaros of Toledo Woodward, Mary Moorehead of Upper Arlington and Eddie Lantz of Akron St. Vincent.

Each was selected to receive the award in recognition of his "outstanding devotion to the physical education and development of Ohio's young boys and for your skill and interest in guiding them."

About the Governor's Award for Community Action, Governor Gilligan has said, "Thousands of our fellow Ohioans contribute their talent, time and energy to helping their fellow citizens, and most of them are never properly recognized for their contributions. Through the Governor's Award for Community Action, we hope to bring to many of these people the recognition and the respect in their community they so richly deserve."

Nominations for the award are submitted by various state agencies, by members of the news media and by ordinary citizens who feel a fellow citizen deserves special recognition.

There is no quota on the number of awards which can be given out. No one is in competition with any one else for this award. As Governor Gilligan said, "It is simply a way for the people of Ohio to say 'thanks' to a fellow citizen who has contributed to the common good."

Each coach received a personal letter from the governor prepared on parchment and bearing the Great Seal of the State of Ohio. The letters cited their particular contributions.

The Governor's Award for Community Action is meant to recognize a broad range of contributors "people who are working to clean up the environment, working with kids who are on drugs, helping the sick or the handicapped, or helping the poor."

Trotting Tips

One of the oldest lures I have is one my father gave me many years ago on our first trip to Canada. It's a June bug spinner, a trotting lure that has a spoon attached to a shaft with a bearing that holds it out from the shaft in a fixed position. You know they're still for sale in some sporting goods stores and if you bait them with a minnow or nitecrawler they're one of the best combinations you can use for walleye. Another spinner lure that works well for trotting in weedy waters are the ones with hackles, feathers, or squirrel hair covering the hooks. They help to keep weeds off.

In the past couple of years I've been trotting lures with a lip that float at rest, but dive under when trotted. These lures run deep and no weight is necessary to get them down to ten or fifteen feet. If you need to troll deeper, add only enough weight to get the job done. Too much weight takes a lot of fight out of fish. Fighting a fish is the best part and very seldom will I add weight to a lure.

One of my first trotting questions I'm always asked is, "How fast should you troll?" I've found the best trotting speed is slow, just fast enough to keep a plug vibrating, your spoon flashing, or a spinner revolving. Keep your boat moving about the same speed as your lures when you retrieve them.

Change the speed to change the depth. If you lower your rod tip when trotting and let your lure drop back you can work it deeper.

Keep your line from twisting by tying on a swivel from line to leader and another from leader to lure. The more swivels you rig up the better. Watch your rod tip when trotting vibrating lures, because when it stops vibrating, you've probably picked up some weeds. If this happens, reel in and get rid of 'em. Keep your lures weed free for better action.

When trotting for walleye and you catch one, turn around and troll over the same spot. Walleye are a school fish. When you find one chances are others will be in the same area.

Try trotting, it's a darn good way to find those hiding schools of fish.

South Bass Island Campground

Located above limestone cliffs on the southwest shore of the Lake Erie Island of the same name about 5 miles off the mainland. This 33 acre park is really out of the ordinary. Once the site of a magnificent resort hotel, the ornamental masonry and foundation remains to conjure pictures of past grandeur in the minds of campers. The Perry Victory and International Peace Monument located at the neck of the island affords a spectacular view of the west end of the lake and the products of native fisheries and vineyards make the hour pleasant. Boats, bait and marine supplies of all varieties are available on the island as is expert guide service. The Class "B" campground with its 150 family sites and 10 group sites is located close to the water near a launching ramp and pier. They're is no horsepower limit on trailers on Lake Erie. Transportation to the island is by private boat, ferry or plane.

The ferry service operates from Port Clinton and Catawba Point and the air service from the Port Clinton Airport via the Tri-motored Ford, nick-named "Tin Goose". The trip in one of these still very air worthy relics of the early days of air travel is an experience of a lifetime.

Controlled Waterfowl Hunts

The Division of Wildlife of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources will begin accepting applications for controlled waterfowl hunting permits today, Aug. 13, Division Chief Dan C. Armbruster announced recently.

The permits will allow the permit holder to hunt for one day at Killdeer Plains and Mosquito Creek Wildlife areas. Armbruster said hunting dates have not been set. Applications will be accepted until Sept. 7. A public drawing on Sept. 12 will determine which applicants will be able to hunt. Armbruster said hunters will use blinds constructed by the Division of Wildlife. Two hunters will be assigned to each blind.

To apply for a permit, hunters should send a $5 certified check or money order to Mosquito Creek or Killdeer Plains Hunt, Division of Wildlife, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus, Ohio 43224. The area desired should be indicated. Hunters wishing to hunt with a partner should submit a $10 certified check or money order. In each case, the check or money order should be made payable to the Division of Wildlife. Armbruster said a stamped, self-addressed envelope should be included with each application. Either a 1972 or 1973 hunting license number for each hunter should be included on each application. Persons submitting more than one application per area will be disqualified.

Phasants For Game Refuge

Fish, Game and Conservation Clubs throughout central Ohio, in cooperation with the Division of Wildlife, have received a total of 4,400 six week old phasants. These phasants are placed in open top predator-proof pens and become "game birds."

natural conditions until they are old enough to fly out by themselves, usually in three to four weeks or when the birds are about nine weeks old.

The holding facilities of each co-operator must meet standards set by the Division of Wildlife and they must provide feed, water and cover for the birds until they are able to fly.

The pheasant fly-out or gentle release program is designed to supplement native populations throughout the state that receive heavy hunting pressure during the regular season. Pheasants released in this manner have a chance to acclimate themselves to their surroundings and adapt to feeding and nesting habits in this area.

Hunter Safety Courses Sept. 9 and Sept. 30 courses on safe gun handling will be given at Division of Wildlife, District One Headquarters, located at 1500 Dublin Road, Columbus. Each course will begin at 1 p.m. and be over at 5 p.m. each date.

Although the course is designed primarily for juvenile hunters, the classes are open to the public and many parents enjoy attending with their youngsters, and picking up valuable tips to improve their own safe gun handling.

Juveniles aged 10 through 15 who wish to participate in the special youth hunts at the Delaware Wildlife Area on November 2 and 10 must have successfully passed one of these courses in hunter gun safety.

Ohio Dominican Has Orientation For Parent-Students

Orientation of new students at Ohio Dominican College, Columbus, will begin Wednesday Aug. 29, with arrival on campus of the rest of the student body Sept. 2 and Labor Day. Regular classes are scheduled to open Tuesday, Sept. 4 at the college, 1210 S. Main Rd.

Emphasizing parent-student joint involvement, during the summer, new students and their parents were invited to participate in a pre-Orientation Workshop held on campus. Continuing the effort, opening night, Wednesday, a buffet supper will afford new students and their parents the opportunity to meet and talk with college officials concerning academic and student life programs.

Susan Misher, director of Student Programs, who arranged the workshop, said that for the first time new students at Ohio Dominican will form groups of 10 to 20 for individual sessions to help them get acquainted, plan individualized academic programs of study, explore personal strengths, values and life goals and communicate and identify with others in the ODC campus community.

Each of the smaller groups will have its own trained undergraduate orientation leader, a faculty advisor and a student services staff consultant. Students will be given vocational and personal testing in their groups.

During the week there will be special meetings for resident, commuting transfer, international and married students.

Friday at 1 p.m., all new students will register after an informal session of registration procedures.

Saturday mini-workshops on topics of current and personal interest, such as today's woman, Christ in the modern world, financial planning and the college environment will be spotlighted.

Social activities round out the week's orientation with a coffeehouse, movie, one-act plays by the ODC Theatre Department, a slide-talk presented by campus Dominican Sisters in which they will trace the histories of the namesakes of campus buildings, a special interest activities fair and a trip to the Ohio State Fair among plans. An all-campus picnic, with games and a dance on Labor Day will climax the week's activities.

Non-Credit Seminars Scheduled At OSU

Three courses scheduled Saturday morning only will be offered Oct. 30 by Ohio State University's division of continuing education.

The non-credit seminars are: "Psychics and Scientists," "Human Sexuality," and "Future Shock."

"Future Shock," which includes a film based on the best-selling book, is scheduled from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The other two courses run from 9:30 a.m. to noon.

"Psychics and Scientists" will deal with some of the research conducted on psychic phenomena in the United States, Russia, England, and several other countries. Another course on extraordinary perception is being offered Tuesday evenings through autumn quarter.

"Human Sexuality" will focus on: sex in the American culture, gender and sex roles, and controversial issues.

The fee for each of the Saturday classes is $3.50. For registration, contact the division of continuing education at 423-3947. The office is located in the Fawcett Center for Tomorrow, 2400 Glen River Rd.

Seventh Step Gets Additional Funding

The Columbus Foundation has authorized a grant of $2,342 to the Central Ohio Seventh Step Foundation for the purpose of strengthening its staff and developing programs to serve female prisoners and juveniles.

Central Ohio Seventh Step Foundation is a non-profit organization involved in reformatting convicts, ex-convicts, parolees, probationers and juvenile delinquents.

At the present time The Foundation is servicing the Lucasville Correctional Institution, Chillicothe Correctional Institute, and Marysville Reformatory for Women, along with community programs in the 38 central-southeastern Ohio counties which they serve.

The grant will allow the foundation to expand its services to Marysville and also to their juvenile branch.

Glick's Plans New Eastern Store

Robert A. Glick, President, and William Glick, Executive Vice President, Glick's Furniture stores have announced that the nationally recognized furniture firm has broken ground for a new Showcase store at 2233 South Hamilton Rd.

The new store will constitute an investment on the part of Glick's of over 1.7 million dollars.

"The public acceptance of the new concept in a home furnishing idea center has been so outstanding it prompted the opening of our new store to better serve the east and southeast areas of Central Ohio," said Robert Glick. The original Furniture Showcase store on Morse Road attained this success in only eight months of operation.

Contractor for the new store is the Altman-Condy Company of Columbus.

Upon construction, the new Glick's Showcase will represent a 280 ft. by 220 ft. addition to the firm's rapidly expanding organization. It will provide Glick's with one of the largest and most modern home furnishing stores in the Midwest.

Scheduled for opening early in February, 1974, the new Hamilton Road store will be closely patterned after Glick's Furniture Showcase on Morse Road. Glick's Morse Road store gained national recognition upon its opening late in 1972.

The architect, George Acoc, of Acoc White and Associates, Columbus, says the new Glick's outlet will add 61,000 sq. ft. in which to arrange nearly 200 three-walled, individually-decorated rooms to enable customers to better relate specific home furnishing ideas to their own homes.

Glick's has long been a leader in the home furnishings industry in employing this principle of management.

Glick's estimates that when the new Furniture Showcase store facilities are completed, they will increase the firm's sales volume by about 20 percent. The new store will employ a staff of approximately 40.

Glick's emphasizes that, "At the Hamilton Road store, as at all Glick's for that matter, our customers will find that good taste in home furnishings need not be expensive."

Glick's now employs 385 people. In addition to the new Hamilton Road location, and the Morse Road Furniture Showcase, Glick's has stores in Columbus at the Town and Country, Northern Lights and Great Western Shopping Centers, Glick's Warehouse Outlet and stores in Chillicothe and Newark.

Catholic Schools Begin Free Lunch Program

West Columbus - St. Agnes School and St. Mary Magdalene School announced a free and reduced price meal policy for school children unable to pay the full price of meals served in schools under the National School Lunch and School Breakfast Programs.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size-income criteria for use in determining eligibility (see box).

Children from families whose income is at or below those shown are eligible for meals free or at reduced prices. In addition, families not meeting this criteria but with other unusual due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

They may do so by filling in the application forms sent home in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application will be confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has such children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals for them, they should contact the school.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of his race, sex, color or national origin.

Under the provision of the policy St. Mary Ellen Rott, principal of St. Agnes and James McFadden at Mary Magdalene will review applications and determine eligibility.

If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official he may make a request either orally or in writing to the pastor for a hearing to appeal the decision. Hearing procedures are outlined in the policy.

A complete copy of the policy is on file in each school and in the office of the Columbus Diocesan Central Office where it may be reviewed by an interested party.

Children Need Clothes

For the fourth consecutive year The Spectator Newspapers are asking readers to help send a child to school by contributing clothing that is clean and in good repair.

Although the Welfare Department is interested primarily in clothing children for school, baby clothes and shopping bags for carrying items home are also needed.

Shoes are also badly needed, according to Mrs. Julia Stewart of the department.

The boxes will be in place for two weeks only.

Collection spots where clothing boxes are located are as follows:

Aprove Installation

By Lisa Deenan
Special Staff Writer

The installation of oil tanks at the Adult Education and School Services Center was the subject of discussion at the Aug. 21 meeting of the Columbus School Board. The construction of the tanks was awarded to the Miller Construction Company for the amount of $10,723.

The tanks were approved for installation even though there might be a chance that oil might not be available. But according to Dr. John Ellis, school superintendent, it would be wiser to plan for the future "for the time that the oil would be available."

In other action the board authorized the school system's development department to begin advertising for bids on three more additions and remodeling projects.

The board also approved the leasing of an unused school to the Metropolitan School of Columbus for 10 months. The building is to be leased until it is sold next June 22 at a public auction. The building used to house the school's systems School of Practical Nursing which is now located in the Former St. Anthony School of Nursing.

Eastland Mall Host To Adult Expo Ed

"ADULT Education is Central to Ohio" is the theme Columbus Technical Institute and the Central Ohio Adult Education Association will implement when Adult Expo Ed showcases at Eastland Mall Sept. 6 and 7.

This exhibit of educational opportunities for adults throughout Central Ohio illustrates that September is not only back to school month for youngsters, but for adults as well.

CENTRAL Ohio hosts many and varied educational opportunities for adults, yet each year citizens claim they never hear of these opportunities and thus do not enroll.

It was the original problem that resulted in the creation of an Adult College Night four years.

However, Dr. Carol A. Fought, originator of the program, felt this presented too narrow a scope of continuing education programs—feeling that not all adults wanted nor needed college degrees. In 1972, the idea was expanded into Adult Expo Ed, hosted on the Columbus Tech Campus.

IN AN effort to make the information and displays more accessible to adults, Columbus Tech and the Central Ohio Adult Education Association, through the cooperation of the Eastland Mall Manager, Paul Killingsworth, are moving Adult Expo Ed to the Eastland Shopping Mall.

The exposition of adult continuing education opportunities will open September 6 at 10 a.m., and continue through Friday until 9:30 p.m.

Over 50 representatives from business and industry, colleges and universities (public and private), vocational and technical schools, churches, community service agencies and high school adult programs will participate.

Information on career opportunities, degree and training program requirements, admission standards, evening degree programs, personal enrichment courses, refresher courses, and financial aids for continuing education will be available.

ADULTS interested in upgrading job skills, training for new positions, renewing employment, training for volunteer activities, or seeking knowledge for personal interest are invited to view the exhibits and talk with program representatives.

Planning committee for Adult Expo Ed include Edward Riley, Eastland Vocational Center; Tom Snider, Columbus Public Schools; and Carol Fought, Columbus Technical Institute.

ADULT EXPO ED is gearing up for the most expensive extravaganza in adult education ever displayed in Central Ohio. The key dates are Thursday and Friday, Sept. 6-7 at the Eastland Shopping Center Mall, Hamilton Rd., from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. There will be more than 50 exhibits with information on evening degree, vocational training, special interest programs and refresher courses. Business and industry - colleges and universities - vocational and technical schools - private and public schools - churches and community service agencies - they'll all be represented. Going over the plans for the Adult Expo Ed are Chairman of the Continuing Education Division at Columbus Technical Institute Dr. Carol A. Fought and Eastland Mall Promotion Director Paul Killingsworth.

Ohio Dominican Evening Classes Expanded

There are new subjects to attract adults to Ohio Dominican College, 1216 Sunbury Rd., this fall, Richard R. Teaff, director of Continuing Education who heads up evening credit and non-credit offerings at the fully-accredited liberal arts college, outlined recently.

New to the curriculum this fall are the Evening Bachelor of Arts Degree program in Business Administration, the Associate in Arts Degree (2 year) program in Early Childhood Education, the Bachelor of Arts with a Construction in General Studies and a special training program for workers with alcoholics.

Also added will be a seminar for nurses in supervisory positions, a non-credit course in emergency medical care and a course in creative writing.

These programs, together with those begun last year: in training for teachers of the Educable Mentally Retarded; library science workshops and non-credit programs and seminars such as the liturgy, first-line supervisory seminars for business and industry personnel, as well as the non-credit courses in psychology, practical law, mathematics techniques and "Paperbacks and Coffee," among others, provide the student with many options for continuing education.

dedication is to make the curriculum as flexible as possible to meet the needs of students, no matter what their personal goals or their schedules, yet retain Ohio Dominican's prime objective to provide the best possible liberal arts education to its students.

The College provides advice and guidance to potential students.

"Evening courses are the solution for those who must maintain regular daytime work schedules," Teaff continued. "Frequently business and industries reimburse their employees for tuition charges," he pointed out and added that Ohio Dominican is approved for the education of veterans and thus the GI benefits are applicable. The College Level Program often makes it possible for a student to receive college credit for previous experience.

Ohio Dominican is on a semester system, so that the standard four semester hour credit is equivalent to six quarter hours, according to Teaff.

The undergraduate Evening Business Administration Degree program enables persons in business and industry to earn the Bachelors Degree through part-time evening study as well as those who seek entrance into a business career," Teaff explained.

"We adopted the program in General Studies to permit more flexibility. Thus a student may choose to construct his program from courses in 27 areas of study. The concentration is particularly attractive to the student who desires a degree and to tailor his opportunity for graduates of Associate Degree and Paraprofessional programs and of Nursing Schools to receive credit for their previous work as they continue toward a Bachelor's Degree.

The Associate Degree in Childhood Education emphasizes training for those interested in working in kindergartens, nursery schools and day care centers.

"We are proud of our training program for workers with alcoholics, too. It is the only one of its kind in Ohio and possibly in the United States."

Under Title I of the Higher Education Act of 1965, the $30,000 program is directed toward improving treatment practices, providing better coordination of agency effort and increasing the knowledge of personnel working or intending to work with the alcoholic.

lectures, seminars, guest speakers and field experience.

Participants will take either the first semester program, beginning in September, or both the first and second semester programs. Thirty training participants will enroll in semester one courses. Twenty of these students will continue through semester two, while 30 new students will enroll in the beginning program. The first semester work carries four semester hours of college credit; the second, six semester hours. "Last fall, we determined a need for evening courses for teachers of the Educable Mentally Retarded (EMR) to qualify them for State Certification. The classes will be continued.

Teaff continued: "At our 1972 Business and Industry Forum, participating leaders expressed the need for various seminars, including some for first-line supervisory personnel. The seminars last year were highly successful and will be continued.

A similar program for Nurses in Supervisory Capacities is scheduled for the first time by Ohio Dominican.

Teaff concluded: "Our Continuing Education Division last year adopted the motto: 'Lifelong Learning.' We are firmly committed to it. In planning our credit and non-credit curriculum for 1973-1974, we have built in that kind of thinking. Whatever your age, position, previous education or interest, there is something for you at Ohio Dominican this fall."

For information on any and all of these courses, please phone Teaff at Ohio Dominican College, 263-2741, Ext. 35.

BEE Buzzes Around Fair

The Better Environment for Everyone (BEE) Committee has arranged with the City of Columbus and the Neighborhood Youth Corps to have the neighborhoods surrounding the Ohio State Fair Grounds cleaned daily during the duration of the 1973 Fair.

In past years, neighborhoods surrounding the Fair Grounds have been inundated with litter dropped by Fair visitors; residents were not able to keep up with the trash problem.

Now, at the urging of the BEE Committee, 33 Neighborhood Youth Corps workers will clean up the Fair Ground neighborhoods every day between 1:00 p.m. and 3:00 p.m.

The 33 Youth Corps workers were selected for the State Fair Clean-up by their supervisors for their outstanding work this summer. The Neighborhood Youth Corps program was extended for 10 days to allow the teenagers to work at the fair, thus giving the 33 workers 10 extra paid work days and fair privileges.

The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will provide the teenage workers with passes to the Fair, tee-shirts and a free dinner. The Ohio EPA is also sponsoring volunteer workers who will clean up inside the Fair Grounds for the run of the Fair in exchange for passes, tee-shirts and free dinners.

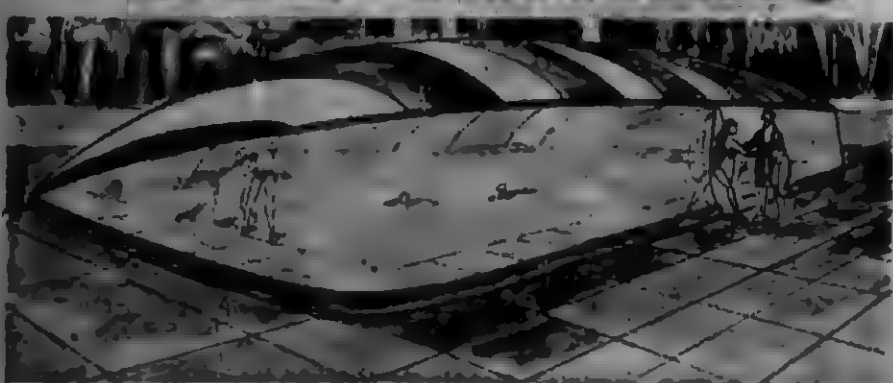

The BEE Committee has also arranged to place 30 litter barrels at one-block intervals surrounding the Fair Grounds. Fair visitors are urged to throw their litter into the litter barrels when going to or from the Fair Grounds.

The Columbus Division of Sanitation will service the litter barrels daily and will remove all litter picked up by the Neighborhood Youth Corps.

Members of the BEE State Fair Clean-up Committee include Gary Sterling, chairman, United States Brewers Association and Pitch-In; James Paxton, co-chairman, City of Columbus; Joseph Wolfe, Columbus Chamber of Commerce; Barbara S. Grano, Columbus Department of Development; Bert Korte, Neighborhood Youth Corps; Dick Harris, Columbus Division of Sanitation; Jack Speakman, Columbus Department of Recreation and Parks; and Larry Menchhofer, Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

Your Columbus Police Department

By Officer Jim Benham Community Service Officer

To start with, I feel that I should tell you what the job of the Police Department is. Police work today is still basically a law enforcement calling. But it is much different than the police department was of 50 years ago. The public idea of the police department's duties have greatly expanded, embracing many fields of human activity. This in itself is not strange since there have been social changes that have affected all parts of our life in America. The police department's have been included in these changes and have in many ways helped bring some of them about to give you, the citizens, a better community in which to live without fear, unrest or hate.

Fifty years ago the chief job of the police department was to catch the thief. If that were done the department had done its job. Many of our well-meaning citizens still think that the job of the police department is to be exclusively "Thief Takers". Yet these same people with modern communication (phone) in almost every home will call the police or fire department for any kind of an emergency.

Yes, the police department job is much different today than it was 50 years ago. Today's police department operation has to place emphasis on what we would call miscellaneous public service.

We of the police profession feel that for you, the citizens, to have a better understanding of what police work is today and what the duties of the police officers usually are find that the duties are classed into five categories:

1. Preservation of the public peace; 2. Protection of life and property; 3. Prevention of crime; 4. Enforcement of the laws; and 5. Arresting of offenders and recovery of property.

In order for the police department to give you citizens all of the mentioned services, we must be forever pushing ahead in modern scientific crime detection devices. We have a good training program going on day after day.

Above all we must be very selective in our choice of new personnel. We feel that by being selective we will get only top notch men, who after intensive training and experience gained on the various jobs within the police department, will make good policemen who will be fitted to give you the citizens the type of quality police service you deserve.

Paul Walker

More Than Just A Man

PAUL WALKER was more than a man among men. He walked taller than all and in his adversity when he was on the short end of the odds in his fight against cancer his determination pulled him over the rough spots.

The Executive Director for the Franklin County Chapter of the American Cancer Society was among the foremost in the Public Relations field who went beyond the call of duty.

HIS DEDICATION to the search for the cancer cure was a personal crusade and the efforts he made toward this end will certainly be remembered when that search is fulfilled.

We remember Paul as a football official, a counselor of young men who would have been inside a wall fence with a number were it not for his faith, and more as just one of the many people who walk the face of this earth hoping to leave it a little better than they found it.

His love for his wife, children, family members were all that exceeded his quest for the dream that he never looked at as impossible—that of conquering cancer.

WE SHALL MISS his kind—they don't come our way often.

WE'D NEVER MAKE IT WITHOUT YOU!

Labor Day 1973

The nation pays its respects to American labor by setting aside the first Monday in September as a special holiday.

We honor those craftsmen who have taken the brain-children of scientist, engineer and inventor and turned them into products of mass production.

This melding of talent has resulted in a better life for all Americans.

One example of this effort was the work of Messrs. Shockley, Brattain, and Bardeen of Bell Laboratories. Their joint effort was the discovery of the transistor twenty-five years ago. This one invention opened the way for a new micro-electronic technology which helped, as possible, the trip to the moon and the tremendous number of electronic developments for the easing of man's attaining of a livelihood.

With the introduction of the many technical tools for the advancement of industry and management, American education has taken on a new dimension of down-to-earth learning which is now being called career education. Working hand-in-hand with future employers helps shorten the lead time between classroom and career.

Girl Scouts-- Can You Dig It?

By Lois Neff

During the month of September the Girl Scouts are having an intensive recruitment campaign for adult leaders and helpers. Where do you fit in?

There are girls in this community who need your help. Girl Scouting is the largest voluntary organization for girls in the world. It is a partnership of girls and adults. It helps girls grow into informed women, able to achieve their potential in a world where the emerging role of women is so important.

But where do you fit in? Have you ever been in scouts? Do you remember the fun? Camping, trips, meetings, flag ceremonies; badges advancement; Brownies to Juniors, then Cadettes and finally a Senior Scout at last.

By that time at least eight years of your life had been deeply involved in an unusually close relationship with other girls. You learned from your leader the democratic way of doing things, from voting in a "Brownie ring," to a visit to a city council meeting.

You also learned to take a lot of static from your friends and peers who had never been exposed to scouts. "Meetings once a week? A waste of time. Camping during the summer? I'd rather go swimming and hang around with the gang. Girl Scouts??? Stupid!"

Stupid? What's sissy about hiking 10 miles? What's sissy about living at camp for a week, with only a self-dug latrine instead of a comfortable bathroom? What's sissy about doing service projects, such as helping the mentally retarded or physically handicapped? What is sissy about having to wear a uniform with badges that you've worked hard for?

What we need are more Girl Scouts. The problem is that the girls are here, but the leaders aren't.

You may think you have to be "special" or "talented" to lead girls. All you need is an interest and a desire to help. You don't even have to be a parent of girls to help.

In Cincinnati there is a troop of Girl Scouts with a man leader and they have recently finished studying rocketry. Thousands of men and women from young singles to senior citizens, from every ethnic, economic and educational background are involved in Girl Scouting.

Maybe you are a mother who used to be a Scout, and would like some time away from your pre-schoolers. Maybe your children are "grown and flown" and the house is too quiet. Try Girl Scouts.

You don't have to be a leader either. You can always volunteer your time and skills to an established leader. Or maybe you have the ability for book work or such. Perhaps the Council office or service unit could use you.

Being involved with Girl Scouts means being part of a going organization that has always been ahead of its time, but yet has consistently maintained its basic values.

Consider this: today, Girl Scouting serves only one out of every seven girls ages 6-17 in the U.S.A. The girls are waiting and need you. Watch for the "Wanted-Girl Scout Leaders" advertisements, and then respond to your Council office. Help a girl to "be prepared" for life. You'll be better for it.

Tidal Wave To Appear

The United States Navy Tidal Wave Rock Group will send waves of music through the air at the State House lawn this Wednesday, Sept. 5, from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The Tidal Wave Rock Group's Columbus appearance is part of the free "Music in the Air" concert series sponsored by the Greater Columbus Arts Council with funds provided in part by the City of Columbus and the Music Performance Trust Funds.

All Kinds Of People Getting It Together

PEOPLE—all shapes, sizes, colors, and ages get it together to help form the 198th Annual Ohio State Fair. The multitude of expressions on the faces of the young and old vary as greatly as the people themselves. These expressions ranging from a little girl's first look at a clown to a father giving his daughter her first ride down the Giant Slide to a lady's curious glance at the photographer all come into focus at the fair. For others eating and relaxing are more of their type of fun at the fair. This year's fair is a combination of Arts, Crafts, Midway Attractions, and Grandstand Entertainment that have all been put together for the people to come together and enjoy. For those who have not been to see this extravaganza, get there and LET YOURSELF GO!!!

Peterfy Honored

WEST COLUMBUS—Knights of Columbus Santa Maria Council 2886 presented Capt. Frank Peterfy of the Columbus Police Department Narcotic Division a plaque honoring him and his staff for "outstanding service to the community in combating narcotics." The award was given Aug. 7 at the K of C hall, 3970 Fisher Rd. Presenting the award is Grand Knight Louis George.

FARE Traffic Enforcement Report Made

The extra police manhours and stricter enforcement of traffic regulations that have gone into the Fatal Accident Reduction Enforcement (FARE) program are paying off with fewer fatal auto accidents in Columbus.

This conclusion was drawn Aug. 23, by Mayor Tom Moody and Police Chief Earl Luyken at a press conference called to review progress of the program, which will complete three months of operation last Saturday.

FARE, launched May 26, assigns additional traffic police to high accident areas of Columbus. The patrolmen and officers are volunteers working on their days off. The program, which will run the rest of the year, is funded by U.S. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, a federal agency.

Figures released by the Columbus Police Department show that from May 26 through July 31, FARE delivered 3,834 extra manhours of traffic safety enforcement in addition to the normal enforcement maintained by the Department.

The result has been elimination of fatal accidents in FARE-patrolled areas from the three recorded between May 26 and July 31, 1972 to none for the same period this year.

Stricter enforcement of safety regulations also produced more traffic citations. A total of 1,676 citations were issued by FARE units and are considered by the Department to be in addition to the number normally written.

"It is clear on the basis of this report that FARE represents an effective approach to cutting down the number of fatal auto accidents," Moody said.

"Every indication is that while enforcement is up, fatalities are down, especially in the FARE-patrolled areas," the Mayor concluded.

Chief Burden also believes the program is making considerable headway. "Not only have fatalities been lowered, but there is a noticeable reduction in driving speed in FARE-patrolled areas," he said. "People know we are out in force in those areas and they are slowing down."

FARE is at work in four areas of Columbus. They are the section bounded by E. Broad St., E. Whittier St., Parsons Ave. and Alum Creek Dr.; I-71 from Hudson St. to the S. Fourth St. exit; N. High St. from Goodale Ave. north to King Ave., and W. Broad St. from Hague Ave. to Stouder Ave.

Mayor Moody and Chief Burden also pointed out that a FARE public information program is being carried out to make motorists and pedestrians aware of the effort to reduce fatal accidents. On display were bumper stickers and cut-out footprints sounding the FARE theme "Drive the FARE way"; posters declaring "This is a FARE-Patrolled Area"; and television and radio spot announcements featuring actor Paul Lynde, who donated his time.

FARE is budgeted at $152,312 in federal funds for its seven months of operation. No city or state monies are involved. Of the amount, 90 percent is allocated to operation, 10 percent to public information.

budget request for the library to the Franklin County Budget Commission. This was the sixth straight year that Schuler has presented the budget, and the request for 1974 totaled $589,000. Members of the commission are: County Auditor Arch Warren, County Treasurer Philip H. Goldalager and Prosecuting Attorney George Smith.

The request by the seven public libraries in Franklin County was for the following amounts: Columbus, $3,362,000; Upper Arlington, $64,000; Grandview Heights, $69,000; Grove City, $69,000; Worthington, $69,000; Bexley, $25,000 and Westerville, $74,000.

Public libraries in Ohio are supported by tax levied on intangible personal property. Designated in law as the classified property tax, this is more commonly referred to as the intangible's tax. This is a county tax levied on intangible personal property such as investments and deposits. An example of such personal property is a dividend paid on stocks.

The estimate of the collection for 1973 totaled about $4.7 million. The estimate has not been made for the anticipated amount to be distributed in 1974.

Employment opportunities in the service sector of Ohio's economy increased by 25.2 per cent during 1969 and 1970, according to the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

Women Recruited By Coast Guard As Reservists

Columbus—Four women petty officers were recruited into the Columbus U.S. Coast Guard Reserve Unit in a three-month period ending Aug. 9. The SPARS, along with male reservists in the unit, will take part in a new dimension of Coast Guard Reserve life called "augmentation."

The 50 men and women in the unit will supplement the efforts of regular Coast Guardmen in Central Ohio and neighboring states. Former weekend drills of classroom training are being replaced by assignments in the areas of port security harbor patrols, boating safety, environmental protection and the recruiting of both regular and reserve Coast Guardmen.

The new Coast Guard augmentation effort was developed on a nationwide basis in response to the manpower pressures of an all volunteer service. Reservists may now enjoy an active employment of their special skills and talents.

The recently recruited women from Columbus are Betty J. Compton, Chris A. Parrill and Marcia K. Christensen of Columbus.

Ms. Compton is a physical education teacher at Everett Jr. High School; Ms. Parrill is attending Taylor University in Upland, Indiana; and Ms. Christensen is employed as a researcher in the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

Jerry Silverman . . . In Person

A charming daytime dress in mocha double knit, with easy skirt and rising bodice of striped inserts of russet, black and mocha. The all important short sleeved wool crepe dress in blush peach with coral insert belt.

Perfect for today's style is this red matte jersey dinner dress with tucked waist releasing into a full soft skirt.

ALL THE BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE, including Katie Gilligan, wife of our Governor, will be heading for Montaldo's next Wednesday and Thursday, September 5th and 6th, to welcome one of the great names in American fashion... Jerry Silverman, making his first appearance in Montaldo's beautiful new store, to present and commentate his new fall collection, designed by his good friend and partner, Shannon Rodgers.

These two lighthearted, charming, talented men, who have made Jerry Silverman a magic name in fashion, are people watchers of the first rank... which accounts for their tremendous success. "The most exciting, rewarding way to be inspired is to follow the customer through the pattern of her life... anticipate the clothes she needs and have them ready in the stores when she needs them," remarks Jerry Silverman. We design for the woman who loves clothes but is not a fashion victim... the woman that has a high taste level but not necessarily a large clothes budget... one that appreciates excellent workmanship, impeccable construction, and superb fit. She expects to feel happy, secure and comfortable in her clothes."

MONTALDO'S WILL be featuring the entire Silverman collection, anticipating the needs of all the pampered ladies, for daytime through evening. Clothes for travel, for little dinners, the theatre... the all-important wool dress, the newly important short cocktail dress... and evening formality. In fact, this is the largest collection of cocktail and evening clothes ever done at Jerry Silverman... bare, dressy, with thoughts of the Holidays and Southern resorts ahead.

There are many important cost costumes, with both the cost and the dress of independent interest. "No woman nowadays wants a costume that doesn't work several different ways. We believe in the little black matte or crepe jersey dress as a continuing way of life, year round and round the clock," explains Jerry, "but there is enormous interest in color too, from brights to pale complexion colors... with a cost keyed to them all."

Even though I attended Jerry Silverman's fall showing for the fashion press in New York... I am looking forward to seeing Jerry and his collection again at Montaldo's... the fashions deserve a second loving look... so irresistible!

COUNTRY DINNER PLAYHOUSE

Nell Simon's, "Come Blow Your Horn," currently at the Country Dinner Playhouse is one of the finest productions I have seen of this play anywhere. In fact, "Come Blow Your Horn," is the best production I have seen of any play at any dinner theatre in these parts, bar none.

The show has been receiving standing ovations. That is also a rarity among dinner theatres.

The reasons are many, and anyone of them make for a great show. First, the cast is one of the best assembled.

Not only are they well cast for the part, each and everyone of them are truly a golden cast for a golden show. Each one deserves to be tagged a STAR.

First there is Henrietta Jacobson, a lady who could qualify for the Golden Age Talent Award. But, not this one. She has more spunk, spirit, and speed on stage than any of the best race horses. She is practically a master of comedy. Henrietta can wink an eye and draw a roar of laughter.

Playing the mother whose family consists of two play boy type of sons and a husband who owns his own business and believes that all work and no play makes a man wealthy. Her role as Mrs. Baker could have been lost in the shuffle. But with excellent directing by John Bowab and Henrietta Jacobson superb skills, made the part the fuse that ignited a whole case of dynamite.

Julius Adler played the hard working Jewish father. In real life he is married to Henrietta. But, in the show he gives her fits because of his two errant sons. It is bad enough for him that his oldest boy is a playboy with his own apartment and a bevy of girls that keeps him from the office. But, when the youngest son moves in with his brother and follows in his steps, it is more than dad can take.

Being a traditional old line Jewish family, they feel their sons are a disgrace to the family. In fact, Papa is in such a rage, that Mama has to move in with her sons. You can imagine the many comedy situations this presents. In the end, the oldest son marries and everything works out.

Julius Adler turns in a sterling performance as a straightforward father who is upset with his sons and his business.

Bruce Adler and Arne Gundersen handle the role of the two sons in expert fashion. Arne, the oldest boy, Alan, is strong and convincing in his role. Bruce is simply hilarious. The scene where Buddy is preparing for his first fling with a very willing playmate is hilarious. For several minutes he keeps the audience in stitches with his solo routine on stage. To me, Bruce Adler showed a touch of genius in this bit. His sense of timing was by far the finest I've seen in years.

Dawn Diddawick, an old friend to Columbus' audiences having appeared in a host of productions in Playhouse On The Green, turns in a fine job as a dumb blond who is willing to do just about anything to get into the movies, even to taking a trip to a ski lodge with Alan Baker and not asking because it snowed so much.

Linda Zarnacka, a petite brunet winsome girl was quite likable in her role of Connie Dayton. She switched from one mood to another in her successful attempt to lead Alan to the altar. This girl has that rare touch that is needed in acting to be totally convincing.

"Come Blow Your Horn," is a must for you who enjoy good theatre. There is not a minute without laughter. In fact, most every minute of the show produces a multitude of laughs. The show is well paced and moves faster than a Woody Hayes' halfback.

For an evening you'll long remember, with good food and good entertainment, make reservations now for "Come Blow Your Horn," at the Country Dinner Playhouse.

MARRIOTT INN

Four of the most talented and enjoyable musicians I have heard in mighty a moon are currently at the Marriott Inn. Billed as the Vince Mastro Quartet, with the leader being Vince Mastro. And, remember that name, business. He can make that thing talk to him. Playing a beautiful ballad, Mike makes the guitar drip with tones, it is so sweet and mellow. Yet, he has the ability to turn around and serve up some real hot licks. His chord structures and harmonies are a treat long to be remembered by this columnist.

Another member in the group is Bernie Tarriah, formerly with the Four Lads. Bernie handles the electric bass. By the way, Bernie was the one who wrote the big hit, "Down By The Riverside."

Last, but certainly not least is drummer Bobby Lopez. This fellow has a lot of class with the sticks and brushes. He doesn't pound he plays with so much technique, that he can really be classified as a percussionist.

Besides Vince, the three other members sing harmony. When this happens, you are treated to pretty, pretty four part harmonies. Some of the arrangements reminds me of the Four Freshmen, the way they use to sound years ago. Be sure to ask for, "Here's That Rainy Day." Great.

The Vince Mastro Quartet do all types of music from good modern jazz, to dreamy ballads, the top 40 with all stops in between. All four play and sing as one, it has been a long time since I have seen such musical unity. You can hear and see them too, Monday through Saturday at the Marriott Inn Motel. Take my advice, this has to be on your entertainment schedule. The food is tremendous, but if you don't care for dinner, stop in for a cocktail and listen to some of the finest music Around Town.

OHIO STATE FAIR

Well, we're right in the midst of the big Ohio State Fair. So far, yours truly has caught Mac Davis, Helen Reddy, Dianna Warwick and Doc Severinsen. All four gave out with tremendous shows. The crowds have been huge for every performance. While talking with Helen the other day, she was amazed at the crowds and how receptive they were. According to Helen, the Ohio State Fair was the best, and most exciting booking she has had in her career. She was as excited as were the crowds.

Mac Davis did his usual bang up job. Sharing the bill with Helen, Mac brought the house down. Both of them received standing ovations. This is true for most of the acts that have played at the fair the past several years. The people of Ohio certainly love good entertainment, and they show it, that's for sure.

Sunday the crowds were so huge, that fair officials thought they would have to close the gates. The two shows by Warwick and Severinsen and Company played to jam packed people, and some seem to mind the hot humid weather while viewing these two favorites. Doc had as much, if not more fun, than did the audience. After the show, he toured the grounds, and had a ball.

SONNY & CHER

Today, Wednesday, the fantastic Sonny and Cher take over the stage for the free entertainment. Take my advice, if you are planning on catching these two television personalities, get there early. Everybody Around Town is talking about this one. Sonny and Cher being personal friends of playboy magnate, Hugh Hefner, are flying in on his personal twin engine jet. They said they are bringing their baby and a sitter.

Thursday and Friday is for the younger generation, with The 5th Dimension on Thursday followed by the Jackson Five. Saturday finds Charlie Pride and Sunday Al Green. Monday, Labor Day, is all the troop from The Grand Ole Opry.

Belkin Productions have done a terrific job in handling in a host of fantastic acts. As of deadline, the fair is breaking attendance records. I feel most to do to good weather and the popular acts at the grandstand.

When I am not skipping Around Town this week, look for me at the stage in front of the grandstand, getting some interviews for weeks to come. See you at the fair!

SKIPPING AROUND TOWN

Hopped down to Kings Island last Friday and was on the set for the taping of the Brady Bunch. The popular ABC program was at Kings Island for the entire week.

Talked with Florence Henderson, and all the rest of the cast. All of them were having a ball, especially the kids on the show. An old Columbus friend, Ann B. Davis asked me to say hello to all of her friends. Watch next week's column for pictures and a complete story on the Brady Bunch at Kings Island.

Sidewalk Arcade at Ramada Inn North is drawing in the crowds. They are an excellent group. More on them next week. While at the Ramada Inn East, Freedom, is dishing out some great sounds. Plan on catching either group, you won't be sorry. For something different and really good, head to the Walkiki Restaurant, and dine in true Polynesian splendor. The decor is beautiful, and so is the food. This is the last week for Slink and Surprise at Marco Polo's Lounge. Great group, Marco Polo's is always full of guys and gals.

A fun place to go, that's for sure. The Apple Tree has changed its policy and is bringing in the finest modern jazz artists that money can buy. As soon as I get a list, I'll let you know what's coming in at the Apple Tree. In the meantime, call and ask, because there are some pretty powerful acts booked. For a treat, that's hard to beat, drive to the Taj Mahal, located about twenty-five minutes from Broad and High, on W. Broad St. You'll be delighted at the wonderful cuisine from India and the most enjoyable and interesting entertainment offered in these parts. The authentic turkish music, is so very pretty, and the belly dancer is terrific. See you Around Town.

Off Road Vehicle Registration Required

State motor vehicles registrar C. Donald Curry reminded all Ohioans who own snowmobiles, trail or mini-bikes or other types of "off-the-road" vehicles that their 1973 registrations will expire at midnight Aug. 31.

"Anyone operating a vehicle of this type on public lands or on private property that isn't his own after Aug. 31 will be required to display the appropriate 1974 decal or license plate," said Curry. "Anyone operating an unregistered vehicle is subject to a fine of up to $50 for the first offense—so I would strongly advise all owners to pay the $5 fee and obtain their 1974 plates of decal before Sept. 1, even if they don't plan to use their off-the-road vehicle until later in the year."

Registrar Curry noted that both the 1974 decal (for snowmobile) and "APV plate" (for trail and mini-bikes and other all-terrain vehicles) are valid from the date of issuance and will remain valid until Aug. 31, 1974.

He added that all of the $5 fee collected by the state for

Handball Championship Tourney At Westgate Park

WEST COLUMBUS—"Miss USHA" Helen D'Andria, national tournament chairman W. T. "Ted" Bland (left), and tournament promotion chairman David Cohen (right) are all smiles over prospects for the upcoming United States Handball Association's national three-wall championship in Columbus, Aug. 30-Sept. 1. More than 200 players from across the U.S. will participate, including 16 of the 20 top-ranked players. After 23 years in Detroit, this year's championship moves to Columbus' Westgate Recreation Park. Admission is free.

Sixteen of the top 20 nationally-ranked handball players have signed up to play in the USHA (United States Handball Association) national three-wall championship tournament in Columbus over Labor Day weekend," says W. T. "Ted" Bland, national tournament chairman.

After 23 years in Detroit, this year's championship will be held in Columbus' new six-court facility in Westgate Recreation Park. Upwards of 500 spectators are expected daily for the event, for which there is no admission charge. The tournament runs from Aug. 30-Sept. 1. The competition will begin at 9 a.m. daily and run to about 6 p.m. The finals will be held Monday, Sept. 1 between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Bland and tournament promotion chairman David Cohen says the annual Labor Day weekend classic has traditionally been the "kickoff" for each new handball season. They say interest is running extremely high nationally and locally. In the tournament. More than 200 players from across the United States, as well as the top 20 Columbus-area players will participate, according to Bland.

Miss Helen D'Andria has been chosen "Miss USHA" and will handle the presentation of trophies and assist with hospitality and other ceremonial events at the tournament. Columbus Mayor Tom Moody has proclaimed the week of Aug. 27 "International Three-Wall Handball Championship Week" in the Capitol city.

Nationally-ranked players who will be on hand include Lou Russo of New York City, winner of the national three-wall singles championships in 1972 and 1971; Paul Baber, who has notched two doubles titles at Detroit (1970 and '71) and who was runnerup in the 1972 singles to Russo; Terry Mack of St. Paul, the current four-wall champion and national 1972 YMCA champ, and Fred Lewis, the 1972 four-wall national singles champ.

Bland invites the general public to "bring the family to Westgate Park for the championships. There are recreational areas for the youngsters and picnic areas near the courts. This outdoor three-wall tournament provides not only a chance for the entire family to get out in the fresh air, but a chance to see absolutely the best power-hitting handball players in the United States."

Bland concluded, "The only detriment to out outdoor tournament is the possibility of rain. If we should be forced indoors, the Columbus Central YMCA has consented to make their four regulation size four-wall courts available to us."

Sanctioned by the USHA, the tournament is sponsored by the Columbus Department of Recreation and the Columbus Central YMCA.

Knute Rockne Developed Pass At Cedar Point

THE GRIDIRON'S "diamond" is coming up this year, and it's worth a look back to see how it all came about.

It'll be 60 years ago this November 1st that Fighting Irishman Knute Rockne's forward pass made believers out of Army's cadets—and a whole new game out of football. The score? Army, 13-underdog Notre Dame, 38.

In fact, the cadets believed so strongly that they persuaded coach Charles Daly to use the forward pass in the very next game. The score? Navy, 9-underdog Army, 14.

"Awright, awright," you say. "Any body who don't know that musta learned his football in England..."

Ok, Professor—try this one: JUST WHERE was it that Knute developed this revolutionary pass? Nope. No South Bend. Give up? Try Sandusky, Ohio.

Well—now you, know Professor. But don't go way, 'cause now I'm gonna tell you exactly where it was in CEDAR POINT amusement land—that's where. Right on that mile-long white sand beach, back of the Hotel Dierckers.

Now don't leave yet, Professor! Since you've been such a good listener, I'll tell you the whole story. Then you can bend some other guy's ear with these fascinating details...

IN THE summer of 1913, Knute was going into his senior year with the Fighting Irish. And he didn't have two or three hundred "angels" picking up the tab, like modern college football heroes do.

So Knute, who likes girls as much as any guy, got himself a job as lifeguard on that big, wide beach.

Now it just happened that Irish quarterback Gus Dorais was vacationing at the Point. And girls or no girls, those guys couldn't help worrying about their upcoming football schedule.

NOTRE DAME wasn't all that well known in those days, and coach Jesse Harper had bitten on Army's $1,000 lure to play the cadets at West Point. Army just wanted a "soft" team to warm up on, to get in shape for their upcoming bash with the midshipmen.

So Knute and Gus spent the whole summer right there on that mile-long beach at Cedar Point, working up their forward pass routine. They even brought in Irish right halfback Joe Pliska, to train as an alternate receiver.

That big, round football had the aerodynamic properties of a punchbowl. But practice makes perfect, and by season's end quarterback Gus was able to hit either Knute or Joe just about ten times out of ten.

The rest is history.

OF COURSE, everybody knows that Knute went on to coach the Irish in the Twenties—and that he developed the "Notre Dame shift"—and that he was the first guy to substitute entire teams during a game. Those were his "shock troops."

Hey, Man—remember the "Four Horsemen?" Name 'em!

"Elmer Layden, Don Miller, Jim Crowley, and Harry Stuhldreher."

Awright. When did they play for Rockne?

"From '22 through '34." Awright, smart guy. Where did they stay in shape over the summers?

"Trivis!" Of course it's trivia. That's the name of the game!

Stop looking at your watch, Professor—and I'll let you in on the secret.

That's better. Now, Knute knew a good thing, so his Four Horsemen spent three summers at Cedar Point, lifeguarding and running up and down that mile-long, white sand beach. I don't have to tell you they stayed in shape!

WIPE THAT grin off your face, Professor—it just happens that there's a plaque at Cedar Point that says: "In grateful memory of the man whose standards of fair play are an immortal inspiration to the youth of America, and whose contributions to the great sport of football will never be forgotten—Knute Rockne!"

So hop on home, Professor. And tell your kids all about it. I mean, just because they've been reared in ignorance doesn't mean they can't make up for it!

PANFISHING IS FAMILY FUN

Panfish are referred to as fishes too small to be considered gamefish, but call them scrappy and fun to catch. What do you do if bass and walleye aren't hitting your artificial lures. I usually take my family and go panfishing. A lot of folks find sport and enjoyment using light weight tackle fishing for panfish. They're easy to catch and darn good eating.

Our favorite is perch fishing in Lake Erie. Perch like walleye are a school fish. If one is taken there are others in the same area. One of the best baits is the one and two inch minnows or pieces of nightcrawlers or dug worms. Small deep running spin casting lures and fly casting lures and fly casting wet flies fished near bottom will also take perch.

Here's a tip that sometimes works for me. When you're fishing from a boat, let your anchor hit bottom a couple of times, this will stir up the bottom and the cloud of commotion will attract lots of perch. Just as important is the way you rig your line. You can buy a spreader at most sporting goods stores which is designed for perch fishing or just tie a weight on the end of your line, then tie a snelled hook about 10 inches above the weight, then tie on another snelled hook about 10 inches above the first hook. Using two hooks gives you two chances and when perch are hitting real good sometimes you can catch a double. Just remember weight on bottom, two hooks above.

HOCKING HILLS CAMPGROUND

Situated among the trees on a ridge above the beautiful hemlock-lined blackhand sandstone gorge of Old Mans Cave, the 170 site Class "A" family campground in this park is a favorite of all who love the serenity of the woods. With a modern wash-house, vault type latrines and electricity available on 20 sites, the area is suitable for tent or trailer campers.

Many miles of well marked trails carry visitors to nearby Cedar Falls and Ash Cave, all within the 10,374 acre Hocking Hills State Park-Hocking State forest complex. The Buckeye Trail crosses the area on its route from Lake Erie to the Ohio River. Ten class "A" and 10 primitive group sites serve adult and youth organizations and there is a primitive campground area that can accommodate about 75 units.

Swimming, fishing and boating are not available at the park, but all three can be enjoyed at nearby Lake Logan. The Old Mans Cave area is located 12 miles southwest of Logan on S. R. 374 and the main campground is reached by fording Old Man's Creek just above the beautiful upper falls.

A comprehensive new publication, "Boating in Ohio," has been published by the Department of Natural Resources.

The 64-page booklet combines three former publications that covered Ohio's water-craft laws, boating facilities and major canoeing rivers.

Natural Resources

Director William B. Nye, said, "It explains virtually everything Ohio boaters need to know about watercraft procedures in simple, easy-to-read language."

Rod Cooper, chief of the department's division of watercraft, said all boaters registering watercraft in 1974 will receive a copy of the booklet.

The four-color booklet features boating tips by Commodore Buckeye, the unofficial guardian of Ohio's waterways.

It has information on the state's watercraft laws, registration and titling procedures, required and recommended safety equipment and operation of watercraft.

A chart listing Ohio's lakes and waterways provides navigation information and describes services and facilities available.

Maps of the Cuyahoga, Great Miami, Little Miami, Maumee, Sandusky, Mohican, Walhonding and Muskingum rivers are included in the canoeing section of the booklet.

Information on how to plan a canoeing trip is included and suggested portage routes are outlined.

Copies are available free of charge at the Department of Natural Resources information center at the Ohio State Fair in Columbus through Sept. 3, and also can be obtained by contacting the Publications Center, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus, Ohio 43224.

ANTLERLESS DEER PERMITS AVAILABLE

A limited number of antlerless deer permits are available for six counties in northwest Ohio: Williams, Defiance, Fulton, Lucas, Paulding, and Henry and 10 counties in southwest Ohio: Athens, Hocking, Jackson, Meigs, Monroe, Morgan, Muskingum, Noble, Vinton and Washington. These permits will be issued by means of a public drawing Oct. 30.

The application period is Sept. 1-Oct. 19. To apply for the drawing submit your name, address and deer permit number on a post card to: Antlerless Deer Permit, Division of Wildlife, Fountain Square, Columbus, Ohio 43224. Indicate the county of your choice. Persons submitting more than one application will be disqualified.

WARNING TO SWIMMERS

Fred A. Schob, Enforcement Supervisor, District One Wildlife, cautions swimmers that it is unlawful for any person to swim in any pond or stream on any wildlife area. In addition to being unlawful, this can be very dangerous due to unseen obstructions in the water and there are no life guards on duty.

PENN CENTRAL CHAINED AGAIN

For the fourth time in three years, and for the same offense, Penn Central Transportation Company finds itself in court on a charge of violating Ohio's stream litter law.

No court date has been set on the latest charge.

The Division of Wildlife of the Department of Natural Resources, Tuesday, Aug. 14, filed a charge in Franklin County Municipal Court alleging that diesel oil from the company's Buckeye Yards polluted a tributary of the Scioto River at Raymond Memorial Golf Course, Columbus.

The date of the alleged violation was July 26, three days after the company was found guilty of the same offense and fined $500 in the Franklin County court.

Penn Central also was fined $500 in 1971 and $500 in 1972 after being charged with similar offenses at the same location by the Division of Wildlife.

No court date has been set on the latest charge.

H & R Block Offers Two Tax Courses

H & R Block, America's largest tax service, will offer two tax courses here beginning in mid-September, stated Mr. Jerry Grise local manager in Columbus.

"The first course will provide instruction in basic tax preparation, Grise said, "while the second will give advanced tax training to those with a working knowledge of income taxes." Grise pointed out that the ever increasing detail work involved in preparing tax returns makes it imperative that a tax man or woman know their job thoroughly, hence the necessity for basic and advanced courses.

"One of the most exciting things about the H & R Block Tax Courses is that when successfully completed, a job interview will be arranged if you so desire. Graduates of the course are under no obligation to accept employment," Grise stated.

The modest tuition fees charged for these courses includes all textbooks, supplies and tax forms necessary for completion of the schools. Both schools will begin in September and offer a choice of daytime or evening classes.

Students Meet

Students from Franklin County who will be starting at Miami University this fall will have a chance to meet each other at a picnic, 9:30 to 10:00 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 6, at Hickory Grove Shelter House in Blenden Woods Metropolitan Park.

The picnic is an effort to help incoming freshmen meet some of the other students from Franklin County who will be starting their first year at Miami.

Parents are welcome to attend. Soft drinks will be provided and everyone will bring their own food.

The affair is planned by the Franklin County Miami University Alumni Club officers. Further information may be obtained by contacting Larry Dill at 457-7653 or 225-3089.

Select Prizes

WINNERS in the Worthington Decorating Centre's grand opening drawing join store owner Cady M. Russell (center) to select their prizes. Mrs. Billy George (left), 6775 McVey Blvd., was awarded $100 worth of paint, while Mrs. James Rankin (right), 187 Greenlawn Ave., won $150 in custom draperies. Other winners were Mrs. Robert E. Millbourne, 1948 Gables Ct., who received $40 in decorator wallcovering, and Mrs. John Meima, 94 Holschman Ave., who won $200 of installed carpeting. The Decorating Centre is located at 88 Worthington Square Shopping Center, High St. and W. Wilson Bridge Rd.

Gardeners Day Out Sept. 3

Of interest to the 23 garden club members in Franklin County will be the annual state-wide "Gardener's Day Out" meeting scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 13 which will be held at Don Scott Field, Ohio State University.

Serving as general chairman of this event will be Mrs. Quentin Elder, second vice president, Ohio Association of Garden Clubs, which is sponsoring this meeting.

Serving as reservation chairman will be Mrs. Vance Hendricks, Rt. 1, Orient, Ohio, 43148. Deadline for submission of reservations will be Thursday, Sept. 6. Cost for the day will be $5.

Since this meeting is being scheduled one week prior to the annual Farm Science Review, all exhibits will be in place for the gardeners and their guests to observe.

As they are conducted about the 750-acre Review, they will view the latest developments in agricultural science and technology. There will be 250 exhibits covering the latest techniques for yard, garden and orchard plantings; in out-door recreation facilities; and in new ideas for homemakers.

Also planned will be a tour of the Horticulture Building, and landscape and flower plots, and possibly the cannery will also be in operation. The noon-day meal will be a beef barbecue around the farm pond. The program will begin at 9 a.m. with registration at Don Scott Field.

Fishing Derby Angles To End

Blue Star Mothers Stuffing

WEST COLUMBUS—The Central Ohio Lung Association, formerly the TB Society, has been seeing "stars" lately—Blue Star Mothers that is. The Ralph E. King Blue Star Mothers from the West side, some of the Lung Association's most faithful and avid volunteers, have been helping on a year-round basis for many years. Mrs. W.H. Powers, Mrs. John Giesl, Mrs. Hazel Oyer, Mrs. Harold Lyday, Mrs. Marian Jenny and Mrs. Oaley recently spent many hours of their time folding and inserting envelopes into annual reports. They, among other Blue Star groups, are the "stars" behind the scenes enabling Christmas Seals to do more in central Ohio. Volunteers such as these are always needed, even though Christmas Seal time comes only once a year, various mailings such as emphysema letters, Christmas Seal follow-ups, literature requests and annual reports make stuffing, folding and sending a year long activity for hard working volunteers. The Ralph E. King Blue Star Mothers have been working voluntarily for The Central Ohio Lung Association, formerly the TB Society, for many years. Shown here are (left to right) Mrs. Harold Lyday, Mrs. Marian Jenny and Mrs. Oaley help fold and insert envelopes into annual reports.

Alexander Appointed To SBA Advisory Council

West Columbus—Frank D. Ray, director of the Columbus District of the Small Business Administration (SBA), has announced the appointment of Nicolas Z. Alexander, legal counsel of The Ohio company, as a member of the Columbus District Advisory Council of the SBA. He resides at 1411 Bonnie Ridge Rd.

Ray said that Alexander's appointment to the Council was made in recognition of his knowledge of and continuing interest in problems of small business. As a member of the District Council, Alexander will take part in the semiannual meetings where the needs of the local small business community are discussed and the means by which SBA can most effectively meet these needs are considered.

The Advisory Council also serves as a channel of information to local business and commercial interests regarding specific SBA programs and as an advisory body which makes recommendations concerning SBA programs and keeps the district director informed of current economic conditions within the Columbus district.

Alexander was president of the Federal Bar Association in 1972; he is a member of the American Bar Association, Columbus Bar Association, Ohio State Bar Association, Ohio Division of Securities Advisory Board, the Columbus Chapter Lambda Society of American and the Association of Greek Orthodox Church.

They Say It's Not Bad

KIMBERLY MILLER, 6, begins the long hard climb to the end of books as she enters kindergarten at Prairie Norton Elementary in the South-Western City School district. From here to 12 years seems like a long time until you get near the end then you have to face 'life' with all its responsibilities.

Columbus Schools Open 129th Year

Columbus—Thousands of students go back to the classroom today as the Columbus Public Schools begin their 129th year.

Estimated elementary and secondary school enrollment for the new year totals 103,888, although figures for the first few days of school may fall below that number, according to Pupil Personnel Director Norval Goss.

Goss said official enrollment figures used in reports to the State Department of Education are not compiled until the first full week of October.

The 1973-74 enrollment is expected to reach the projected mark by that time, he said, adding that enrollment at the start of the school year is traditionally lower than the October figures.

Included in the enrollment estimate for the new year are 8,475 kindergarten pupils entering school for the first time. Goss reminded parents of the children, as well as parents of other new Columbus students, that their youngsters should be enrolled, if possible, before the first day of school.

He said parents should contact the school their children will attend, and added that those who do not know which school to contact may call the pupil personnel department (235-3783).

Children being enrolled in kindergarten must be five years old on or before Sept. 30, and new first graders must be six years old on or before that date, Goss pointed out.

He noted that no further arrangements are needed for kindergarten pupils who were enrolled during a pre-registration period last spring.

Besides the more than 103,000 elementary, junior and senior high students expected this year, school officials anticipate about 755 students will enroll in the school system's Adult Day and Evening high schools.

Immunization List Corrected

Grove City—The list of immunizations published by the South-Western City School District was incomplete. To help the parents of kindergartners who will be starting school next week the following is the complete list: polio, measles, diphtheria, pertussis or tetanus, measles and Rubella and small pox.

Clothes Collection Continues

For the fourth consecutive year The Spectator Newspapers are asking readers to help send a child to school by contributing clothing that is clean and in good repair.

Although the Welfare Department is interested primarily in clothing children for school, baby clothes and shopping bags for carrying items home are also needed.

Shoes are also badly needed, according to Mrs. Julia Stewart of the department.

The boxes will be in place for two weeks only.

Collection spots where clothing boxes are located are as follows: WEST Penney's in the Westland Mall; Big Bear in Lincoln Village Plaza, Sears in the Westland Mall and at the Spectator office, 3421 South Blvd. in the Great Western Shopping Center across from the Eiffel Tower.

Enrollment Drops But Overcrowding Remains

Despite an expected enrollment drop of nearly 2,300 pupils, overcrowding will still be a problem this year for many Columbus schools.

Elementary and secondary students are estimated to number 103,888 in 1973-74. Last year's enrollment totaled 106,144.

However, Deputy School Superintendent C. L. Dumaree said the decrease, due primarily to declining birth rates and families leaving the city, will provide little relief from the space problems of the last few years.

Dumaree said 23 secondary schools will remain on some type of emergency scheduling this year in order to house enrollments that exceed school building capacities.

AMONG THE 23 are nine severely overcrowded schools that will continue on split or double sessions.

The nine, same as last year, are Marion-Franklin, South, Walnut-Ridge and West High Schools, Mifflin Junior-Senior High, and Clinton, Johnson Park, Woodward Park and Yorktown Junior High.

Seven other senior high and seven junior high will remain on extended day scheduling, Dumaree said. Extended days allow the schools to accommodate more students by adding extra periods to the regular nine-period school day.

Overcrowding will also pose problems for 12 elementary schools this year. Dumaree said current plans are to transport at least 73 classes of pupils from those schools to other nearby elementary schools due to lack of space.

FOR THE MOST part, the schools are the same as last year, when 73 classes of students were transported.

Dumaree noted that Maybury Elementary is being returned to the list this year due to increased enrollment. Students were transported from Maybury during the 1971-72 school year.

Other elementaries from which students will be transported are Alpine, Cassidy, Cedarwood, Deshler, Easthaven, McGuffey, Parkmoor, South Mifflin, Sullivan, West Broad and Winteret.

Dropped from the list this year are Devonshire and Linden elementaries. Dumaree said a decrease in the number of students at Linden will allow the school to house its full enrollment.

DEVONSHIRE WILL remain overcrowded, he said, but work has been started on a new addition that will provide four new classrooms at the school. The addition is expected to be completed during the year.

Dumaree noted that relief is on the way for other overcrowded schools. Planning is either underway or completed for additions to Cassidy, Cedarwood, South Mifflin, Sullivan and West Broad, according to Howard Merriman, executive director of development.

A contract has been awarded for construction of an addition to Alpine, and advertising for bids is now underway for additions to Deshler, Easthaven, Parkmoor and Winteret, Merriman added.

Overcrowding at Maybury and McGuffey, he said, will be relieved by construction of new schools, which are now in the planning stage.

IN OTHER CHANGES for the new school year, Dumaree said Ninth Avenue Elementary is being phased out. The 94 students who attended the school last year will be enrolled at Fifth Avenue Elementary in 1973-74.

The change was possible, Dumaree said, because of dwindling enrollments at both schools due to business expansion in their attendance districts and the conversion of family dwellings to off-campus housing for Ohio State students.

Also being phased out this year, Dumaree said, is Clearbrook Elementary. Under the school construction program, planning is now underway to convert Clearbrook into a new school for the emotionally handicapped.

Clearbrook's 100 students will attend either Douglas, Garfield or Eastwood elementaries this year, depending on the decision of the students' parents, Dumaree said.

Glaucoma Screening At West

West Columbus—The Tri-Village Lions in cooperation with the Ohio Society for the Prevention of Blindness are sponsoring a free glaucoma screening in various locations throughout the city. The screening will be at West High School and the Vision Center on High St. Saturday, Sept. 8, between 9 a.m. and noon and Sunday, Sept. 9, between 1 and 4 p.m.

Glaucoma most often strikes those over 35 and destroys vision by blocking the drainage channel within the eye increasing the pressure which in turn destroys the cells of the retina.

The disease often progresses without pain or discomfort. For this reason few people recognize anything is wrong. When the disease is discovered early enough, treatment is simple and the progress of the disease is checked without any further loss of vision.

Glaucoma is the second leading cause of blindness.

Self-Improvement Course Registration Sept. 11, 13

West Columbus—West High Enrollment for adult self-improvement courses will take place from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 11, and Thursday, Sept. 13.

Classes begin Tuesday, Sept. 18 and Thursday, Sept. 27.

A new feature of the program this year is that senior citizens (65 and over) may enroll for half price. Courses which meet for two hours per night have a $15 fee. Those which meet for three hours per night are $20.

The classes are trying to meet the self improvement needs and interests of a wide-range of adults. They meet once a week for 10 weeks, ending in early December.

New courses at West this year include, on Tuesday, Beginning Accounting, Art, Beginning Camping, Environmental Education and Retirement-Problems and Enjoyment.

New offerings which meet on Thursday are Intermediate Accounting, Metric System, Public Relations for Employees and Real Estate and Insurance for Homeowners.

In addition to these new offerings are the following Tuesday offerings: Beginning Typing, Interior Decorating, Office Machine Practice, Advanced Shorthand and Beginning Sewing.

Offerings for Thursday include Basic Law, Multi-Ethnic Studies, Office Machines, Rapid Reading, Beginning Shorthand and Advanced Typing.

Registrants will only be notified if an insufficient number (15) enroll for a course.

For more information or for answers to questions call Richard Weber at West High School, 374-1197 or 374-1198.

Visiting Research Center

GALLOWAY—THE Jr. ROTC Unit at Westland High School wrapped up its summer program with a visit to NASA's Lewis Research Center in Cleveland. Aircraft and rocket propulsion and electric power generation in space are among the major programs at Lewis. Tour guide E. W. Farina, a technician in the zero-G research area, showed the group a movie about the work done to design a thermal shield for Skylab so it could be used; the air tunnel used to test the strength of aircraft and materials and the zero-G research facility with its 70 foot drop chamber (The chamber contains styrene balls the size of peas to cushion the payload dropped. The chamber gives testiers five of 10 seconds of zero-G. It is equivalent to stopping a small compact going 120 mph in 15 feet.); and a museum containing full size space capsules, rockets, space food and displays of work done at the Center. Farina told the ROTC cadets that space exploration seems mankind is progressing by peaceful means. "We have always had inventions during a war which were later transferred to use in civilian life. Now we can learn and are forced to develop new ways of doing things for space but there is no destruction of life." The group is shown here hearing a lecture on light-weight experimental jet engines. They are (left to right) Alan Warner, Steve Allen, John Wade, Randy Carter, Jeff Apangler, Ken McGarvey, Glen Perram, Eddie Howell, Carlos Sagraves, Dan Alexander, Jeff Snyder, Jim Ford, Jim Wade and Spectator West Editor Kathy Devaney. A business meeting will precede the discussion.

Ardith Lynch, Franklin County Director of Council on Aging, will speak to the group at 12:30.

There will be cards, bingo, shuffleboard, crafts and a sing-along the remainder of the afternoon.

All senior citizens in this area are

Ohio State Fair Queen Is Superb

THE OHIO STATE FAIR is over but the memories will live on for a long time for many area youngsters and their parents and friends. The Fair was especially beautiful for two area girls as they rated high in state competition. One was Miss Phyllis VanArsdale who was named Ohio Senior Miss Majorette. Another was Miss Lynn Fields who was fourth runnerup for Ohio State Fair Queen. She is the reigning Miss Ohio VICA. The beautiful Queen Miss Gayle VanDeGrift the state Business Office Education Queen (BOE), gave a big boost to Vocational Education as she was the first vocational education category nominee ever named Ohio State Fair Queen. Much of her success has been credited to Mrs. Estelle Fark, a former National FHA Queen. Mrs. Fark coordinated the five vocational queen entrants and guided them throughout the Fair. In these Queen and other photos by Executive Editor Ray Adams are the following. (1) Governor John J. Gillman gets ready to bestow a kiss on Queen Gayle as MC Bob Braun observes. (2) The Queen and Lynn Fields, Miss Ohio VICA, POSE FOR AN OFFICIAL PHOTO. (3) Miss Ohio Senior Majorette Phyllis VanArsdale is with the 1972 Ohio State Fair Queen, Miss Brenda Sutherland. (4) Just as she was announced as the 1973 Queen Gayle bursts into tears and screams with joy as the first runnerup Taryn Hunter reflects. (5) Ohio Department of Education BOE Director Ted Johnson plants a happy kiss on Gayle. (6) Prior to the pageant Gayle visited with several other queens. From left are Gayle; Miss Lorain County Paula Stewart; Miss Ohio VICA Lynn Fields; Miss Lorain International Veronica Gonzales and Miss Ohio DECA Wendy Tanber. Couture Sportswear

'IN' fashion
with Tess Stern

HAZEL HAIRE, creative designer for Friedrichs Sport.

Always the right combination no matter how you mix and match...a plaid sleeveless vest over dogwood cashmere turtleneck and matching tube pant. Prince of Wales Plaid flare pant teamed with dogwood bow-tie Qiana blouse...matching cashmere blouse sweater...plaid-front duffle jacket. Lazarus Trendsetter Shop.

Smashing new looks for Fall...the classic shawl-collar cardigan in heather tweed cable knit, belted in natural tan leather. Matching skirt and dogwood cashmere turtleneck sweater.

IT'S GETTING harder to pin down sportswear as a category...when much of evening wear, lingerie and high fashion have the same casual look...however HAZEL HAIRE's premiere collection for Friedrichs Sport has come up with endless variations of the classic theme...exciting clothes in compatible groupings from which a chic woman can build her own wardrobe...it promises to be a winner!

HAZEL HAIRE's return to the fashion world was greeted with applause during the showings in New York...I recall remarking to my daughter who was photographing the fashions...take as many pictures as you can, this is a great collection.

Although Hazel is an accomplished abstract impressionist painter, she gained valuable fashion experience as associate designer for Anne Klein, Wragge, and Beene Bazaar...her husband is Bill Haire, the well known designer for Victoria Royal.

She brings to her new assignment, as designer for Friedrichs Sport, a wealth of knowledge and experience and a new fashion concept in sportswear...the unique touch of the fine artist...color. "My philosophy of designing," she remarked, "is to provide women with choice within color groups so that they can easily make up a diversified wardrobe." Very much in tune with what's happening today, she draws her inspiration from her surroundings...from people around her...from nature.

HER PALETTE of colors are predominantly earth tones...Sandy Beige, Smoke Grey, Forest Green, Raisin Brown and Terra Cotta...which she uses in solid color fabrics and Confetti Tweed; Prince of Wales Plaid, and Horizontal Stripes...fabrics made to her specifications especially for this collection...sweater knits, double knit jerseys, wools and worsteds, gabardines, lodens and cashmeres...frequently using the bias cut to achieve fluidity, especially in her dresses and long skirt separates.

IN AN EFFORT to be all things to all women, the Haire Collection also includes cardigans, sweaters, knit pants and skirts, dresses, jumpers, belted wrap coats, and duffle jackets...she even tops it with head-bugging caps and turbans.

I was delighted to learn, while chatting with Miss Lee, fashion buyer for the Trendsetter Shop at Lazarus, that the Hazel Haire Collection is now at Lazarus, exclusively in Columbus. You can see it...in all its glory...in the Trendsetter Shop on the Third Floor Downtown!

Conley, Reider In New Act

At the request of the AVCO folks, WLWC, I stopped in at Scott's Inn the other evening and caught Rob Reider and Gwen Conley in their club act. While I normally don't review an act that has already left town, I enjoyed these two so much, I thought you would want to know a little about their night club act. Even though many of you view them on the Bob Braun 50-50 Club TV show, seen over TV-4, their act in a club is different.

First, let me say that for state fair week, they did a good job crowd wise. Catching the second show on a week night, they practically filled the room.

But when you add together the talents and popularity of these two people, it is no surprise.

Rob opened the show. He came on with a good rendition of "Country Roads," then drifted into a real powerful tune which he handled with ease. "McCarthy Park." This fellow has a crystal clear voice with excellent control. In fact, Rob was in complete control of the show and the audience at all times. But, it is Rob's voice that sells his act. He is a good stylist, with a darn nice sounding singing voice.

Another plus in his favor is Rob's personality. Of course, after being on the 50-50 Club for so long, he should be an expert in stage technique and knowing how to handle an audience.

Helping out Rob are two fellows who travel with him in his act, Joe Stone, a fantastic banjo player and one of the best men I've heard of for a while, Larry Hamby. Not only do these two add some mighty fine instrumental work to the act, such as their bit on "Dueling Banjos," where Joe plays banjo and Rob and Larry play guitar, but they add plenty of good vocal harmonies to the act.

Rob closed his show with another sock type tune, at least it is the way he does it, "Rocky Mountain High." The crowd were very pleased with Rob's performance, and believe me, they showed it. His act contains a little bit of everything, a good variety of songs, good pacing, some humor and lovely material, which kept the show interesting and entertaining. After Rob did his bit, Gwen took over and knocked them dead with her voice. This gal belongs with the best of them in the business, including Ella, Marilyn Maye and the other top female singers. Gwen is one of the strongest stylist to appear in a local club for many a moon. She practically brought down the house with such things as "Beautiful People," "Killing Me Softly," and the oldie, "I Should Care."

In fact, she possesses most of the qualities that I mention concerning Rob. Gwen is a personable, easy going performer. She is very much at ease on stage. While these has all of these assets that make or break an entertainer's act, there is no doubt about it, Gwen's voice is her golden facet.

Like Rob, Gwen appears regularly on the 50-50 Club. And, to think that both of these people are Columbus products. Gwen and Rob are truly seasoned, professional performers. If you did not catch them, which by the way, was a last minute booking for Scott's Inn, since their scheduled cancelled at the last minute, I am sure these two will be brought back by some club in our area. And, where they do return, make sure you make it a point to see them, you won't find any better any where.

KINGS ISLAND

Last week I mentioned that I was on the set of the taping of a Brady Bunch TV show at Kings Island. The show will be shown later on during the coming season.

After arriving on the set, and after the usual introductions to the cast and crew, they got down to business of finishing shooting the weeks schedule. I was there on Friday, and they had been shooting the entire week. Friday was a game of shooting between rain drops. But, the old weatherman cooperated, and they were able to keep pretty much on schedule.

The day's schedule called for part of the cast to be filmed on a ride called the Monster. This did not involve much of a problem but, the last scene did, the entire cast on the Roller Coaster. The camera had to be specially mounted, since it could not be hand held on the wild ride. Florence Henderson, Ann B. Davis, Robert Reed only wanted one ride, so that meant a few dry runs to make sure everything was set. But, the children, in the cast, Susan Olsen, Mike Bookland, Christopher Knight, Maureen McCormick, Barry Williams and Eve Plim, were very unhappy, because they wanted to ride the Roller Coaster several times. After several tries, the scene was shot with no hitches.

As you can imagine there was the normal pandemonium on the set. The show is produced by Paramount, and they sent in a crew of sixty people, including script consultants, make-up people, sound and film crews, press agents and a host of others. There were about fifty extras hired from the area to fill in the crowd scenes at Kings Island. With all this activity, it was difficult to get an exact idea as to what this particular show was about, except the plot is a combination business and holiday for characters in the show, and they keep losing each other at the huge park. From what I watched, it will be a hilarious show, one the best during the season.

Just one thing about the cast and crew, all of them do get along like one big family.

Everyone of them was extremely friendly and talked to this columnist as if I were a cast member.

When I get the date for the show, it will be passed on, so that you may make sure to view it. You who have been at Kings Island, will enjoy watching all of the happenings in the program. By the time you read this the Ohio State Fair will be history. But, everyone has been asking me questions about Sonny & Cher.

Contrary to what you may have read elsewhere, in my opinion, Sonny and Cher put on one great act at the Fair. While there is no question regarding the vocal talents, I thought the entire act was just what was to be expected for that type of situation.

After covering the fair for many years, and catching almost every name act that has set foot on the stage in front of the grandstand, I was pleased with their performance. One thing that amazed me, was the fact that both Sonny & Cher sound exactly the same in person as they do on TV or records. This shows that they don't have to use any electronic gimmicks to see their voices.

Cher, who I believe to be the most talented, and the most conceited, as one of the finest of the name entertainers, today. What a sound, and what fantastic control. Now, if someone could only get her personality, both on and off stage to match her talents, I would be in her corner, all the way. But, her personality ruins her in my book.

Sonny, on the other hand, holds things together off and on stage with his friendly, warm approach. While he is also a top flight performer, it is Cher that has most of the talent in the family.

Their stay at the Ramada Inn South was hectic for the Inn's staff. Very demanding. They flew in on Hugh Hefner's private jet with a staff of twenty, including to Bunnies who serve as stewardesses on the plane. The Ramada Inn South was a swinging place, to say the least. And, so was the grandstand area during their two appearances. Sonny & Cher broke all records for entertainment at the Ohio State Fair. It was truly a mob scene. I rode with them to the fair, and even though there was a special Sheriff escort, I thought they would be mobbed before they got the back stage area. They certainly have a large following. Yes, they will be back on fall television this year, with the same format as last years.

I hope this answers all the questions on Sonny & Cher.

Concert

The Columbus Symphony Orchestra will present the second annual "Brown Bag Pops Concert" on the State House lawn at noon, Wednesday, Sept. 12th.

The one-hour free performance will be an informal event with many downtown Columbus shoppers, visitors, and employees encouraged to bring their lunches in brown bags to the pops concert," explained Nat Greenberg, Columbus Symphony general manager. Several hundred people attended last year when the Symphony introduced its unique musical format of the "Brown Bag Pops Concert."

In case of rain, the concert will be performed at noon Thursday, Sept. 13.

Oktoberfest Celebration Will Benefit Children's Hospital

The 7th Annual Oktoberfest celebration will provide an exciting variety of musical performers.

Among those scheduled to appear during the September 27 through 30 event are: Frank Yankovic, internationally famed recording artist and "King of the Polka;" Cleveland's renowned Edelweiss Orchestras; Schnickel Fritz and Hummel; Rheingold Band; Jack Hedges and the Music Makers; The Lederhosen Five; Ray Galla and His Polka Gems; The Credit Card Quartet; The Scandinavian Folk Dance Group and Hank Haller's Barvarian Band.

Frank Massaro, Oktoberfest General Manager, recently announced a limited number of merchant and craft spaces remain unfilled for Oktoberfest.

The four-day "fest at the Ohio State Fairgrounds" features many old world arts and crafts displays, games of strength and fun, German Village merchants, lots of good German food, singlongs, dancing and plenty of beer.

Sponsor of the event is the German Village Business Association with benefits to TWIG's of Children's Hospital.

Cardinals Heading For Winning Season

By Sandy Schwartz
Special Staff Writer

BOASTING WHAT area coaches tab as one of the best running backs in the central district, Worthington's football team looks headed to an even better season than last year's 6-3 record.

That Mister Wonderful comes in the form of one Mr. John Madry. Madry is a 6-10, 185 pound halfback who sprints the hundred yard dash in 9.8 second.

"We're going to be quick, real quick," boasts an eager Bob "Smoke" Wain, fearless leader of the football Cardinals of up north. "We'll be smaller than everyone else but I hope to be quicker and this should make up for our size," he added with a note of a chuckle in his voice.

THE CARDS return nine lettermen, six of these started last year, but a big graduation loss will be Larry Blackburn as all-league fullback. Smokey feels confident though, that Madry can pick up the slack.

Tim Crandall (6, 100) will return to direct the slot offense, or the flip flop offense as Coach Wain refers to it. He logged much playing time last year and Smokey indicated that he now looks like he can stand the heat in the kitchen.

Stacked behind Crandall in the backfield will be an eager Madry and Dave Allen (6, 170). Dave played some last year but now he also is a senior and according to Smokey "a bit seasoned". He will occupy the fullback slot. In that important Z back slot will be junior Gary Chambers (6, 165). Others vying for backfield playing time include Guy Callison (6, 170) only a sophomore, and Winston Wells (6-4, 170) a senior.

THE PASS catching department also looks stacked. Jeff Teach (6, 175) will open up at tight end and Craig Nowaki (6-5, 180) will back him up.

At the wide spot will be Tom Aiba, a senior. Aiba, a real speedster himself, stands 5-9 and weighs in at 160 pounds. Playing behind Aiba will be Gary Sullivan (6, 170). Aiba is a senior and Sullivan a junior.

Up front at center will be Chris Gallagher a 6 foot 100 pound sophomore who has had no game experience. But Smokey indicates he is quite pleased with the work of the young man.

At one guard spot you can look for co-captain Mike Fluelen (5-4, 145) and at the other guard spot you'll probably find another co-captain in Mark Lammirano (6, 180). Both are returnees and Smokey indicates both are enthused team leaders.

BACKING THAT rough and tough pair will be senior Gary Costas (5-11, 170) and senior Mark Elliott (6, 170).

The other team captain, Doug Burkhardt, a 6-3 190 pound monster of a tackle, will lead up the line that will try to pry the open holes for the swift backfielders. Bill Webb (6, 180) is in line for the other spot.

Backups eager for action there include Tim Mustel (6-8, 185) and John Bodnyk (6-4, 190).

"Defense is where we'll be a bit green but the kids are working real hard and things will work out," commented Coach Wain.

BURKHART will be at one tackle with Ted Teach (5-9, 185) at the middle guard opening. Working hard for same action in that interior line are Gregg Merrill, Rob Ralston, Jerry Stapan and John Morrow.

The only sure linebacker right now looks to be Lammirano.

Pete Kight (6, 160) and Don Walcott (5-6, 160) are working at the safety position right now with the only sure starter to date at cornerback being Rick Kopf (6, 160).

"We have a definite problem in our lack of depth but we're steadily improving already," states Smokey.

SMOKEY REPORTS enthusiasm and spirit as being "great" and he already has cited some improvement in the squad since opening drills.

INCIDENTLY 98 candidates arrived for the first day of practice, the biggest Worthington turnout since 1969.

"We definitely can't be considered as a contender for the title," Smokey said when asked about the Ohio Capital Conference race, "I see Westerville, as the team to beat," he surely added.

But Smokey can guarantee one thing, if you like quickness, see Madry and company.

Westland Fortunes Looking Up

By Sandy Schwartz
Special Staff Writer

Football fortunes at Westland High School look to be changing this year. Last year's 1-8 season will probably not correctly reflect what the Cougars have in store for their opponents this football season.

Coach Don Elavsky returns 15 lettermen, all starters, and he points out that enthusiasm and pride are building on this senior team.

"These kids are just real competitive, and the enthusiasm has just picked up tremendously over last year. We're smaller but it's all there," said Elavsky when speaking of his Cougars.

Heading this long line of returnees is quarterback Richard Morris (5-9, 182). Richard, a senior, is throwing the ball well according to Coach Elavsky and with a strong backfield, which Westland possesses, an explosive offense could be in store for enemies.

Tom Rice a 5-4, 165 pound speedster is back at halfback. At the other halfback spot will be either Mike David (6-4, 185) or Mike Pritchard (5-4, 155). Both have game experience.

The fullback spot is still unsettled but two smashers are impressing Coach Elavsky at present. Paul Kordy (5-10, 194) and Gary Hoyle (5-4, 185) are vying for that coveted running position. Both also have game experience.

The backfield has looked pretty good so far, yet I believe that this will be one of our main strengths," said Coach Elavsky.

Mike Daum (6-4, 194), a senior, will open at tight end and the coach is high on him.

"He has showed us alot, good speed and good hands," explains Coach Elavsky. Coach Elavsky displays a grin of confidence when he speaks of the wide receiver spot.

Co-captain Dave Wandrey (6-0, 180) and sure handed occupies that spot. Dave could be one of the premier receivers in the area according to the coach.

The offensive line was not concrete as of the last time we spoke to Coach Elavsky. Sure starters are Andy Burns, a small but powerful center, Gregg Lachenbiller (6-9, 175) and Bob Sibele (5-10, 183) at tackle.

All are seniors and Lachenbiller is another one of Coach Elavsky's dandys. Gregg is a two year starter at guard and Coach Elavsky describes him as a real team leader and a hardnose kid.

September 8, 1973

The Spectator-9

Gregg is also the other co-captain. Turning to defense Coach Elavsky hinted a lack of depth there.

"We're kind of thin on defense but these kids are really eager to learn so things will get better," he said.

Mark George (5-10, 180) is returning to man one linebacker slot with Dick Hoyle (5-4, 180) flanking him there. Senior Richard McMahon will be backing up there and Doug Briggs (5-11, 180) will also be rendering his services somewhere there. Steve Taylor is slated for defensive duty, probably at middle guard.

The only sure deep back right now is Mark Johnson (5-7, 160). Mark is a senior.

"I'd have to assume that this conference (the Ohio Capital Conference) is one of the best around," said Elavsky, "So it's real hard to say how we'll do, there are alot of tough teams in this area this year."

COUNT DOWN FISHING

Sometimes we cast our arms off in a spot where we caught fish before. We know they're there, but they just won't hit. If this has ever happened to you, chances are the fish you're trying to catch are at a depth you're not reaching with your lure.

Here's a tip that will help you to find how deep they're lying. First switch to a spinner or a lure that sinks when it hits the surface of the water, start counting until it hits bottom and remember the number you stopped at. If it hit bottom at the count of 30 for example, then start your retrieve. If your lure sinks to a count of 15, then retrieve it, if it doesn't find them cast again and stop your count at the number 10.

If you hook a fish or get a strike at this count, then each time you cast out, stop counting at the number 10 and you should be where the fish are lying.

You can't catch them if you can't find them, just remember, let your lure sink and count down before you retrieve it to find the magic number.

HIDDEN LAKES

A new concept in leisure-time living is now available within 45 minutes of Columbus at Hidden Lakes. Hidden Lakes, just east of Mt. Gilead off Rt. 36 West, is an ownership campsite area offering a wide range of recreational facilities to owners.

The project, being developed by Maurice River Company will feature a recreation complex with swimming pool, tennis courts, riding stables, archery range, basketball court, baseball diamond and will also offer three lakes stocked for fishing, sand beach swimming area, central water and electricity, and comfort stations. The Kokosing River, a well stocked fishing river runs through the property and the area is heavily wooded for outdoor nature activities.

Hidden Lakes is open year round and its location affords easy access to winter sports, hunting, state lakes, boat marinas, golf courses, race tracks and other facilities. Hidden Lakes is a charter member of ALDA (American Land Developers Association) and CCC (Camp Coast to Coast) which offers the use of private campgrounds nationwide to owners at Hidden Lakes.

Construction has begun on recreational facilities and sites are open for inspection seven days a week until dark.

NEW WATERFOWL POINT SYSTEM

This year, standard bag and possession limits have been abandoned in favor of the point system used by the U. S. Department of the Interior. Adoption of this type season in Ohio will give sportsmen five additional days of hunting under restrictions set by the U. S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife of the Interior Department.

With the point system, each species of waterfowl is worth a certain number of points per bird. The daily bag limit will be reached when the point value of the last bird taken added to the point values of the other birds already taken during the day reaches or exceeds 100 points.

The point value of species and sexes taken are as follows:
- canvasback and redhead ducks are 100 points each, except in Ottawa County, where they cannot be taken. - hen mallard, woodcock and hooded merganser are 90 points each.

- blue winged teal, green winged teal, scamp, sea duck, widgeon, shoveler, gadwall and merganser (except hooded) are 15 points each. All other species and sexes of ducks, including black ducks and pintail, are 25 points each.

The possession limit is the maximum number of birds which could have been legally taken in two days.

The daily bag limit for cost is 15 and the possession limit, after the first day, is 30.

There will be a special waterfowl season at Pymatuning Reservoir. The season for ducks, coot and merganser is Oct. 13-30 and Nov. 3-Dec. 8.

The standard bag and possession limits will apply for the Pymatuning season. The daily bag limit for ducks is four including not more than two woodcock and two black ducks.

The possession limit at Pymatuning is eight including not more than two woodcock and four black ducks.

The Pymatuning goose season will be Oct. 13-Dec. 14. The daily bag limit for geese is one Canada goose, possession limit of two.

Waterfowl hunting season daily hunting period is sunrise to sunset. Sunday hunting, except for fox, is prohibited.

Federal law prohibits taking brand, blue or snow geese, canvasback and redhead ducks at Pymatuning.

No person 16 years of age or older may hunt ducks or geese without having a valid federal duck stamp. The stamp must be validated by a signature across the face of the stamp in ink.

Migratory birds wounded by hunting must be immediately killed and possessed, to become a part of the daily bag limit.

No one may hunt merganser, coot, ducks or geese by an aid of baiting, or on or over a baited area; with a shotgun capable of holding more than three shells; with a rifle, pistol, crossbow, trap, snare, net, drug poison, fishhook or explosive; from a sink box or any type of vehicle, including airplanes; from a moving watercraft having a motor attached or from moving sailboats; by the use of recorded or electrically amplified bird calls or sounds; or by the use of live birds or decoys.

No one may kill or capture any migratory bird without making a reasonable effort to retrieve the bird and include it in his daily bag limit.

No one may leave any migratory game bird at any place or in the custody of another person unless such birds have a tag attached, signed by the hunter, giving his address, total number and kinds of birds and the date the birds were killed.

One fully feathered wing must remain attached to all migratory game birds while being transported from the place where they were taken until they arrive at the home of the hunter or at a commercial preservation facility.

HUNTING AND FISHING DAY IN OHIO

Governor John J. Gilligan has proclaimed Sept. 22 as Hunting and Fishing Day in Ohio.

"Hunters and fishermen have always been in the forefront on the conservation movement," Gilligan said.

"Cooperation among sportsmen's clubs and state and federal agencies has resulted in many fine wildlife conservation programs."

"Through the years, Ohio sportsmen have paid for wildlife conservation efforts in the state through license fees and taxes paid on hunting and fishing equipment," the Governor said.

During 1972, hunters and fishermen purchased 1.5 million licenses, producing more than $7 million to assist in financing wildlife management activities.

Ohio Hunting and Fishing Day will coincide with National Hunting and Fishing Day. Many state and national sportsmen's groups are planning open houses and other activities for the day.

Dan C. Armbruster, Chief of the Division of Wildlife of the Natural Resources Department and other wildlife division officials will visit Ohio hunting and fishing clubs and state wildlife areas during the day.

SQUIRREL POPULATION UP FROM LAST YEAR

Ohio's squirrel population is as good or better than last year in most of the 66 counties, and hunters should be successful when the 1973 season opens Friday, Sept. 7, according to Dan C. Armbruster, chief of the division of wildlife of the Natural Resources Department.

Armbruster said field reports from game protectors indicate a large squirrel population, accompanied by a good nut crop statewide.

The only exceptions are some areas of the southeast and southwest where late frost damaged some nut producing trees.

Cahill Confident That Ridge Will Be A Toughie

By Sandy Schwartz

WALNUT RIDGE coach Vince Cahill speaks confidently when he talks about his mighty Scot football squad and, after all, with the group of veterans he has, 21 lettermen and nine starters, he seems to have good reason for his confidence.

Last year's Scots knocked Eastmoor off of the City South throne and then fell short in the mud bowl for the City Championship and Coach Cahill expresses desire for a return to that coveted championship duel, and an improvement on that 6-3-1 1972 record.

"The conditions that we played Northland under last year in the City Championship game were just awful, mud everywhere, but we aren't making excuses, we'd just like to get back there this year," expatiated Cahill.

ONCE AGAIN as its feature attraction, the Ridge features Matt Guttman a solid 5-11, 196 pound senior blockbuster fullback in the backfield. Matt, an all city performer anchors a backfield which once again will run out of the famed Wishbone T.

Gary Gioa a three game starter last year will direct that Wishbone T. George Snyder (5-7, 175) will be at one halfback slot with Pete Bickel (5-11, 175) a senior and Jeff Stace (5-9, 165) and Jerry Logan (5-8, 180) both juniors all vying for that other halfback position.

THREE SENIORS are fighting for the center spot, Pete Lesley (5-8, 175) John Shelton (5-10, 195) and Dave McBride (5-10, 180).

Lions Roaring But A Little Green

By Sandy Schwartz

Special Staff Writer

"We are really young and inexperienced," claims a concerned Bexley coach Dan O'Brien. "We have only seven lettermen returning and again I say that we are very green, but the enthusiasm that these kids are showing is just exceptional."

Green is a pretty good word to describe a team that lost 19 starters from a third place 1972 Mid-Eight finisher. A few of the mainstays on that 9 wins and 3 loss finisher of last season are back, and one big one, is back in a different capacity.

CO-CAPTAIN Jeff Edelstein, an all league tackle last year, has made the move to fullback. At 6-1, 265, Coach O'Brien tells us that Jeff is quick on starts and he feels that he will fit right in and provide the Lions with some power running.

"We'll be running out of our Power T that we have used successfully in the past," said O'Brien. He also indicated that the speed and power of Edelstein will be of great value in that T, this being instrumental in the switch.

But one man that won't be back is Steve Germain a steady three year performer at quarterback for the fifty Lions. His absence is being felt strongly already.

The quarterback spot is up for grabs and being shared by three sharpshooters and Dan indicates that it may be a while before a clean cut starter emerges. Steve O'Brien (6-1, 140), Rich Germain (6-10, 150) and Jim Betts (5-10, 160) are all contenders.

"No one has the inside track right now," added Coach O'Brien, "and this makes them scrap even harder."

LETTERMAN Howard Cohen (4-11, 178) is expected to be the center and he will be flanked at the guards by Rick Kline (5-10, 185) and Dave Knell (5-10, 180).

YOUNG INCLUDE Rob Robinson (5-10, 185), Steve Evans (6-1, 230) and Co-captain Tom Holden. Holden is a solid 6 foot 200 pounder who along with Returning starters Dave Moore (5-11, 180) and Dave Golden (5-10, 185) hold down the guard positions with John Hackitt close behind.

At Dolder (6-1, 225) and John Mannick (6-1, 205) are experienced tackles and Jeff Welch will do the backing up there.

FLEETFOOTED and sure handed Bob Bartling, only a junior will be an end spot and another junior Jim Gillmer (5-11, 155) will probably be at the other one.

The defense under the direction of Jack Stephenson faces major rebuilding in some areas but the Split 4 or Notre Dame 4, whichever you prefer to call it, finds 3 returnees to anchor it.

"If we have a weak spot right now it's the lack of experience on defense but we'll iron that out," claims Cahill.

WHEN ASKED about the City League South race Cahill responded this way, "We are definitely going to be a contender, and Marion Franklin who we open our league schedule with figures to be real strong. I also look for West and Eastmoor to be real tough, but again, we plan to be right up there."

Vince claims that attitude is at its finest and being labeled the team to beat has no bearing on them.

You'd probably be safe in betting that Walnut Ridge will be right up there and maybe more, and who knows, perhaps we have a City League football dynasty growing here, something like Eastmoor has had.

After all, Coach Cahill was tutored under mind-melter Bob Stuart.

Edelstein is expected to go both ways, (both offense and defense) and lead the fresh squad into combat.

THE END POSITIONS could be occupied by junior Jeff Holtfretter (5-1, 190) and Bryce Johnson (6-2, 130). These two will be catching the bullets for the Bexley offense.

Along with Edelstein, the Lions will feature another hard nose running back in John Bernlohr. John is a holdover from last year's backfield and at 165 Coach O'Brien feels he is somewhat of a cannon on legs.

The other halfback slot will probably be shared by Steve Marr and Tom Beck. Reports are that both are showing steady improvement.

DEFENSIVE COACH Bill Hoyer finds that Edelstein and Holden are the only returnees from last year's defensive squad. It looks as though some major rebuilding lies in his hands.

"OF OUR 53 squad members right now, 23 of them are freshmen so again, I say we are young, but I think that we can make up for this in other ways, enthusiasm being one of those ways," said O'Brien.

"These kids are really eager to learn and this is visible in our progress already."

O'Brien added that he feels this year's squad is quicker than last year's.

"I figure Groveport and Urbana to be the teams to beat in our league and we play Groveport our third game so, I guess we'll know just where we stand early."

This statement by Lion coach Dan O'Brien gives up about the best indication of how the Lions will be.

West's Koblenz Sees Baseball Better Than Football

By Sandy Schwartz

Special Staff Writer

When you talk football with West's coach Dave Koblenz, he likes to talk baseball. It seems that Big Dave has a fine baseball squad coming back this school year and he sort of shrugs at his returning football squad.

Is that a decoy? Things don't look as bad around THE WEST barracks as Kobe makes it look. After all, 10 lettermen do return.

Ron Williams, a 6-1, 180 pound smashing bruiser returns with his swift moves and unswerving niceness to enemy tacklers this year. Smooth Ron is tabbed as a shoe in for All-city honors by area coaches.

But Coach Koblenz feels unsure at this point who will be handing the ball off to talented Ron. (He cracked the line at about five yards a try last year.)

"This is definitely a weak spot of ours, this quarterback situation, we have about four kids that don't look real bad back there but losing two good ones from last year and not having experience will hurt," contends Dave.

These two quarterbacks first made the Cowboy offense last year were Chuck Walker and Larry Todd. Filling their shoes should be no easy chore for their successor (s) but giving it a whirl are Mike Bowman and Linwood (Scottie) Patrick. Bowman is a senior and Patrick a young 10th grader.

Bill Brentlinger (5-10, 170), who shared the fullback duties last year, is back as a fulltimer this year, and he and Williams will be looked to to do most of the running chores.

Others expected to be of help in that ground gobbling offense are Tom Biggers (5-10, 195) and Mark Reeves (5-8, 145). Both were starters and lettered last year on defense where they are expected to play a big role again.

Rosie Williams a 5-7 running back is making a bid for some playing time according to Coach Koblenz and Dave seems to like what he sees in him. "He is real quick and maybe if he matures a little he could help."

The Buff and Brown will open up with Dave McKee, a senior letterman at one of the receiving spots and big things are expected of him.

"The offensive line is beginning to shape up now but we've still quite a few holes to patch up," explains Dave

Coach Feels Rams Have A Chance

By Sandy Schwartz

Special Staff Writer

"If we can stay healthy and in real good shape, we stand a chance," says Whitehall grid mentor Mike Capozziello.

"The way I figure it we haven't lost a game yet," he added, at a pre-season get together.

When Coach Capozziello speaks of being in real good shape, he probably is referring to last year's fading Rams when they lost their lead to an aroused Eastmoor team with under four minutes of playing time left in the contest.

Or, he could be referring to the other two times that the Rams went into the fourth quarter with comfortable leads only to have the roof cave in again.

"I GUESS ONE of the reasons that we lost those leads was because of a lot of those kids having to go both ways. To try to eliminate that tiredness, we are going to do a lot of pre-season running and I think that this will help us in shape," explained Mike.

But as Mike intimated, there's no use crying over spilled milk, and the black and white will hustle onto the field this football season with 10 returning lettermen.

Returning to the quarterback spot will be snightly Ram Jerry when asked about the interior line situation.

Gary Yoder a solid 5-11, 180 pound senior returns to anchor the line. He will be flanked on either side by returnee Hap Hall (5-11, 175) and possibly be another defensive standout, Don Snyder (5-11, 180).

Working hard there for starting roles are Larry Phillips (5-10, 155) a junior and Don Krebs (5-1, 175) also a junior.

Tackles will be Wayne Gatewood (6-4, 230) who lettered at that same spot last year and Dave Kelsner (6-1, 185). Doesn't sound bad at all new does it Dave?

"Our defense looks pretty decent but if we can develop some depth out of some of these 10th graders we'll be in good shape," Coach Koblenz sums up when speaking of the famed Cowboy defense.

Pete Katris (5, 270) will open up at middle guard. Coach Koblenz describes his 270 as solid. Working at tackle are Gatewood, and Joe Johns a 6-3, 230 pound junior.

Jerry Dymek (6-2, 170) is slated at one defensive end slot and the coach puts the other spot up for grabs.

The linebacking crew looks real strong. Leading the way is Snider the senior member of the crew. He was an all-city pick last year. Ron Williams will also render his speed and talents to the secondary this year when he is not tired from running the ball.

Defensive halfbacks Tom Biggers (5-10, 145) a junior, and Mark Reeves (5-8, 145) a senior, return to the deep backfield this year as seasoned veterans after a year's service.

Tim Brink (5-8, 145) and Dean Smith (5-8, 155) are among others being considered for work in the secondary.

"We're really small but I will say that this is the best attitude and enthusiasm that we've had in a real long time, these young kids are quite coachable, eager to learn," speaks Coach Koblenz.

In this, Koblenz's sixth year, he is 30-14 with a tie in his first five, he picks Eastmoor, Marion Franklin and Walnut Ridge as the toughest in the City League South.

When we asked Coach Koblenz how it felt being picked a contender by area coaches Dave replied, "That is pretty nice of the other guys, tell'm I really appreciate it," but we're just not sure right now."

Montgomery, (6, 170). Jerry, only a junior, leads an all underclass backfield which Coach Capozziello indicates shows quite a bit of potential.

"Jerry needs a lot of game experience, but he shows me a lot of potential, he throws the ball real well," said Mike.

GUINN McHILLIAN a 5-7, 175 pound gutty cannonball returns at fullback. Halfbacks look to be Mark Hunter (5-8, 135) only a sophomore and Steve Marinello (6, 165) a junior letterman.

Track speedster Jeff Phillips (6, 170) is also making a mentionable bid for work in the backfield.

Paul Dillon (5-11, 180) will be at tight end and Mar Wigginton (5-8, 180) will back him up. Both are seniors; Paul is a letterman.

Three swiffls are fighting it out for the wide receiver slot. They are Tim Anderson (5-10, 152) Ken Moore (5-10, 150) and Roger Day (6, 170), all are juniors.

A PAIR OF juniors are competing for the center position and when we last talked to Coach Capozziello, Kip Kane, (6, 185) had the inside track on Robert Ray (5-9, 165).

Dave Flemming a letterman at defensive end last year, will double up and play offensive guard this year, joining him there will be another seasoned starter, senior Tom Atney (5-10, 180). Backing up there will be Jim Jordan (5-7, 165).

Landing a healthy list of candidates for the tackle position is returnee Bratz Frye (6-3, 230) who Coach Capozziello feels is exceptional. Also making a run for playing time is Sam Miller.

"We've been working real hard on offense, and I really think that there is a lot of potential there. If we can gain some depth out of some of these younger kids we'll scare some people," boasts business like Mike.

TURNING TO defense we find a lot of the same faces that man the offense.

Flemming (6, 185) and Dillon will man the ends with Frye and Matt Whitmer (5-10, 165), who is a sophomore, at the tackle.

Jordan will be the middle guard and showing much improvement there is junior Dennis White.

The linebacker spots are very much undecided according to Coach Capozziello.

MARINELLO AND Hunter will be in the cornerback positions.

A real struggle for the starting spot as the Monster Man of "Ram Man", as Coach Capozziello calls it, has developed. Working hard is Don French, a sophomore and Bryce Rile, a junior.

Coach Capozziello points to Westerville and Gahanna as league contenders but he feels that the rest of the league will be much improved.

And yes, he feels that one of those improved teams will be Whitehall.

Eastmoor Has Tradition-Griffin

By Sandy Schwartz

Special Staff Writer

Tradition is probably the best word to use when you describe Eastmoor High School football. Coached by Bob Stuart, the Warrior machine has rolled to seven city championships under the veteran boss since his arrival at the Weyant Avenue school 15 years ago.

Area coaches are always pointing the pre-season finger at Big Bob and his crew. "I think that this kind of helps us, mentally, that is. We've got a pretty good tradition going over here and this makes the kids want to work harder," explains a very modest Coach Stuart.

You might also add that in recent years (the last four) another word associated with Eastmoor, is that of Griffin.

This year is no exception. RAY GRIFFIN, a 5-11 165 pound smooth gliding halfback will be once again thwarting enemy defenders.

May is reported to look better than ever and of course Coach Stuart is real high on the senior co-captain.

"Super, is probably the best word available to describe him," gloats Stu.

A new problem that offensive back coach William "Red" Courtney will be faced with this year is finding a top notch quarterback. Mark Kraker a three year regular and all everything is now gone, and the man who handed off to the famed Archie Griffin and passed to the swift Monty Hannah in recent years could be sorely missed.

"We've got three kids that are fighting real hard at quarterback right now and we probably won't know for a while who it will be, they are all pretty even," said Stuart.

THOSE THREE are Brian Johnson, (5-10, 165), Brain Thomas (6-1, 165) and Frank Laswell. Johnson would think to have the inside track, he played second fiddle to Kraker last year, but Coach Stuart tells us that Laswell is throwing the ball well. Johnson was a regular on defense last year while Laswell was with the reserves.

Coach Stuart has high praise for Thomas who will be attending Eastmoor for the first time this fall. He is a transfer student from Cleveland John Kennedy where he lettered last year as a sophomore.

Scouting along side Griffin in the Warrior backfield will be Rick Maindel, a senior co-captain. Rick stands 6-2, 210 and has experience to spare. Tom Hunter (5-10, 165) who moved from part time duty at fullback. Hunter is a senior letterman; Kind is a junior.

THE RECEIVING crew looks like Duncan Griffin (brother of Archie and Ray) a solid 5-11, 185 pound pass catcher at tight end and Phil Lias (5-10, 180) at the wide spot.

They will most likely be backed up by returnee Pete Cannon (5-11, 155) and John Davis (5-10, 165). Coach Stuart relays that the pass catching department looks promising.

"Our offensive line, although not real big, does show some promise," says Stuart of his interior line.

Ron Bensinger (5-11, 185) is back at center. He was a frequent sub and lettered last year. Charles Garawski (6, 165) should be at one guard spot with Ed Wolf or Smith Reid, a returning letterman at the other.

TACKLES WILL probably be good sized Jim Fife (6-3, 230) and Larry Gessel (6-1, 190), Bob Hilton (6-3, 180) a letterman at end last year, or Ed Rafael (6-1, 190).

"We are going to need some major rebuilding on the defensive line," explains Stuart when asked about his defense, but he was eager to discuss that strong returning Warrior secondary.

Hunter, Griffin and Maindel all strong two-way performers last year will do the same this year as they will man the linebacker spots.

Johnson, Cannon and Larry James (6-1, 165) all regulars last year will police the deep secondary.

The only positives up front that Coach Stuart could reveal when we talked to him were returning letterman Leonard Leveret (5-10, 160) tackle and Paul Lewis who was a regular at line actor last year and makes the switch to tackle this year.

STU SEES Mark Franklin, West and Walnut Ridge (the team that bumped the Warriors from the City South throne last year), as top league contenders.

"Things are looking better, I think we'll be all right," sums up the Eastmoor boss.

And area coaches will probably be on the close lookout for Stu and his mighty men this year, because when a Bob Stuart goes 7-3 as Stu's hard hitters did last year, a long winter and spring usually bring a whole bunch of revenge.

Little Eagle Learns And Teaches

West Columbus—David Whitehead, and his family were at Westland Shopping Mall last week demonstrating Indian dance and explaining Indian dress and customs. David is telling the story of the little eagle which learns to fly when his mother drops from beneath him in flight. His sister Robin grinded corn and salt as she sang a song her grandmother had taught her. Philip and Julia Whitehead brought their family of five here from Albuquerque, New Mexico for the demonstration. The Whitehead children are half Pueblo and half Apache. (Photo by Kathy Donovan)

Higher Prices Won't Affect School Lunch Price, Yet

Some items sold in Columbus school cafeterias, including milk, will cost more this year, but plate lunch prices will remain unchanged.

That was the word from Charles Hartman, the school system's director of food services.

He said price increases on food items such as pizza, chili, some sandwiches and desserts will be small, averaging only two or three cents.

Hartman pointed out that milk prices will be increased only in the 119 secondary and elementary schools that have food service programs.

The price of a half-pint of milk in those schools will go up from four cents last year to 10 cents in 1973-74.

In 81 elementary schools without food service programs, Hartman said, the price of milk will remain at five cents a half-pint.

The change in milk prices results from new regulations adopted by the Food and Nutrition Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The regulations deleted federal milk price subsidies from schools with food service programs.

Hartman said prices of plate lunches, which include a half-pint of milk, will remain the same as last year: 50 cents in secondary schools, 40 cents in elementary schools and 25 cents in priority schools (schools with enrollments that include a high percentage of students whose families receive Aid to Dependent Children).

Hartman cited higher food costs as the reason for the lunchroom price increases, adding that plate lunch prices can remain unchanged because of federal subsidies that support the plate lunch program.

About 20,000 plate lunches are prepared in the school system's central kitchen and distributed to elementary schools each day during the school year. In addition, some 6,000 plate lunches are prepared each day in the kitchens of individual secondary schools.

On the possibility of a meat and fish shortage, Hartman said bids have already been received from companies that guarantee an adequate supply of those staples for at least the first eight weeks of school.

He noted that prices contained in the bids included increases averaging about 15 per cent. In some cases, he said, the price increases were as high as 50 per cent.

Hartman also said the school system will again this year offer free lunches for children from disadvantaged families. Letters explaining which families qualify and application forms were sent home with all school children the first day of school, he added.

Foster Homes--A Step Toward Home

"It's not that all of the children in our care are problem children that nobody wants. It's just that we don't have enough foster families in the county to take care of them."

These were the words of Miss Sue Force, director of the Foster Care Department of Franklin County Children's Services, emphasizing the urgent need for more foster parents.

According to Miss Force, more than 900 Franklin County children have been placed in foster homes. This means that those children are one step further on their way to being reunited with their real families, and that's good. But more than 100 Franklin County children at present are waiting for foster homes, and that's bad.

For these youngsters, the waiting is done at one of the numerous facilities provided by Children's Services, including the nine cottages at Franklin Village in Grove City or one of the five "group homes" where the youths live in a family-type situation out in the community.

THE NUMBER of children needing foster homes increases daily, said Miss Force, averaging about 60 requests for the temporary homes each month.

But so far this year, only 63 new foster homes have been approved over the past eight months. And more are critically needed.

At present, the number of homes needed is "as high as it's been in many months," said Miss Force, with the biggest need being homes to care for preschool black children, older children and groups of brothers and sisters so that at least some type of natural family contact can be maintained. "Children have feelings too," said the foster care director. "The fact that they are away from their mothers and fathers to begin with is hard to face. If sort of 'helps the hurt' when they are able to stay with their brothers and sisters."

"AND THE children do react," she continued. "They may not want anything to do with an adult, so trust and love may not come too easily. They need to know that their foster parents are always there...and that they still have a parent figure who cares what happens to them."

The more than 5,000 children under the care and services of Franklin County Children's Services are not all parentless, but rather just "homeless for the present," said Miss Force. Most of them have at least one natural parent, she explained, and parental contact is often maintained during their stay in foster homes.

"This leads to one of the important areas that a foster parent must understand," said Miss Force. "And that's that the foster home is a temporary situation for the child until he can be reunited with his natural family."

During this "interim" period, the child, foster family, natural family and agency caseworker assigned to the families must work on the "team approach." This means that the four groups involved work together, plan together and cooperate in getting the child back with his real family, with the child's best interest always the first to be considered.

CHILDREN COME under the care of Franklin County Children's Services for numerous reasons, including marital problems in the home, emotional problems in the family, financial problems that make it difficult for a family to provide for the child, or just the parents' inability to cope with the problems of child-rearing for the present moment.

When the child becomes separated from his natural parents, and lives with a foster family, the agency provides counseling services for the parents "until that family can get back on its feet and again accept the responsibility of the child," said Miss Force.

And that's what the agency is all about—strengthening and maintaining family life. In other words, the child's natural home is where the agency feels he belongs...if the problems that exist in that home can be solved and a workable family living situation established. A foster home is sort of a substitute home that is set up for the child until the real family is reunited to be brought back together.

"Foster care is a real challenge," said Miss Force. "And one of the rewards of being a foster parent is knowing that you are helping a child through a very trying crisis period during his lifetime, and perhaps some of the most fearful moments that he must ever face. You can watch the child move from a family situation that was not good, and return to a family that has gotten themselves back together. And you know that you've helped during that period," she added.

Foster children are part of the forgotten minority, and homes are needed desperately in Franklin County. If you can provide a home for one of the nearly 200 children under the care of Children's Services, contact the agency at 278-3541, Ext. 334. A child is waiting for your call.

Milk Variety Will Spice School Menus

Participants in child nutrition programs will now be offered a choice of the type of milk they drink in schools, under regulations announced this week by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). The revised regulations apply to the National School Lunch, School Breakfast, Special Milk and Special Food Service Programs. Under the new regulations, milk used in these programs may now include lowfat, skim or cultured buttermilk, unflavored or flavored, in addition to whole milk. Previously, only fluid whole milk was allowed. The change will allow flexibility in menu planning, and will encourage student participation in feeding programs. All types of milk served must, of course, meet state and federal standards. A proposal to revise the regulations was announced by USDA's Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) June 1 and comments were invited over the next 30 days from all interested persons. Responses were received from 512 persons. Of these, 501 were in favor, with 10 having reservations, and 11 were opposed. The revised regulations were published in the Federal Register Aug. 13 and went into effect immediately upon publication.

REMOVE PAPERS—Uncollected newspapers and mail also tip off burglars. Before leaving, ask a neighbor or apartment manager to watch the premises and remove newspapers and mail.

Fall Roundup Days Will Benefit Crippled Children

FALL ROUNDUP days have arrived for Ohio rodeo and horse show fans and participants. The 1974 Roundup, featuring a genuine western rodeo this year is set for September 13-15 at the Ohio State Exposition Coliseum.

It is sponsored by the Parents' Group of the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children for the Ohio Western Horse Association with all proceeds from the event benefiting local handicapped children.

The Roundup will feature 1200 entries, from 42 Ohio horse clubs, participating in showmanship, horsemanship and performance classes as well as races and contests.

The clubs represent 4-H groups, horse clubs, pony clubs and youth groups. Riders will range in age from 9 years to 70 years.

THE WORLD championship J. Bar Rodeo will be presented four times during the Roundup. The times are 8 p.m. Friday, 1:30 and 8 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

The stars of the rodeo are Zoe Ann and Gary Henry. There will also be animals and clowns in the show.

THE HIGHLIGHT of the four-day Roundup will be on Saturday, September 15, which has been designated as Crippled Children's Night.

Hugh DeMoss, news director for WLW-C television, will be the master of ceremonies for the festivities which will start at 7 p.m. A new Roundup queen will be chosen from candidates from each participating horse club.

The new queen and her court will be presented in a royal coronation ceremony. Jill Gibbs, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gibbs, 3201 Polley Rd., will reign as Roundup Princess.

SUNDAY morning at 10 a.m., September 16, a unique church service, one on horseback, will take place in the Coliseum. Tickets are available from the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children's treatment center at 386 Children's Drive West, 233-5222, from any member of the Parents' Group, or OWHA member and at the door.

Ed Cecil, New Albany, is president of the OWHA. Hugh Gibbs, 3201 Polley Rd., is Roundup chairman for the Parents' Group and Bill Bown, 2678 Millon Ave., is the president of the Parents' Group.

Farm Science Review Will Overflow With Displays

LIKE A CURTAIN rising for a play, hundreds of tents will soon rise just west of the runways at Don Scott Airport. And the action will designate the start of the 11th Ohio State Farm Science Review, to be held September 14-30 from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Commercial displays will set a record this year, says Dale Friday, manager of the Review. The number will be higher than last year's 261 displays, and some exhibitors have expanded their space.

MUCH OF THE Review's 700 acres will be used for field demonstrations that will include plowing, disk, harrow, silage filling, and other farm uses. The value of farm machinery on display will be more than $6 million.

Crops for harvest are progressing nicely, according to Friday, who says, "We have some of the best weed control demonstrations we've ever had."

Farmers' search for better crops will be reflected by the larger numbers of commercial demonstrations plots. For corn, the number of different hybrids is 346, up from 322 last year. There are 30 soybean varieties, compared with 19 last year, and 22 alfalfa varieties compared with last year's 18.

A NEW FEATURE this year will be short programs in the information tent designed to tell visitors what they will see at the educational exhibits at the Review.

This will include a 10-to 15-minute slide, tape, and live presentation, intended to provide a better view of interesting displays around the Review grounds. You can attend these programs any time between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Following this hourly program, and for those who wish information on "concerns of today," OSU faculty members will give mini-talks.

For perhaps 20 minutes, each authority will discuss such items as buying meat, identifying and controlling insects, growing and selecting Christmas trees, and outdoor recreation.

Plans call for 21 different mini-talks during the three days, with a different faculty member presenting each subject. Schedules of the various programs will be available.

IN ADDITION to the usual colorful gardens of flowers, this year's Review will have a special herb garden with a completely new layout.

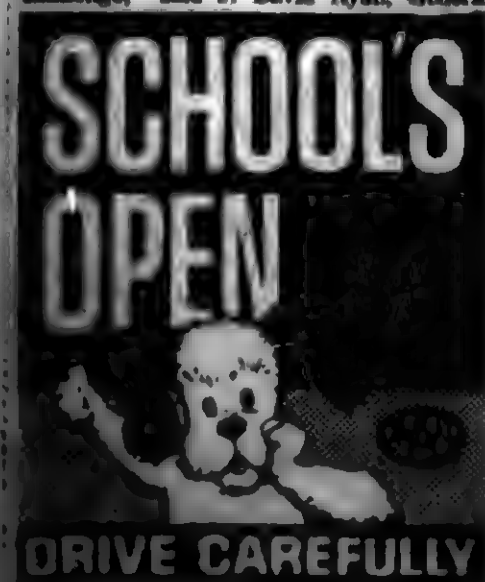

Mrs. Margaret Coon, technical assistant in horticulture, says the herb garden will display the total use of plants in our lives—food, additives to enhance our food, dyes, insecticides, and medicines.

A RETURNING attraction will be the operating sorghum mill, complete with mules. And, as in some past years, the Review will feature a collection of types of corn from around the world.

Educational exhibits will be prepared by 14 departments of the Ohio State University College of Agriculture and Home Economics and the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center. This year, the new Agricultural Technical Institute at Wooster will also have an exhibit.

School's Open-Drive With Care

"THE OPENING of school presents the motorist once again with a safe driving challenge," said J. David Ryan, General

SCHOOL'S OPEN

DRIVE CAREFULLY

Manager of the Columbus Auto Club.

Ryan pointed out that "motor vehicle accidents are the leading cause of death for children aged 5-14 years of age. This fact alone should make us stop and consider our own driving habits."

"YOUNGSTERS 5 to 8 years old, including first year students, are at the most critical age when it comes to coping with traffic," Ryan explained that the daily routine of going to and from school, as well as inexperience in traffic situations, were key factors in making children vulnerable to motor vehicle accidents.

The AAA official then emphasized the need for alertness and observance of safe driving procedures in the vicinity of schools and school bus loading areas.

RYAN concluded: "Our poster design for this year's campaign shows a child's very best friend, who is concerned for his companions in today's traffic-oriented society. Both our floppy-eared friend and the AAA urge you to drive with special care now that school is open once again."

PRESTO CHANGO!

An Unnecessary Agency

The Oracle of Delphi, seated on the golden tripod throne at Mt. Parnassus in ancient Greece, had the populace seeking inspired advice, and the treasures of the world were placed at her feet.

A new Oracle has been proposed for the golden dome of Capitol Hill, Washington, D.C. Its name will be the "Consumer Protection Agency" and it, too, will be the infallible expert on all things.

It will be the Oracle of the American consumer. It will interpret all the needs and wishes of "Consumers" to the hundreds of agencies, bureaus and departments carrying out the federal government's edicts and programs already protecting the consumer.

The CPA Oracle will gaze in its crystal ball and debate with other agencies on just what size of packaging will meet your needs; the size of the average serving; what advertising and promotion will be simple enough to understand and will not deceive you. Its scope will go beyond the everyday needs of the consumer by intervening in many other matters, from the determination of airline routes, to milk marketing orders, to labor problems.

The new Oracle will do all your thinking for you and speak for you as a consumer—whether or not it may hurt you as a worker, a farmer, or a businessman.

And you really don't need a crystal ball to tell you that, if Congress goes along with the idea, your money will go to support this new agency along with the 1,000 other agencies of government.

Martin Essex Says: Tailored Education Should Fit Students Like A Glove

TAILORING education to meet the unique needs of an estimated 2,600,000 individual youngsters is the goal which Superintendent of Public Instruction Martin W. Essex has set for the 5,038 schools which are welcoming students back for the 1973-74 school year.

"We must design learning opportunities specifically for each pupil," said Ohio's chief state school officer. "We must replace the assembly line, same-instruction-for-all approach which many schools were forced to adopt in the past because of fast-growing enrollments and shortages of classrooms, teachers and dollars."

ESSEX CITED three factors which should help the shift to individualized instruction: An increase of more than 30 per cent in state aid to elementary and secondary schools in just 18 months as a result of the new state income tax;

An expected decline, for the fourth consecutive year, in the enrollment in Ohio's 4213 public and 826 parochial and private schools this fall. The all-time enrollment record of 2,772,514 was set in 1966.

A surplus of teachers for many subjects. Until this year, the overage of teachers was real only in such areas as English, government and history.

John R. Meckstroth, president of the State Board of Education, said the State Board has already resolved to make drastic changes in teacher preparations. Meckstroth expects sweeping new standards to be ready within the next six months for all colleges and universities to meet if they desire to continue preparing teachers.

"There is universal disgust," Essex said, "with the sloppy, shabby, bargain-basement way in which teachers have been prepared."

FOR TEACHERS already in the classroom, Essex said, "the nation's first systematic preparation of kits containing new knowledge and methods for intensive study by individual teachers or groups of teachers is already underway."

Teachers today, Essex emphasized, "have to run just to keep up. They must constantly refresh themselves because of the knowledge explosion, changes in the national economy, and increasingly complex life styles resulting from technology."

SUPPORT FOR teacher education reform, both in college and on the job, William H. Cosner, vice president of the State Board and chairman of its Committee for Redesign and Improvement of Education, said, "came through loud and clear" from 125,000 Ohioans who participated in the nation's most massive citizen involvement to determine education priorities.

The search for public opinion included 804 Local Citizens Seminars, 16 County Citizens Assemblies, 12 Regional Citizens Councils and culminated in a statewide meeting of 1500 in Columbus April 23.

Will the drastic changes stop with teacher preparation? "No!" Essex said emphatically. "Children, he said, do demanding appropriate education and personal attention for each learner—not just those who happen to fit into yesterday's pattern.

THIS MEANS redoubling efforts, he said, especially in vocational preparation and in training of the handicapped. The challenge Essex sees is to "design education which will permit young adults to be taxpaying citizens, not unemployed or welfare recipients."

Ohio's efforts to educate youngsters with mental and physical disabilities will reach a record peak this year as an additional 23,070 handicapped children will receive specially designed learning experiences.

APPROXIMATELY 312,363 handicapped boys and girls will receive instruction for their unusual needs this year, compared with 289,313 last year.

Ohio's national leadership position in employment preparation education will be further augmented with the opening of six new joint vocational schools to serve 8,500 pupils.

The Ashland County Joint Vocational School will enroll an estimated 840 students; Licking County, 1600; and Muskingum County JVS branch, serving Guernsey and Noble Counties, 600 students.

Three campuses in the Great Oaks Joint Vocational School District—Diamond Oaks, Live Oaks and Scarlet Oaks—will open for the first time to serve 5,300 pupils in Hamilton, Clermont, Clinton, Fayette, Highland and Warren counties. Laurel Oaks in Clinton County, also in the massive Great Oaks district, began operation last fall with 574 students.

VOCATIONAL education alone, Essex said, is not enough. "Young people today are far removed from the world of work," he explained. "Many are conditioned to seeing the welfare check—not a paycheck. Seldom does a child see either parent at work earning a living."

Career education in 34 districts will target upon an all time high projected enrollment of 148,374 students in kindergarten through 10th grade. Objectives are to develop career or employment interest and motivation for youngsters in kindergarten through sixth grade, generate concern for career selection in grades seven and eight and increased opportunities to explore their future as workers in grades nine and ten.

TO MAKE SURE nothing stands in the way of the new custom quality in Buckeye education, Meckstroth said, "Each standard, rule and regulation which has been set forth over the years is being scrutinized by the State Board of Education to make certain it is in tune with the times."

OHIO PEOPLE, Essex said, "want opportunity in education—not regulation. Our concern is that education opportunity has sound quality—not surface eye-appeal. Ohioans have consistently shown they will support high quality education."

Dear Consumer

Children Clothes: Coping Growth

By Virginia Kauer
Special Assistant to the President and Director
Office of Consumer Affairs

How our youngsters grow. You may not have noticed their growth during summer, but you find out when it's time to get them ready for school and the fall and winter seasons.

Since all families struggle with this problem, sharing solutions can be helpful.

One mother I know puts away a small sum every week during the summer. By fall she has a nest egg for the shoes, socks, shirts, jackets her four boys need.

Another tells me that her daughters' dress-up outfits are always bought at a local thrift shop. Run by volunteers for the benefit of a community charity, the shop buys—and then resells—only those used garments that are in excellent conditions.

Since youngsters almost always outgrow their Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes faster than they outwear them, thrift shops are good places to buy children's clothing. (And by selling the outgrown clothes to the thrift shop, you have extra money for newer clothes.)

Here are other tips on getting the most for your money when you shop for children's clothing.

Take time to comparison shop. Look in different kinds of store: discount stores, small neighborhood shops, mail order companies and department stores. Compare prices, brands and quality. Keep in mind how long you expect the clothes to be worn—one season? two? or more?

Look for sturdy construction. Are seams straight, unpuckered, strong and wide enough to avoid fraying? Are pockets reinforced? Do zippers work smoothly? Are buttons sewn securely?

Read care labels and fabric content labels. If fabric is not washable, add expected dry cleaning costs to the price of the garment.

If fabric is not Sanforized (only 1 percent shrinkage) or pre-shrunk (only 3 percent), garment may shrink out of size.

If ironing is required, remember that your own time is worth money.

When buying sleepwear for small children (sizes 0 to 6x), be sure to buy garments made of flame-retardant fabrics.

With rainwear, realize that "water repellent" fabrics only shed water. Usually, only rubberized or plastic-coated garments are water proof. Girls' fashion boots, incidentally, are seldom water-proof. For foul-weather gear, look for labels that say "waterproof."

Don't guess at sizes—they vary from brand to brand. Have your child try on each item before you buy it. This is a must, of course, with shoes—both feet, since each of us usually has one larger foot.

Look for clothes that will grow with the child. Stretch fabrics are a boon. So are garments for toddlers and small children that are made with special "grow" features, such as extra seams that you can let down by pulling a single thread.

There are several Federal government booklets that may be of interest to you: Clothing and Fabric Care Labeling (free), Clothing Repairs (25 cents), Fibers and Fabrics (25 cents), Look for That Label (free), and Removing Stains From Fabrics (20 cents). All are available from Consumer Product Information, Pueblo, Colo. 81009. Make check payable to Superintendent of Documents.

canoe in or out on private property, ask the landowner for permission before you plan your trip.

It's also a good idea to wear an old pair of deck shoes or low cut rubber boots, as hip boots or waders are to darn dangerous to wear in any trail. You may get wet so take raincoat and extra clothes to change after the trip for the ride home.

Here's a tip for the fisherman: as you're drifting along, cast towards the undercut ledges, near sunken logs and boulders. I like to cast quarter ounce spinners.

If you prefer live bait, try dunking minnows or soft crawls with a long cane pole or flyrod. Dunking live bait right next to tree stumps and fallen logs is a deadly method for bass.

Make sure you use a quiet approach to these areas so you don't spook the fish.

Stop to stretch your legs when you come to rapids and fish the pools below, sometimes they're the best spots along the way. For the squirrel hunter, keep looking back in the woods, on the ground and along the bank as your drifting.

A combination hunting and fishing trip is a good way to chance your luck at both sports in the same day and if the fish aren't biting you can spend most of the day hunting.

If squirrels aren't traveling near shoreline and winter sport isn't paying off, I don't know how you feel about it, but I'm thankful I've had another day outdoors to enjoy the gift of nature that's ours, as long as you and I protect and preserve it.

ROCKY FORK

Located high on a hill overlooking the west end of 2,000 acre Rocky Fork Lake, the class "A" campground at this popular park is one of the finest in the state. Not only does the area have modern restrooms and washhouses with showers and coin-operated automatic laundry facilities, a commissary, a trailer waste station and a beach; it has 80 boat docks that will accommodate 160 boats reserved exclusively for the use of campers.

One washhouse is heated for the use of cool weather campers. Launching ramps and a boat trailer parking lot within the controlled area provide added convenience and protection to the camper-boater.

Long a favorite with fishermen because of the good muskellunge and bass fishing, the 3,475 acre park with its fine docks, marinas and lake shore restaurant is attractive to pleasure boaters.

There is no restriction on horsepower on watercraft motors and an area is designated for water skiing.

The summer nature program has been among the best attended in the park system during recent years. The north shore area where the campground is located and reached from U.S. 50 approximately 10 miles east of Hillsboro.

HUNTER SAFETY

September 30, a course on safe gun handling will be given at Division of Wildlife, District One Headquarters, located at 1500 Dublin Road, Columbus.

The course will begin at 1 p.m. and be over at 5 p.m.

Although the course is designed primarily for juvenile hunters, the class is open to the public and many parents enjoy attending with their youngsters, and picking up valuable tips to improve their own safe gun handling.

Juveniles aged 10 through 15 who wish to participate in the special youth hunts at the Delaware Wildlife Area on November 3 and 10 must have successfully passed one of these courses in hunter gun safety.

Hunters who wish to hunt in other states may need to attend a hunter safety course in order to hunt in that state.

Rent-A-Camp Extended

Ohio's novice campers have responded to the Department of Natural Resources' "rent-a-camp" idea so well the program is being extended a month through Oct. 26.

The program for families who want to try camping but don't own the necessary equipment was scheduled to end Sept. 30.

"We've had excellent response to the rent-a-camp concept," said Natural Resources Director William B. Nye, who estimates 2,500 people have used the 20 fully equipped campsites at five state parks since the new program started May 25.

Nye said the program is being extended a month to allow more people to try camping at a minimal cost while determining if they like the outdoors enough to invest in their own equipment.

He added that the month of October is an excellent time to enjoy the splendor of an Ohio autumn in the state parks and forests.

The rent-a-camp program, recognized nationally as an innovative step in camping, offers four equipped campsites each at Delaware, Findley, Harrison Lake, Punderson and Stonelick state parks.

The campsites rent for $5 a night with a seven-night limit. Each campsite is set up to sleep four, but can accommodate two additional people if they bring their own sleeping gear.

Reservation application forms can be obtained by contacting any of the five state parks. The park addresses and telephone numbers are:

Delaware State Park, Rt. 1, Delaware, Ohio 43015, telephone: (614) 368-2761; Findley State Park, Rt. 3, Wellington, Ohio 44090, telephone: (216) 647-4490; Harrison Lake State Park, Rt. 1, Fayette, Ohio 43521, telephone: (419) 237-2583; Punderson State Park, Box 178, Newbury, Ohio 44065, telephone: (216) 864-2278; and Stonelick State Park, Rt. 1, Pleasant Plain, Ohio 45162, telephone: (513) 625-7444.

Bargain Box Sept. 22, 24

The 25th Annual Bargain Box sponsored by the Junior League of Columbus, Inc. will be held at Veterans Memorial Exhibit Hall Saturday, Sept. 22, and Monday, Sept. 24.

Bargain Box is a huge sale of new and used merchandise offered to the public at low prices. The merchandise is donated by the Junior League's 700 active and sustaining members as well as by approximately 175 local merchants.

This gigantic sale includes clothing for children and adults, toys, books, furniture, small appliances, sporting equipment, linens, china, hardware, notions and many specialty items and antiques. There is also a "Country Store" section made up of handcraft items.

Bargain Box, the Junior League's only money-raising project, serves a dual purpose to the community. It offers a wide selection of high-quality new and used merchandise to the community. In addition, all monies from the sale are returned to the community through agencies and community services. Over the past 24 years, Bargain Box has raised over $350,000.

The following agencies and community services are only a few who have directly benefited from Bargain Box profits.

They are COSI, Columbus Junior Theatre of the Arts, "Bottoms-Up" newspaper printed at Gladden Community House, The Columbus Zoo, the A.B.C. Program (A Better Chance), Drug Abuse TV spots, Research on Runaways, 4-C program and Retired Senior Volunteer Program.

The Junior League of Columbus not only supports these projects financially but also provides them with trained volunteer service by League members.

This year, the Junior League is celebrating its 50th Anniversary and 25th Annual Bargain Box. The first Bargain Box netted $8,254 and the proceeds were given for a pilot study for a psychiatric center, which later became The Children's Mental Health Center in Columbus.

This year the goal set by the chairman Mrs. James Cushman and assistant chairman Mrs. J. Richard Briggs is $40,000.

Mrs. Cushman says "As in the past, this money will be returned to the community as support for a great variety of projects."

The sale hours will be Saturday, Sept. 22 from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Monday, Sept. 24 from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

New Regulatory Signs Appear

COLUMBUS—Whether driving downtown or in the neighborhood perhaps people have noticed the new regulatory signs that are beginning to appear, "Right Turn on Red After Stop". Fifty of these have been installed by the Traffic Engineering Division according to Bernard Chupka, Director of Public Safety. The new signs were first installed at 33 test locations, seven months ago. Different types of intersections were selected for the test, from the regular two phase light to the eight phase light at Karl and ML. The study is continuing at these locations and others are being added as requests come in for them. New installations have been limited since a bill is now before the State Legislature to make "right turns on red" legal at all intersections in Ohio, except where they are otherwise prohibited by signs. George Butzer of the Signal Section of Traffic Engineering is seeking response from the public regarding these turns. Do you like the new regulations, or do you feel they are necessary? Drop a post card to Traffic Engineering, City Hall, Columbus, Ohio 43215.

The Holiday Inn-O.S.U. opened this past week. Located on Lane Ave., just east of Orlanby Blvd., this is the most beautiful, largest motel in the Columbus area. The Inn has 245 rooms, two separate lounges with live entertainment in each six nights a week, and a dining room seating 180, with a menu that is bound to please just about everyone.

The dining room is called the Ohiolian Room. It features all types of food, from the traditional steaks, chops and seafoods to gourmet meals. You will love the bright, cheerful decor of the room.

Off of the dining room is the cocktail lounge. It is gorgeous. Seating consists of tables and chairs, large plush booths or huge leather sofas. Part of the lounge is raised so that you may have a full view of what is going on. There is also a large, comfortable bar.

In this room, the current attraction is a five piece group, "Quintessence."

More on them next week. I understand they play all types of music that appeals to an older age group.

Eleven floors up, you'll find another lounge that is really cozy. It overlooks the campus and part of Columbus. "Deepest," opens in this room Thursday, September 13. To be quite honest, I can't figure out which lounge I like best. Both of them have so much class and sophistication.

Take my advice, don't hesitate, plan on visiting Columbus' newest motel now. As soon as people are aware that it is open, I have to believe that it will be busier than that big stadium across from the Holiday Inn-O.S.U. I know that you will talk about the decor, atmosphere, food, service and entertainment for days.

Rodeway Inn Act Is Tops

The Rodeway Inn Motel has booked its fourth act into their plush, swinging Stage Door Lounge. They opened with a truly dynamic act, and each one seems to get better and better. The current attraction is a show group by the name of Garfin Gathering. What a super outfit.

Garfin gets its name from the leader, Speedy Garfin. And, when it comes to fingering the keys on the sax, clarinet or flute, you know how and why Garfin got his name of Speedy.

It has been a long time since I have seen and heard saxophone, clarinet and flute played the way Speedy does. Speedy is a stylist with the horns, that's for sure. I could sit and listen to him all night long. He can hold a note longer than a senate filibuster. Speedy will knock you right off your seat with his musical abilities. Be it hot or mood music, Speedy plays them horns for all their worth.

Speedy is no slouch in the vocal department either. Coming on with a big, rich voice, Speedy sings the "H" out of a song. Speedy is not only an excellent musician, but he is an all around showman.

As I said, I could listen to him all night, except for one thing. That happens to be a sexy bundle with a voice that is pure dynamite, Kathy Pappas. This girl is really something else. You can hear singers after singers, and not find one like Kathy in a million of them. Kathy has a tremendous powerful voice, which she is in constant control of every minute. Possessing one the strongest vocal attacks in the business, Kathy gives out with plenty of beautiful sounds. Her range is as wide as you'll find anywhere with tones that are crystal clear.

Organist Dave McCullough and drummer Jeff Reed are an extremely strong job in backing up Speedy and Kathy. Without these two aboard Garfin Gathering would not have the punch it has. Besides being two top notch musicians, they lend their voices to some expert vocal harmonies with Speedy and Kathy. Rather it is two, three or four part harmony, you will not hear any closer or prettier than you do from Garfin Gathering.

In fact, that is the key to Garfin Gathering, the best. They are one of the best show groups, the best vocalist, the best instrumentalist that has come down the pike for many a moon. Every aspect of their show is first rate.

Garfin Gathering will be appearing this week and next at the Rodeway Inn Motel.

Brady Bunch At Kings Island

THE BRADY BUNCH visited Kings Island last week and filmed a show to be shown on television later this fall. Florence Henderson (the girl in front of the bus) headed the array of stars who appeared for the show. This event was covered in last week's Around Town. Sorry the photo didn't arrive in time to go with the story. The cast was super and Kings Island's Publicity Director Tom Olds really made everyone feel at home.

Make this a must on your entertainment schedule.

Holiday North Is Cozy Spot

For those of you who enjoy and want a spot that is quiet and cozy, with entertainment to match for listening and dancing, then let me recommend The Holiday Inn-North on Dublin-Granville Rd. Believe me, you will love the lounge and the music.

The Jerry and Nick Duo occupies the stage Thursday through Saturday for some very easy, enjoyable music. While it is a duo, if you close your eyes, at times you will think there is more than just two people on stage.

Jerry White is the organist. And what an organist. Jerry's playing at the black and white can only be described as a touch of genius. He is a master of buttons, knobs and gadgets that a cockpit of a 747. Yet, he always is in complete command of everything. Jerry is a strong stylist at the Hammond Organ.

With a large mirror hanging over him, you can watch his fingers caress the keyboard. He plays so effortlessly, that if you could not watch his fingers, you just wouldn't believe it was Jerry making all of the musical music. His technique is amazing, to say the least.

Jerry can and does produce a zillion different tones and sounds from the electronic keyboard. Adding plenty of exciting rhythms is Nick Nickerson. Now, here is what I call a good lounge and all around musical drummer. Nick doesn't drive you bananas with a bunch of loud, crashing drum work. He, like Jerry is rather delicate with the sticks and brushes. While Nick lays down an abundant amount of steady, solid rhythms, he adds plenty of his own styling. The end result is a drummer that is pleasant to hear and watch, as well. At times, he has just about every cymbal and drum going for him, yet he is not overpowering.

Add the two together, and you have a musical duo that is made for a small, intimate lounge, such as the one at the Holiday Inn-North. While all of this music is being served, you can still sit and talk without having to shout. Of course, their music is great for dancing.

In fact, with the Jerry and Nick Duo, the dark, quiet atmosphere of the lounge, you end up with just about the most romantic spot Around Town. It is a great place to go with that particular someone.

Their musical library runs from the old standards to the better music of today. There wasn't a song they played, that I did not recognize or didn't enjoy.

So, if you want to a relaxing, refreshing evening, plan on dropping into the lounge at the Holiday Inn-North. Jerry and Nick are there Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Tuesday and

Quintessence At Holiday

Quintessence, a quintet that sounds like a full orchestra, is the opening act in the lounge of the brand new Holiday Inn O.S.U. Entertaining Monday through Saturday with good vocal harmonies and a total of 20 instruments, Quintessence has proven to be as exciting as the new Holiday Inn on W. Lane Ave.

Wednesday, as well as the rest of the week, finds Jerry alone in the Dining Room, playing some beautiful dinner music on the X-77 Hammond Organ. This is the only organ like it being played in Columbus. Talk about tone, words cannot describe the beauty of this instrument. I think it has everything on it but the kitchen sink. If you look hard enough, well who knows.

It all happens at the Holiday Inn-North.

Skipping Around Town

This week at Marco Polo's Lounge is April Brass. This is a seven piece outfit that really cooks. If you dig the big, full sound, then head for Marco Polo's this week...This is the final week for this 'N That at Lincoln Lodge. Their music and vocals have been a crowd pleaser at the swinging lodge. You will enjoy this duo, that's for sure. Ramada Inn East has held over the Don Hinton Show. This group dishes out a host of lively, entertaining music. This is a must...For something really different, be sure to put the Taj Mahal on your entertainment schedule. The Turkish music and the swaying belly dancer adds a lot of fun to a night on the town. If you have never heard music from Turkey and Greece, wait until you hear this group. Simply beautiful. So is the dancer. The authentic cuisine from India is also a treat. It all happens at the Taj Mahal...The famous Joel Dane Show has returned by popular demand to the Ramada Inn South. This group is highly entertaining...Up at Ramada

GAMES OF THE WEEK

Cards, Whitehall Miss Breaks; Ridge, Northland Are Winners

By Sandy Schwartz

WORTHINGTON'S pass happy Cardinal's needed a 55 yard pass interception return by speedy Don Wolcott to earn a 14-14 come from behind tie with Northland in the season's gridiron opener for both teams last Friday night.

Northland, defending kingpins of the City League, looked destined for victory as they marched 82 yards in eight plays to tally the game's first score.

Senior Dave Conley bowled over from the four yard line for the six pointer, the big play though was a 51 yard aerial bomb from Joe Mayhew to Bob Atwood.

BUT THE Cardinals of Smokey Wion mounted a drive of their own late in the first quarter and on the first play of the second quarter senior QB Tim Crandall clicked on a 33 yard scoring strike to Gary Chambers, Worthington's slippery Z back, and a Jay Hensley conversion knotted the score 7-7.

Things then swung Northland's way again, as John Giroux, a gummy 206 pound fullback, scored on a three yard plunge, that drive being highlighted by the hard nose running of sophomore halfback Dan Welle. Welle accounted for 120 yards in 38 carries.

Everything stood pat then with the Vikes leading 14-7, until mid fourth quarter when Wolcott provided his heroics for the Worthington loyalists.

In all, Crandall looked most impressive, as he connected on 19 passes in 20 attempts good for 151 yards.

Well, next week, it's the long march to Upper Arlington for the Cardinals of Smokey Wion, and, who knows, maybe Smokey can smoke the heat.

WALNUT RIDGE, defending champs of the City League South, began their 1973 season with a 13-0 blanking of neighborhood arch rival Whitehall.

The Ridgemen looked strong from the onset as they marched 65 yards in the opening period for the games initial score. The final haul to the goal line came on a 20 yard strike from Gary Gola to Jim Gilmer.

But Whitehall threatened to score twice in the opening period themselves, only to have 31 yard field goal attempt fall short and then to have a TD called back because of a penalty.

DEFENSE then played the major role for the rest of the game, except for a one yard burst by Terry Logan in the third period that was complimented by Pete Bickie's conversion to stake the Scots to a 13-0 lead.

That score stood as the final, but also stood as a very deceiving one. The Scots mounted 153 yards while Whitehall was close behind with 120 yards. Defense was the highlight of the night.

Northland vs Worthington

Aggressiveness Pays Off

WORTHINGTON'S John Madry was effectively bottled up most of the time by an aggressive Northland defense that kept his ground gaining to a minimum against the Columbus City League champs in this northside battle that ended in a 14-14 stalemate. Hitting Madry on this play are Steve Lowry (12) and Ken Dodson (40) while Ron Nichols (55) comes up to assist.

Penalty Cancels TD

CLOSE BUT NOT QUITE-The closest Whitehall's Rams came all night to scoring was after a long and incredible punt return made by Steve Maranella. (44) Breaking wide and receiving excellent blocking, Maranella ran the ball back down field for what he enthusiastically thought was a touchdown. Unfortunately, he did not see fellow team members Brian Frye (84) standing near a penalty flag for clipping against Whitehall and (76) Paul Dillon expressively showing his disgust on the called penalty. This penalty brought the ball back to mid-field and prevented Whitehall from scoring.

TD Signal

THERE WERE plenty of touchdowns in the Spectator area high school grid games but none was more welcome than this signal that meant a TD for Worthington's Cardinals that gave them a 14-14 tie with Northland. The TD came on an intercepted pass in the last minutes of the game. Senior defensive back Don Wolcott was the hero with the TD steal.

Franklin Heights vs Westland

Falcons Win Neighborhood Battle

IN ONE OF THE TYPICAL neighborhood battles on last weekend's football scene the Franklin Heights Falcons took the measure of Westland's Cougars 14-0 in what could be termed a mild upset - but not according to the Falcons who termed their team the favorites from the start. The Metro League Falcons kept the Ohio Capital Conference Cougars at bay most of the game. The game was turned wide open in the fourth period when guard Bill Oliver rambled 40 yards with a Westland fumble for the icing on the cake TD. This photo shows the typical action that took place with a lot of Falcons (in white) getting their hands on the Cougars ball carrier for another no-gain down. Franklin Heights and Westland are both in the Southwestern School District.

QB Zips Past Cougars

FRANKLIN HEIGHTS Quarterback Hal Thompson was a thorn in the paw of the Westland Cougars all night in the Falcons 14-0 sipping of the OCC Westland team. Here, he sweeps his own left end for a sizeable gain as a Cougar defender comes up to meet the play.

Northland vs Worthington

Welle Is Good Medicine

SOPHOMORE halfback Don Welle (34) of Northland was the chief ground-gainer against Worthington's Cardinals in last Friday's game. Here he is stopped by Worthington's Pete Kight (11) and Bob Troll (50).

Whitehall vs Walnut Ridge

Smothered Pigskinner

TRAPPED AGAIN-Seconds before being smothered by Marty Reid a (84) and Jeff Hann (76) of Walnut Ridge's defensive team, Whitehall Quarterback Jerry Montgomery (12) sees he is in trouble. In a desperate attempt to flee from his captors, Montgomery desperately tried to out run Reid and Hann but was thrown for a loss on the play.

Bright Lights For Falcons

THE FRANKLIN HEIGHTS Falcons cheerleaders had plenty to cheer about as they roared the Westland Cougars 14-0 last week at the Falcon lair. These championship rah-rah-ers are Pat Rinehart, Kary Hedegard, Mary Little, Ja-Kee Sexton, Donna Masters and Jill Ingerham.

Otterbein Could Be A Surprise In Conference

By Sandy Schwartz

Otterbein's football Cardinals will begin their 84th football season Saturday with some mighty credentials. 40 lettermen reported for fall drills, with a grand total of 75 footballers making a bid for a coveted Cardinal uniform.

Robert "Moe" Agler also welcomed the sight of seeing 20 of those lettermen with a lot of game experience as he lost only two starters from his 2 and 7 1972 team.

BUT THOSE two losses from that squad of last year will be big dents in the machine. Steve Traylor, all everything at Otterbein for 4 years and Doug Thomas all time leading rusher at Otterbein will sorely be missed.

"It will be tough losing those two, but we have some real dedicated kids out here and I think that we have just a great attitude," stated an excited Coach Agler.

THE MAINSTAY of the offense on this 1973 edition of Otterbein football will be Columbus on Jim Bontadelli. Bontadelli played his high school football at Columbus Walnut Ridge and even played for the West side junior football program as the quarterback for the Little Buckeyes.

Jim is now successfully directing the Otterbein offense, that he did so well last year, and Coach Agler is depending heavily on the seasoned veteran. Jim amassed 1134 total yards last year and he ranks second in total offense among returning Ohio Conference quarterbacks.

Sophomore Ron Gorman (6-0, 180), also from Walnut Ridge is looked to, to pick up the remaining backfield slack. Ron is a smooth running halfback who shined last year as a freshman.

Ron was voted the team's most valuable freshman. "Right now we look weak on the offensive line," conjectured Agler, "but we've got some people in mind who we think might be able to do the job."

Tom Cahill from Columbus DeSales High School and Pete Lenge another Desales graduate are slated for duty on the line. Coach Agler indicated much promise in both of them.

OTHERS being given consideration on the offensive line are Joe Smith (6-1, 190) from Columbus North High School and Doug Fields (5-11, 200) from West High School. Reports are that both are working real hard for playing time.

"Depth is the main thing that we are trying to build, but like I said, these kids all reported in real good, shape, and I believe that things will get real strong," reported Coach Agler at a pre-season get together.

HE ALSO indicated that the Otters could be a threat in the Blue Division of the Ohio Conference if things continue to improve at the pace that they have.

Defense looks real solid with Cahill and Lenge possibly playing there instead of on offense or possibly even going both ways. Bill Spooner, (5-10, 180) is Coach Agler's delight there. Spooner a Northland grad runs the 40 in 4.7 seconds and has thus far looked excellent in pre-season drills.

"Spooner has great pursuit and defends particularly well against the pass," says Agler.

OTHERS complimenting that defensive backfield are Tom McKelvey (5-10, 165) and Mike Thomas (5-8, 162). McKelvey is an Eastmoor graduate and was an all-city performer there for Bob Stuart. Thomas is a Walnut Ridge grad and he starred for Ince Chail. Both were starters last year.

In all things look pretty good for the Otters and Coach Agler is extremely pleased with the attitude and enthusiasm of the men to date.

TD Man

THE decisive TD that clinched the game for Franklin Heights against Westland was the 46 yard runback of a Cougar fumble by senior guard Bill Oliver. Oliver had a can of blockers with him. Here he is relaxing on the bench after the run.

Chargers Win Again

The Westside Chargers, winners of the South Section Independent Jr. High League in their first year, 1972, opened their season Saturday September 8, with a victory over the Whetstone Mustangs, 28-6.

Jeff Stinson scored on a 5 yd. run and a 65 yard pass interception. Gary Lowe ran for two scores and Stinson and John Arnold had one extra point a piece.

The Chargers play Mifflin this week at West High School, Saturday at 1 p.m.

Boxers Selected

Richard Roselle, 112 lbs., James Kenty, 132 lbs., and Pete Seward, 147 lbs. have been selected by the AAU International Selection Committee as members of the 22 member U.S. Boxing Team which will meet the Irish National Team in Chicago's Soldier Field, Friday, September 28.

Cap Boasts Depth, Experience

The purple and white Crusaders of Capital University will try to start off this football season just exactly where they left off last season.

Rebounding from a 4-6 season slate, Cap will boast depth as their main strength.

"This is something that we haven't had in the past," states a very confident Coach Gene Slaughter. "We're also going to start this season better prepared than ever before," added Slaughter.

"We hope to blend our running attack and our short passing game to give us good offensive balance," states Slaughter. "Cohesiveness is something that we like to have, everyone working together."

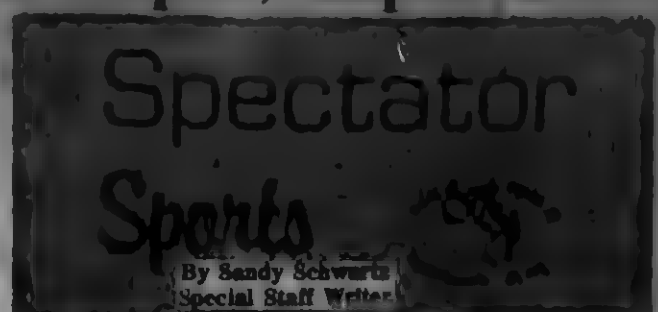

Senior Bob Ginn will direct that offense that Coach Slaughter talks about.

All conference runner Craig Snider will provide the punch for the wishbone backfield. Joining Snider in that backfield will be senior halfback Mike Colles (5-10, 190). Mike played his high school football at Worthington and Coach Slaughter is high on him.

"Mike is a good outside runner and I'm hoping that this will help balance out our running game," commented Gene.

Bright spots on that offensive line are Mike Adams and Gregg Arnold. Mike is from Batavia and Gregg from Warren.

Coach Slaughter also looks for much help from some of the local talent that he has recruited in recent football campaigns.

Joe Schieppi (6-2, 196) a sophomore guard from Columbus Eastmoor may merit a starting assignment but if he doesn't, Coach Slaughter feels confident he'll be seeing some action.

Curt Moore also a sophomore from Eastmoor will be vying for the fullback position. He is 5-10, 196 and coach Slaughter describes him as a hard nose running back.

Chuck Izzo, all-city at Columbus South High School is a candidate for some back up work at center while Harry Reed another all-city man at center will also vie for that position. Reed is from Marion Franklin High School.

That rounds out the offense that Coach Slaughter thinks shows much promise. Slaughter is starting his 13th year as the Cap grid coach.

"With the experience and depth that we have on defense, we plan to be quite mobile," says Coach Slaughter of his defense.

Eight regulars return from the defense of a year past.

Area standouts on that defensive unit are linebackers Dennis Bernhard (6-0, 190), a senior from Bishop Hartley and John Eborn (6-1, 190) from Columbus Mohawk. Coach Slaughter hopes to stop the opponent's running game with this rugged pair leading the way in the tackles.

Other local men on defense, include John Baylin (6-1, 180) who is from Northland and Bob Suber (6-0, 185) from Linden McKinley. All are deep backs.

Coach Slaughter has much praise for the squad as footballers but he speaks just as highly of them when the academic point of football is brought into the conversation.

"These student-athletes come here to play football, but more important is that they come for an education and I am very proud to say that almost all of them receive this," stated Slaughter.

And yes they do, facts show that 93 per cent of all recruits (that is students recruited by Capital to play football and receive financial aid) receive their diplomas as scheduled. Probably even more impressive is that 97 per cent of the recruits receive their degree and then go on to higher education.

In all you'd probably have to say things look pretty good over at Capital.

Pass Rush Favorable To Falcons

PASSING IS THE name of the game in some high school circles this season. A heavy pass seems to be the answer to defending the aerial-minded teams. That's what Franklin Heights' forward wall did to Westland's Cougars last week. Pierce charges by the Falcons forwards kept the Cougar passers tight and as a result the game went to the Falcons, 14-0 along with a fine defensive and offensive maneuver. Here's an example of the white-clad Falcons getting to the Cougar quarterback.

DON'T WAIT 'TIL WINTER TO WINTERIZE YOUR HOME

By following these simple tips, you'll use a lot less gas next winter. And as prices rise, it's especially important that we don't waste valuable natural gas.

If you have an old conversion burner, you'll be wise to replace it with a modern new gas furnace, designed to operate with less gas. As a present gas heating customer, you can install a new gas furnace and be sure of getting gas supplies in the future. A more efficient new gas furnace will give you more heat for less money. Plus it will save space in the basement. Why not call your dealer for advice, while the weather's nice?

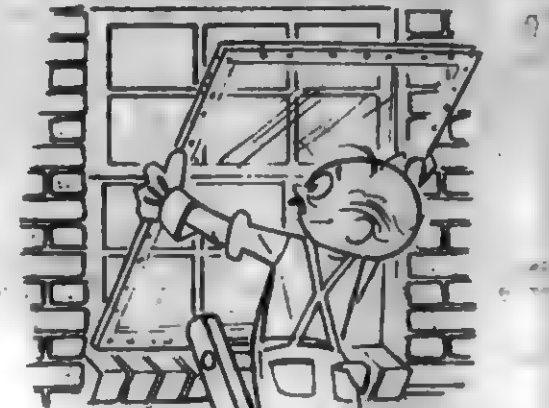

Gas is precious pure energy... use it wisely.

COLUMBIAGAS

Install adequate insulation. Simply saying a 6 inch thickness of insulation in the attic can mean significant savings in gas and money.

Storm windows and doors, or plastic sheeting can reduce heat loss as much as 10%. Your home stays warmer, your furnace uses less fuel.

Every opening and crack around windows and doors wastes gas and costs you money. Caulking and weather stripping can seal cracks and gaps, save dollars in fuel.

East High Tigers Have Workload Cut For Them

OPENING up a football scheduled at Steubenville and then having to face Northland in your first City League North game sounds like no easy task. But the football Tigers of East High did just that.

East Coach Bob Steele claims to have a stronger team than last year's 3-6-1 squad. He returns 11 lettermen of which saw 5 of those as clear cut starters.

"We'll be stronger than last year in a few ways," says an optimistic Coach Steele.

THE TIGERS boast a pair of strong team leaders in Jesse Dixon and Robert Wilson. Both are 6-1, 208 and both are only juniors.

"These two are real team leaders and excellent linemen," says Coach Steele. He indicated that he was counting heavily on that identical duo to lead the way.

Dennis Fields (6-0, 178) and the backup there and Coach Steele also speaks highly of him.

Dave Scott (5-10, 170) and Sid Whiteside (5-0, 170) are a pair of tough guards and Charles Brooks (5-10, 165) will back up there. All three are juniors.

Travis Johnson (5-10, 165) and Ron Littlefield (5-10, 160) are fighting it out the center slot with Johnson ahead to date.

Donald Dimmy, only a sophomore, is a coaches delight at split end. At 5-10, 185 Don renders much promise according to Coach Steele.

COACH STEELE is presented with a pleasant problem in the backfield. William Anderson (5-10, 155) a sophomore, and Tony Matthews (5-11, 170) a senior, are challenging for the quarterback spot.

Coach Steele says that both show promise and he seemed confident that either could easily lead his I backfield to the goal line.

Phil Dixon (6-1, 195) will be the senior fullback of the squad. Vern Chisolm, who is currently nursing an injury will give him relief there when he mends.

Joe Sims will open up at halfback and he has been pushed hard for playing time by Allan Smith (5-10, 175). All backfielders except the quarterbacks are returnees who saw action last year.

"Our defense looks stronger than last year's, it will be much stronger if we can stay healthy,"

PLAYING up front on that Oklahoma defense with a monster back will be middle guard Mike McKee (5-11, 180). Mike is a rugged sophomore.

Dixon and Wilson will be the tackles and their job will be to anchor the line according to Coach Steele.

Defensive ends look to be sophomore Butch Perry (5-10, 175) and Alvin Butler (6-0, 180).

Ron Littlefield (5-0, 185) and Dave Scott (5-0, 175) will be two of the linebackers, both are experienced.

Richard Brown a junior will render services there.

Defensive halfbacks look to be Mike Burke (5-7, 125), Joe Sims (5-0, 165) and Rodney Smith (5-0, 165). All are seniors.

Victor Flood, a 5-10, 166 pound junior will be one of the cornerbacks and Coach Steele feels he is the brightest spot in this deep backfield.

Other possible cornerbacks could be either Butler or a surprising sophomore Laccern Scott. Coach Steele describes him as "a real strong hitter."

"Our enthusiasm and desire to win has made a real turnaround from last year," explains an excited Coach Steele.

Vying for the monster back or deep safety slot are Rod Smith (5-11, 175), James Page (5-0, 145) and Carl Dallas (5-11, 165).

"IF WE CAN call our mistakes, I will assure you that we will fool a lot of people," summed up an optimistic Coach Steele.

returns as the veteran of the deep secondary.

Newcomers fighting for a starting spot on the primed defensive squad include John Sommers, Terry Monson, Don Cole, Pat Burns, Mike Kelley and Kevin Trojack.

INCIDENTALLY, last year's defensive unit, a strong point of the Hartley team, lost an even half dozen by graduation, but Coach Ryan hopes to whip up a new crew of about the same strength.

"We should be real respectful," claimed the modest silver haired wonder. "Our weak point is our lack of depth but this is countered by real good attitude and great competition." Ryan was quick to point out.

"Barring injuries, we'll be right in the thick of things," and we don't really want to doubt the words of the man who makes Hartley athletics go, do we?

Academy Contender

Coming off of a Mid-Buckeye League championship, Columbus Academy's mentor Phil describes this year's edition of Viking football as a "senior team."

Blessed with 14 returning lettermen, (10 of those were starters a year ago) Coach Hess again, expects to be a strong contender for those Mid-Buckeye championship horns.

Classy Jim Case, an all-leaguer returns at quarterback. Case is 6-2, 185 and Coach Hess reports that his passing is looking "Better than ever." Jim is backed up by Bill Worthman (6-1, 180) who also saw much action last year.

Trying to flag down those Case bombs will be Jon Sebring (6-3, 185) and Kevin McCoy (6, 170). You can probably also expect to see Webb Vorys a small 150 pound halfback wander out of the backfield to also, retrieve a few.

Coach Hess lists one of the team's weaknesses as the need for a running halfback. But you can bet that Phil and his staff have been hard at work looking for just that.

Turning to defense, Coach Hess seems confident. "We have some of our strong defensive linemen back and I'm expecting big things out of them."

Anchoring that defensive wall will be junior Eugene Wilks (6-2, 200) John Chapman (6-3, 190) and Harold Coderre (5-10, 205).

Summarizing the Academy footballers, Coach Hess said, "If our experienced players, especially our seniors, give us the hustle and leadership we expect, then we could have a real successful season."

Glancing down Coach Hess strong line of returning gridiron men, you would probably have to agree with him.

Hartley's Hawks Aim For Top Rung

With Watterson being labeled the team to beat each year in the Central Catholic League, things could change. And Hartley just could be the squad to change those fortunes.

THE HAWKS lost two hardnose running backs from last year in Chip Jakeway and Tim Cunningham, both all CCL.

But complimented with 14 returning lettermen and flanked by 23 seniors, Hartley boss Jack Ryan, Mr. Football, is looking forward to an "interesting" as he would put it season.

COULD THIS "interesting" season mean a new type of gameplan?

Leading the Hawkeye barrage will be their 5-10, 167 pound sharp-shooting quarterback Mark Disabato. Disabato may change the Hartley game plan from that rugged running attack to a smooth aerial warfare type of play.

PRIME TARGETS will be, track speedster Ed Radcliff, senior returnee Don Swicki, and quarterback converted tight end Scott Williams.

"Disabato has a real quick release, and we have a good set of receivers, yes, the ball might be in the air a little more this year," claims Ryan, a football veteran of 33 years. Center Huff Stenson is back and he, guard John Jacobs (227 pounds), Mark Hammerstein (225 pounds), Greg Sommers (6-1, 216) and Bill Phillips (5-11, 175) should form a tough interior line.

MANY AROUND the Hartley barracks feel that this rock solid line probably is a big strength that the Hawks possess.

This line could give the quick releasing Disabato the time he needs to unload. Doug Williams a 200 pound sophomore fullback will be in the backfield to balance out the attack and try to help improve on last year's 6-4 record.

A wide open offense, a sometimes feature of past Ryan teams looks even closer now.

OTHER newcomers that could help include Frank Tension a tailback and Bill Williams a running back.

MARIO MASIOS returns to do the placekicking, he lettered last year and once again will be looked to for some needed points to add to the scoreboard.

Anchoring the defensive crew will be linebackers Paul Kegelmeyer (6, 198) and Bill Gilliland (5-10, 160). Paul Jacobs is back at defensive tackle as is Tony Cunningham at defensive end. Pat Wilse a (5-7, 180 pound) defensive back

Fire School Ends In Glorious Blaze

WEST COLUMBUS—THE 28th Annual State Fire School ended last week at O.S.U. with 465 firemen from around the state receiving instruction in such topics as Fire Prevention and Inspection, Emergency Victim Care, Maintenance and Operation of Pumps, The Movement of Water in Firefighting, Rescue, Aerial Ladders and Platforms and Leadership Development. The course in Fire Ground Tactics used the $1,000 Scott Fire Training Simulator. The simulator uses four overhead projectors which give an aerial view of the fire, smoke and hose lines and ladders. Four men, each in charge of a piece of equipment, directs the operator of the projector what action they are to take and it is projected on the screen. The course is designed to develop good tactical procedures at the scene of a fire, according to T & I instructor, Chief Jack W. Rowley of the Columbus Fire Department. Other instructors were Joe Keefe, Bob Cosner, Bill Hennessy and Harmon Dutko. The picture above is of a tanker fire conducted at Port Columbus. This year's school at the College of Law Building and Hagerty Hall was sponsored by the Academic Faculty of Vocational-Technical Education and the State Department of Education, in cooperation with the Office of State Fire Marshal. Director is Dr. Robert M. Reese of the university's College of Education. (Photo by Kathy Devaney)

HCC Hears About Low Income Home Ownership

BY KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus—Hardworking, bill paying young families are being given the opportunity to purchase homes with no downpayment, according to Laura Stanhope of the Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority Cosoc program. Miss Stanhope spoke to the Thursday meeting of the Hilltop Community Council.

Cosoc is a social consulting agency which selects and trains families for homeownership, she said.

"Each family is enrolled in a six-week training program in which they study insurance, utilities, banking, maintenance (where they actually have workshops) and they speak with an attorney about their responsibilities as homeowners," she said.

The couple must be young enough to assume a 30 year lease-purchase agreement. When their income reaches a certain level they leave the program, get a loan on the open market and pay for the home.

THE GOAL OF the federally backed program is a decent home and suitable environment for everyone. The local program tries to help young families acquire their dream home even if they don't have the income now, to establish pride and responsibility of homeownership in the community and to join the community in bettering itself.

Members of the HCC expressed concern about more low-income families moving into the area.

"It is part of the contract that the property be maintained or the person will be evicted. The community also establishes community standards through a residents' association which are enforced by that group," she said.

Information about the program may be obtained at the following locations: 2467 Newburgh Dr., 471-6441; 513 B Souder, 221-0098 or 272 S. Gift, 238-5871.

FERN ZETTY said members of the community should be concerned with the dumpage of raw sewage into the Scioto which was reported last week.

"Columbus is growing before it can provide services for what it has. We should be ashamed of what Columbus is doing to its neighbors," she said.

The members of the Council heard from Dick Foster of United Community Council (UCC) about meetings scheduled at Westgate Recreation Center in October.

As part of a community education program there will be meetings the first three Tuesdays in October to discuss the development and planned development for the southwest quadrant of the city. The sessions are designed to show residents how they can influence decisions affecting them, Foster said.

THE SPEAKER at the Oct. 2 meeting at 7:15 p.m. will be the Director of the Development Department Jack Huddle. He will speak on "The Responsibility of the City for Comprehensive Planning." Jim Roseboro, chairman of the Development Committee for City Council, will explain the role of his committee as liaison between the Development Department and City Council.

The second part of this program will be presented by Tom Kipp, who has been active in establishing priorities in the Capital Improvement Program (CIP) budget.

At the Oct. 9 meeting representatives from the Mid-Ohio Regional Planning Commission (MORPC) and the UCC will discuss MORPC's check off power and its responsibility for transportation and housing with the focus is the southwest quadrant and the proposed COTA bus lines.

At the Oct. 16 meeting City Ombudsman Nodine Hemminger and Community Relations Director Odella Welch Williams will speak about points of access to city government when a person has a problem.

THE NEXT meeting of the Hilltop Community Council will be Oct. 11 and President Harry Grashel said all the candidates for City Council or a representative would be present to speak and answer questions.

An award of merit was presented to Lois Neff, secretary of HCC, for her work in the community. She was especially commended for her efforts in getting a large turnout for the "Music in the Air" concerts at Westgate Park. Westgate had the best turnout except for Franklin Park which had big names, Grashel said.

Everett Likes . . .

NOTE: Everett is a 16-year old manly young man who is among the more than 5,000 Franklin County youths served by Franklin County Children's Services. More than 100 of these children need the love and attention that a foster home such as yours could offer them. Following is Everett's story...

Everett likes to cook...and he loves math...and he thinks caving and exploring are the greatest...and he plays baseball and football...and he wants to be a policeman.

And on and on. Not too many youths these days can boast such a wide interest range. But as Everett puts it, "There's so much to life, you have to try everything. And I've got a lot to learn about everything."

Sixteen-year-old Everett not only likes to do all of these different things, but he does them all with ease and perfection. Of course, he tells you about them shyly, and only after a bit of coaxing because he's not one to give himself a round of applause. But when you see a wide smile start to spread across his youthful face (which shows the beginnings of a sandy-colored moustache) you know he is proud.

AND WHY should'nt he be? In the cooking line, Everett can whip up a dish for the guys at the group home where he lives like a chef—with spaghetti and hamburgers his menu specialties.

Everett makes good grades and is in the 10th grade this year at a Columbus high school, where he is trying out for quarterback on the varsity football team.

But baseball is one of Everett's bigger loves. It showed when he was starting catcher for his junior high school team and was named "Most Valuable Player" last year with better than .300 batting average. Cincinnati Red's catcher Johnny Bench is a hero with this lad, so he is mastering professional baseball as one field to enter.

EVERETT LOVES to travel, and sees this as one way to get out into the world.

When it comes to buckling down to work, Everett doesn't balk there either. Last year he helped remodel the group home by painting and paneling it. His house parents say "he'll do anything in the world for you."

This summer, Everett worked trimming shrubbery, painting lines at parking lots and various other odd jobs to earn money for his cherished 10-speed bicycle, which he keeps brightly polished for long bike treks through the countryside.

School is another favorite with Everett, and math ranks tops on the subject list. Everett's first year of high school will bring with it a host of new friends, which he makes easily with his winning personality.

A well rounded youth, Everett could bring a lot of joy and pride to a foster home. There's a lot of love stored up during his 16 years, and he wants to share it with someone.

Could you open your heart and your home to a foster child like Everett? For more information on the foster care program of Franklin County Children's Services, call, write, or visit the agency at 1261 Gantz Road, Grove City, Ohio 43123, Telephone, 276-3541, Ext. 294.

Ohio Bell Begins Construction

CONSTRUCTION of a new central office exchange building in New Rome began last month, according to Joseph Jester, Ohio Bell district commercial manager. The new building will replace the present "378" community dial office and will house new Electronic Switching System (ESS) equipment. Plans call for the installation of ESS equipment to begin in late October, 1974, about one month after the building is scheduled to be completed. The new call switching equipment will be cut into service about mid-summer, 1975. ESS, the most technologically advanced call switching equipment available in the communications field today, offers greater flexibility and speed of service than the electro-mechanical equipment it will replace. Touch-Tone or pushbutton phones and custom calling services, including automatic call forwarding and three-way calling, will be available to subscribers served from the new office. In announcing the start of construction, Jester said, "Although demand for service in this fast developing area has increased sharply during the past several years, making this service improvement program mandatory, we are pleased to be able to bring this high quality service to our subscribers in New Rome and other western Columbus suburbs." The new building at 140 Norton Rd. will have a basement and first floor, providing about 28,000 square feet of space. Ohio Bell investment in the new central office building and equipment is estimated at more than $6 million. General contractor for the building is Altmeyer & Sons; Mechanical contractor, Sauer Inc.; Electrical contractor, S & S Electric, all of Columbus. Architects are Halcyon & Myers of Columbus.

Lieutenant Attends Course

Lieutenant Richard E. Poor of the Columbus Division of Police has been selected, as one of 105 officers representing 90 jurisdictions, to attend the nine month Traffic Police Administration Training Program at Northwestern University, began Sept. 13.

The course will be conducted by the University's Traffic Institute and will be funded in part by the Law Enforcement Assistance Act, through the United States Department of Justice.

In announcing Lieutenant Poor's selection, Chief Burden stated, "The Division was fortunate to have Lieutenant Poor selected to attend Northwestern University. The Institute's program is recognized nationally and internationally as one of the most comprehensive police administration training programs available."

Invaluable training experience he will gain will be of great benefit to the Division and the community. This training course is another of the advanced training programs in which the Columbus Division of Police participate in order to keep abreast of modern methods of law enforcement.

The Brown Baggers

By their "brown bags" shall you know them.
Hundreds of the mid-30 and up generation will start to burn the midnight oil as what we used to refer to endearingly as "Night School" finds silent bells ringing all over the Franklin County area.
Age has never been a barrier or at the most an implausible one to those whose quest for knowledge knows no bounds.
Some will be struggling with the basic three R's. Others will be advancing their own careers toward promotions by getting a little more book learning.
The road will not be easy as first as the books will in some cases be matched by cobwebs on the brain until the rhythm of learning starts a smooth flow.

It's a tribute to those pre-senior and some much younger citizens that they will be foregoing some of the material pleasures of life to add a little more "smarts" that can be turned into dollars. This effort will give them and their families a little more vittles on the table and a few bucks in the bank for that rainy day that sometimes comes too often.
As for the brown bagger tag that's the little brown sack that might hold a sandwich, an apple, a "Twinkie" and some other magic goodies that will make recess all the sweeter.
Happy diploma.

Safety Belt Survey Indicates Need, Want

A SAFETY BELT attitude survey conducted by the Department of Highway Safety reveals most Ohioans favor required seat belt usage.
The survey, presented to Ohio Highway Safety Director Eugene P. O'Grady, was administered by the State Highway Patrol's Vehicle Inspection Teams. More than 25,000 drivers were interviewed.
"THE NOTION the public is against a required seat belt law is not true," Director O'Grady commented. "Our figures reveal as high as 69.1 percent of the interviewees favor required seat belts and as high as 86 percent of those polled said they would use seat belts if required seat belt law were passed."
The director said the patrol teams conducted the statewide, random survey during vehicle inspections.

"THE REPORT states 28 percent of the drivers were using some type of restraint," Director O'Grady pointed out.
The director also noted the rise in the percentage of seat belt usage in 1972 and 1973 model cars which come equipped with buzzer alarm systems to motivate use of safety belts.
"We find the percentage of drivers using restraints in '72 and '73 model cars jumping to 39.1 percent," he said.
SOME 33 percent of the drivers knew the 1973 Ohio license plate slogan and 80.2 percent thought the printing of the "Seat Belts Fastened?" motto was a good idea.
"We concluded the printing of the slogan on the 1973 tags is effective," the director said, "as 19 percent said their reaction to it was to buckle up."

Consumer Protection Law Strengthens Installment Sales

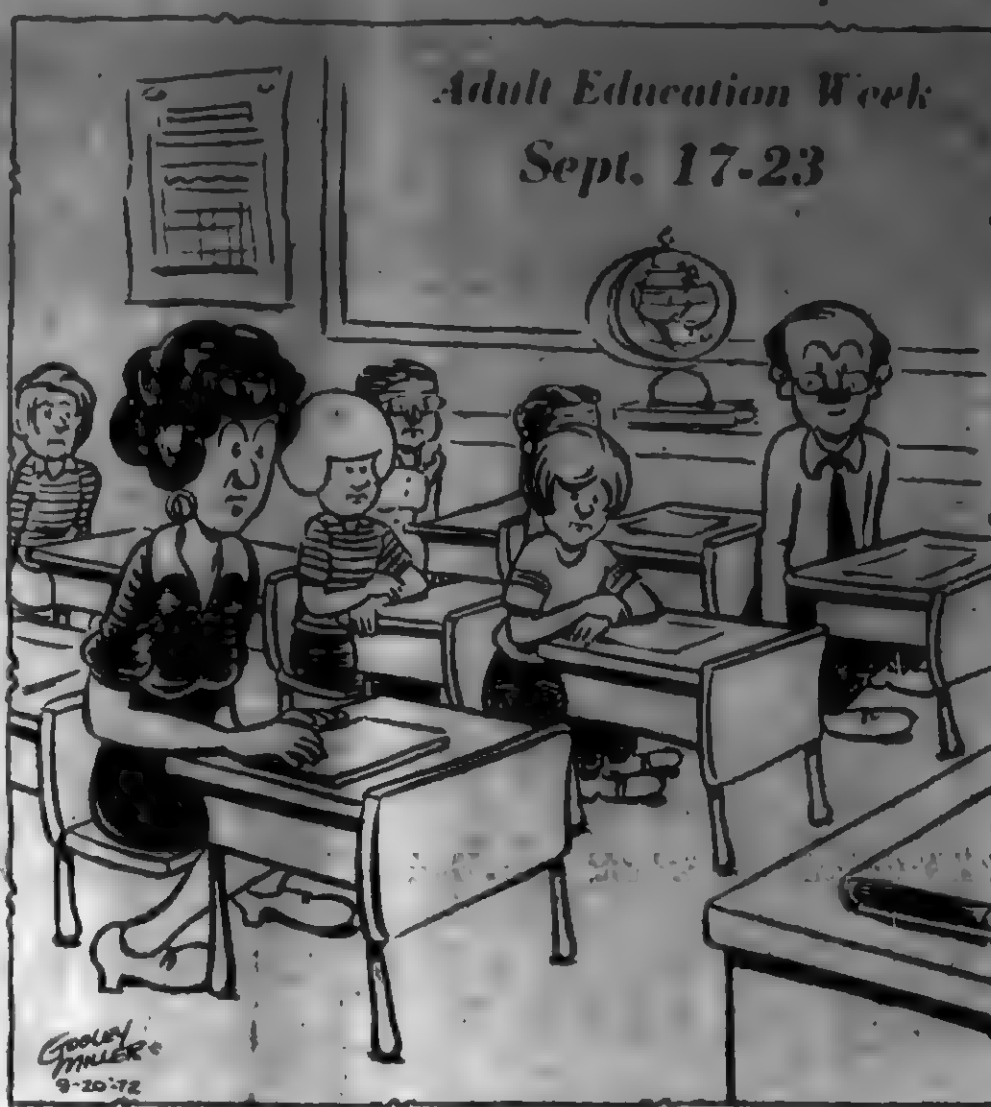

A NEW STATE consumer protection law passed by the General Assembly, strengthens the Ohio Retail Installment Sales Law and modifies certain provisions of the Uniform Commercial Code.
Perhaps the most important provision modifies the legal doctrine known as holder-in-due-course. When goods are purchased on credit, the buyer often signs a promissory note which the merchant "sells" to a financial institution. The financial institution becomes the owner and collector on the note.
UNDER FORMER holder-in-due-course law, if a buyer refused to make payment to the financial institution because the merchant sold him faulty merchandise the financial institution could sue the buyer and the court would order the buyer to pay, because the court would not take into consideration that the goods were faulty or not delivered.
The new law eliminates this abuse to some extent. If the buyer notifies the financial institution within a specified period of time of his dissatisfaction with the seller of the goods he can defend on these grounds if he is later sued by the financial institution.
THE NEW LAW requires that the merchant or financial institution give the buyer a special notice telling him that his note has been "sold" to a financial institution and of the time period in which he must notify the financial institution of any dissatisfaction he has with the seller. Basically, the buyer has fifteen days in which to notify the financial institution.

Another provision of the new law modifies the present use of the waiver of defense clause. By signing a contract containing a waiver of defense clause, the consumer agrees in advance not to assert any defenses such as a breach of warranty or non-delivery should he be sued by someone to whom the merchant has sold the contract.
The new law modifies the use of waiver of defense clauses by setting out requirements exactly the same as those relating to holder-in-due-course.
Another new section prohibits a creditor from repossessing merchandise if the buyer has paid more than 75 percent of the total purchase price.
THE NEW LAW also concerns itself with balloon payments. A "Balloon payment" is a final payment which is significantly larger than preceding payments under an installment contract.
It is used to make payments appear small, and thus assist in the sale; it is also used to require the buyer to refinance to the benefit of the seller. Under the new provision the payment schedule must be composed of installments which are substantially equal in amount.

Boy Scout Fall Roundup Plans To Corral 8,500

ADDITION of 8,500 new Scouts is the goal of the 1973 Fall Roundup to be conducted by the Central Ohio Council of Boy Scouts of America, according to Thomas L. Parker, Council President.
The roundup will be conducted during the week of September 24 by contacting prospective Scouts in approximately 350 schools in the nine-county Central Ohio area. The following program is planned:
THE CUB SCOUT age group (8-10 years) will be invited to join through a Cub Scout Night to be held at all schools Tuesday, September 25.
The Scout age group (11-14 years) will be invited to join through Troop Rallies at all troop meetings during September and October.
The roundup promotion program will be carried out through active Scouts and Scout Leaders. Both will be eligible for awards to be presented for attaining recruitment goals.
Parker said that three items have been identified as being major areas in bringing a new emphasis to scouting and will be stressed to Scout Leaders during the recruitment roundup:

1. Relevant advancement with flexibility in programs and procedures
2. Greater involvement by Scouts in decision making and in growth development
3. The optional program for older Scouts in the troop, the leadership corps, with its emphasis on developing leadership competencies.
THE SCOUTING program emphasis will be made on decision making, perception of a broadening world and establishing a set of values and attitudes with the use of Oath and Law as a guide.
The Recruitment Program will be divided into districts. Eight of the roundup Chairmen are from The Spectator area.

Untangling Traffic Jam Needs Study Of Facts

By Arch Booth
Executive Vice President,
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON—Anyone who spends any time in a major traffic jam soon finds himself thinking: There must be a better way to move people than this.
And there is, but it's necessary to understand some often-overlooked facts about the urban traffic tangle:
1. The heart of the problem—excluding air pollution for the moment—is that private automobiles take up too much space for the number of people they carry. They carry an average of 1.4 people per car (possibly a high estimate in many areas).
In other words, building more freeways and more parking spaces in the "downtown" area isn't always the solution. The extra facilities quickly fill up with extra automobiles.
2. Public transportation is ideally suited to moving large numbers of people over a small right-of-way in a short space of time; that is, rush-hour commuters.
It is not now—and probably never will be—suited to moving people from one point in the suburbs to another point in the suburbs, unless the two points happen to fall along a major commuter artery. So, we will not be able to get along entirely without the private automobile.
3. Technological breakthroughs are not needed to improve public transportation. A conventional high-speed rail system can carry 72,000 people per hour along one right-of-way.
There are very few corridors in the world that can take full advantage of such capacity. A bus-based system, operating on its own express right-of-way, can haul 14,000 per hour—and everybody gets a seat. These figures may be compared with the standard rule-of-thumb for freeway capacity of 2,000 vehicles per lane per hour, or 2,800 people at the average occupancy rate.
THE SECRET is the separate right-of-way. Put the bus or the train in regular traffic and they would both get bogged down in the regular traffic jams. Then capacity plummets. The local bus, operating in mixed traffic, hauls about 4,000 per hour.

MOST of the "gee whis" equipment that has been proposed—such as the famous monorail—offers no capacity advantage over conventional equipment. Further, these gadgets are often more expensive than conventional equipment, and they usually have unresolved technical problems. Monorails, for example, are very difficult to switch. That's why most of the demonstration monorails either go back and forth on the same track, or around and around a circular track.
That's not to say conventional equipment cannot be made more attractive and more comfortable. Lord knows, it needs to be.
Assistance Essential
4. Public transportation needs public assistance. The most heavily traveled commuter routes can pay for themselves, in the peak hours. But additional routes, longer hours of service, more frequent service—all these factors add to operating cost much faster than they add to revenue. If the system must pay for itself, there are only two choices:
Cut back service or charge the peak-hour riders enough to cover the deficit operations. But seeking it to the rush-hour commuter tends to drive him right back to his automobile, which leaves us where we started.
FEDERAL grants for the purchase of new equipment have been essential to staying off the total collapse of many of our transit systems. The program should probably be continued. However, I agree with Transportation Secretary Claude Brinegar that federal subsidies for operating deficits would be a mistake.
Local voters should decide for themselves how much service they are willing to pay for. It would be unfair for one community—through its federal taxes—to be subsidizing for some other community a higher level of service than it enjoys.

State Income Tax Is Boon To All: Governor

Governor John J. Gilligan said this week the average Ohio taxpayer earning $10,000 annually who owns his home and has three school-age children, "surely is getting his money's worth for just 40 cents more a week in state tax."
THE AVERAGE taxpayer, who owns a home with a market value of $19,108, is receiving an annual reduction of $32 in his real property tax while paying only $63 in state income tax, the governor said.
"Besides the property tax relief," the governor explained, "the state is providing an average of $109 more annually per child in state aid to local school districts in addition to other improved state services with revenue from the income tax."
The $32 property tax reduction for the average taxpayer is part of an estimated $136.7 million in annual statewide real estate tax relief, Governor Gilligan said.
THE 10 PER CENT property tax rollback marked the first time in history that Ohio real estate taxes were reduced statewide through legislation which was a major point in the governor's tax reform program adopted late in 1971.
The governor also noted nearly 250,000 of the state's Senior Citizen homeowners age 65 and over, will receive an additional $27.3 million in real property tax relief through provisions of the Homestead Exemption Act.

Both the 10 per cent, across-the-board, real estate tax rollback afforded all Ohio property owners and the Homestead Exemption tax relief are funded with revenue from the state's personal income tax.
Gov. Gilligan said Ohio's 88 counties are fully reimbursed for the 10 per cent rollback and Homestead Exemption relief by the state.
As a result of passage of the state income tax, Gov. Gilligan said, school districts will receive nearly $720 million in state aid during fiscal year 1974.
GILLIGAN SAID this compared with slightly over $463 million in state aid for education in fiscal year 1971 prior to passage of the state income tax.
The governor noted the increased aid for education amounted to an increase of 57 per cent in two years or an average increase of $109 per pupil.
"ALL LOCAL school districts in Ohio would have been required to vote an average of six additional mills in property tax to raise enough money to fund this increase in aid for education," Gilligan said.

Resources Booklet Is Available Free

A new publication, "Preserving Ohio's Wild and Scenic Rivers," has been published by the Department of Natural Resources and is available to the public.
The brochure provides information on the state Wild and Scenic Rivers Act, outlines criteria used in designating scenic, wild and recreation rivers and explains the Department of Natural Resources' role in administering the program.
"Public understanding of our program of stream preservation is essential," said Natural Resources Director William B. Nye.
This brochure explains the importance of protecting the beauty and quality of free-flowing streams and tells how citizens can help.
Copies of the pamphlet are available without charge at the Publications Center, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Fountain Square, Columbus, Ohio 43264.

THE BIGGEST battle of all surrounding the Alaska pipeline controversy has been what route it will follow rather than whether or not it will be installed.
The Alaskan route would take the oil to the sea where it would be loaded aboard tankers and brought to the west coast. This route would keep the precious stuff entirely within our control, not having to pay a percentage to a foreign power.
THE ALTERNATE route, through Canada, would keep the oil in the pipeline until it arrives in THE MIDWEST for distribution. The major difference being the point of arrival in these United States. Should the Canadian route be used, Ohioans would get much greater relief from the gasoline shortage than if the shipping route is used.
It has been estimated by those who ought to know that NONE of the oil from Alaska would reach the mid-west if it is shipped into west coast ports.
Personally, I am in favor of the Alaskan route. This might surprise most who have come to believe the environmentalists' stand is for any other alternative. My rationale is simple.
The less gasoline on the market in Ohio, the quicker the citizens, business world and the politicians are going to realize a rockable, landed mass transit is an immediate necessity.
MANY BATTLES will be won and lost in Washington and Columbus before the priorities on who may drive and who may not drive are settled. The real crunch that will bring about new lifestyles will come in your lungs. We can only breathe so much junk before we must keel over.
I tender a personal thanks to the oil companies of the United States for not building a refinery in the past forty years.
Without that shortsightedness, we might have enough fuel to double the number of vehicles on the road. I look terrible in a gas mask, and it would surely have come to the road. I look terrible in a gas mask, and it would surely have come to that.

THE STATE and federal highway lobby is all-powerful. It will not relinquish the urge to blacktop the world. No lawmaker dare continually buck the cement, asphalt people or the equipment builders and contractors. The car manufacturers and oil people are the biggest corporations in the world. Standard Oil of Ohio made 17 1/2 billion dollars last year. It was way down the list in size.
I sincerely congratulate those wheelers and dealers who have so beautifully painted themselves in a corner.
LIFELINE SUGGESTION: Learn once more the joys of cycling. It'll give you back your health, save you money and clean the air.

ZIP-ped Letters To Destination Much Sooner

THE ZIP CODE—The five-digit number following the state in United States addresses—now appears on more than 85 percent of first class mail.
The coding of mail has become even more important in recent months with a growing share of first class letters sorted on machines equipped with the Zip Mail Translator (ZMT).
With this computerized unit, the letter sorting machine operator simply keys the Zip Code appearing on the envelope.
The Zip Code is then "translated" so the envelope is routed to the bin which will give it the best transportation.
Previously, postal clerks were required to learn the complex local and regional sorting schemes that are now carried in the ZMT computer.
Zip Code usage is running about 85 percent on first class mail going from one business to another. The mail from the average family to businesses does much better, however, with the percentage nearing 90 percent.
This reflects the near universal use of Zip Code on business stationery, including return address, order forms, coupons, reply envelopes, etc.
Zip Code use by other classes of mail includes: Airmail letters, 91 percent, and parcel post, 86 percent.
The use of Zip Code has been mandatory since 1967 for second class and bulk third class rates.
The five Zip Code digits are "a telescopic sequence," focusing on successively smaller areas. The first digit points to a geographically large area, the second and third digits to one of 566 sectional centers—key post offices, which serve 30 to 200 or more smaller post offices, or to one major city post office. The last two digits stand for the post office or postal stations of ultimate destination.
For example, ZIP number 43015 means the letter is bound for Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana or Michigan as represented by the figure 4. The digits 30 single out the Columbus, Ohio, Postal District.
Accordingly, the 15 represents the city of Delaware, Ohio. All letters bearing the first three ZIP numbers 430, or 431 from anywhere in the nation are sent to Columbus for redistribution to the respective Central Ohio post offices.
Letters bearing 432 as the first three ZIP numbers will be followed by two numbers representing delivery areas within the Columbus City Delivery Limits.

City Plans Revenue Sharing Use

Columbus-Mayor Tom Moody announced the City Administration's plan for the use of revenue sharing moneys for the period July 1, 1973, to June 30, 1974.

The single largest priority item Moody said is $3,000,000 for the projected municipal court building. In a report to City Council July 11 the Mayor indicated his intention of seeking Council support for this building in the Hall of Justice complex.

Other projects and purposes included by Mayor Moody in the proposed plan are continued support for the Division of Police including funds for the 62 patrolmen to be added to the force in 1973 and full funding for the 22 civilian jail guards and communication officers in 1974. The amount earmarked for these purposes is $1,411,591.

The second largest allocation of funds during this twelve-month period is for social services. Mayor Moody noted that $1,800,000 is projected for the cities participation in social service programs. Columbus has contracted to support community action agency (CMACA) programs, the Central Ohio Council on Alcoholism and others in this service area to date.

Revenue sharing funds are also programmed for capital projects formerly funded by councilmanic borrowing ($750,000) and street cleaning assessment relief and improved service ($400,000).

The total allocation is $7,361,591 for the 12-month period and the first quarterly allotment check will be sent to the City in October, 1973.

Unemployment insurance is a joint federal-state program operated by the state in partnership with the U.S. Department of Labor.

Squadron 802 Contributed $400

West Columbus-Labor Day Sunday and Monday the cadets of the Columbus Col. Frank A. Hewell Squadron 802 of the Civil Patrol worked at Vets Memorial for the Jerry Lewis Telethon.

Work was not their only contribution, they also raised $400 and challenged some Ohio squadrons to see who could raise the most money.

Many of these same cadets had just returned from a three day visit to Colorado. They left Lockbourne Air Force Base Wednesday morning aboard an Air Force C-131. While in Colorado, they resided at the Palmer House Motel in Colorado Springs.

The main purpose of the trip was to tour the U.S. Air Force Academy. They returned to Lockbourne AFB Friday night after a short stop at Richardson-Gebaut AFB near Kansas City, Mo.

The money for the motel accommodations was raised by selling 350 dozen donuts. Some of the money pledged to the telethon will be raised by collecting empty pop bottles.

Grid Games Of The Week

Watterson Nips Tough Cats; Groveport Downs Raiders

by SANDY SCHWARTZ

AIDED by a penalty which nullified what could have been the game winning two point conversion, Watterson's wonderful football Eagles flew high to a 26-27 breath taking victory over perennial OCC toughie Westerville in Otterbein's stadium last Friday night.

Dashing to a 20-7 halftime margin, the Eagles looked destined to victory from the onset until the Wildcats of Westerville's classy signal caller, Steve Wohlert, generated the Wildcat spark in third quarter action.

HIGHLIGHTING that comeback was merely a 72 yard sprint from scrimmage in the third quarter by Wohlert which brought, yes, once again, the fans to their feet. Wohlert figured in another tally which staked the Wildcats to a 21-20 lead but not for too long. Watterson, boasting a QB with engineering power of his own, then went to work.

DEAN DIXON, the Eagle's sharp-shooting rifle-firing commander quickly spotted Scott Bringardner for a pair of strikes covering 75 yards and before you knew it, Watterson 28, Westerville 21.

Wohlert then got his turn to provide some most needed heroics and just that he did. Six plays later, the highlight being a 21 jaunt by none other than Wohlert, Dan Roush burst eight yards up the middle to mark another six pointer on the board for the Wildcats and close the gap to 28-27.

Ruling out the chance for the tie, Westerville elected to win or die. Wohlert promptly dropped back for the try for the two point conversion and hit wingback Bob Spahr for what would have been the game winner but offensive pass interference was called on Westerville, which dictates loss of down, so the score stood 28-27.

DIXON passed for 199 yards and three TD's, two to Bringardner and one to Steve Yeroch. He ran the other Eagle score over from the one himself.

Wohlert boasted 109 yards

West vs Brookhaven

Cowboys Corral Them

IN THIS PILE of hard driving Cowboys is a football and a goal. The play went for a TD in the first half that was featured by hard-hitting Cowboys leading the Brookhaven team with ease. That's West in the dark jerseys.

by air and 118 via the ground attack. Roush scored a couple of TD's, the other on a 58 yard dash and Spahr nabbed a pass for the other score.

IN THE other featured game of the week, Groveport downed Reynoldsburg 27-14. Groveport got another super performance from their premier running back Jeff Baker as he scored two TD's. Baker collected 133 yards in 15 carries to highlight the game's rushing honor. He rushed for runs of six and one yard out for his scores.

BUT Reynoldsburg boasted some strong credentials of their own as QB Mike Cronin passed for 166 yards. He connected on 12 of 17 aerial tries. One of those a 50 yard zip to wide receiver Darryl Newby.

Reynoldsburg outgained the Crusaders 302 yards to 269 for a bit of a consolation to Coach Kirschbaum. The loss evens the Purple Raiders record at 1-1.

Franklin Heights took the Southwestern School District title with a 9-7 win over Grove City. Last week the Falcons defeated Westland 14-0 and this win made them the champions.

Berkey finally got into the win column against Miami Trace 14-0.

City champion Northland was bumped by a strong DeSales team that should make the DeSales-Watterson CCL tussle a great one later this season.

West untracked its offense and geared over Brookhaven with ease last week while Gahanna's OCC champs reportedly topped a tough Cincinnati team.

Whitehall, still winless but improving visits Reynoldsburg Friday with the Raiders hoping to break the ice on a winless OCC record.

On the college scene it is Capital hosting Marietta in an afternoon joust at Capital and Otterbein's Cardinals take on Heidelberg in a Saturday night frisson at Otterbein.

Chargers
Winners

The Westside Chargers won their second game Saturday by defeating Mifflin 22-6.

Mifflin scored early in the first quarter but never came close again as the Charger defense tightened up.

Jeff Stinson broke the game open for the Chargers with a 2 yd. touchdown run, followed by a 36 yd. touchdown by Bob Frebis. Later in the 2nd quarter, Frebis hit John Arnold with a 13 yd. touchdown pass.

The Chargers next game is Saturday, September 22, at 10 a.m. at Eastmoor High School.

Watterson vs Westerville

McCloskey Makes It!

AN INTERCEPTION that staved off a possible Westerville TD was made by Watterson's Mike McCloskey (24) who snatched the ball from the outstretched hands of the Cat's Kenny Holmes (88). The play came with just a minute to play in the half with the ball on the Eagles five yard line.

Reynoldsburg vs Groveport

Up And Over

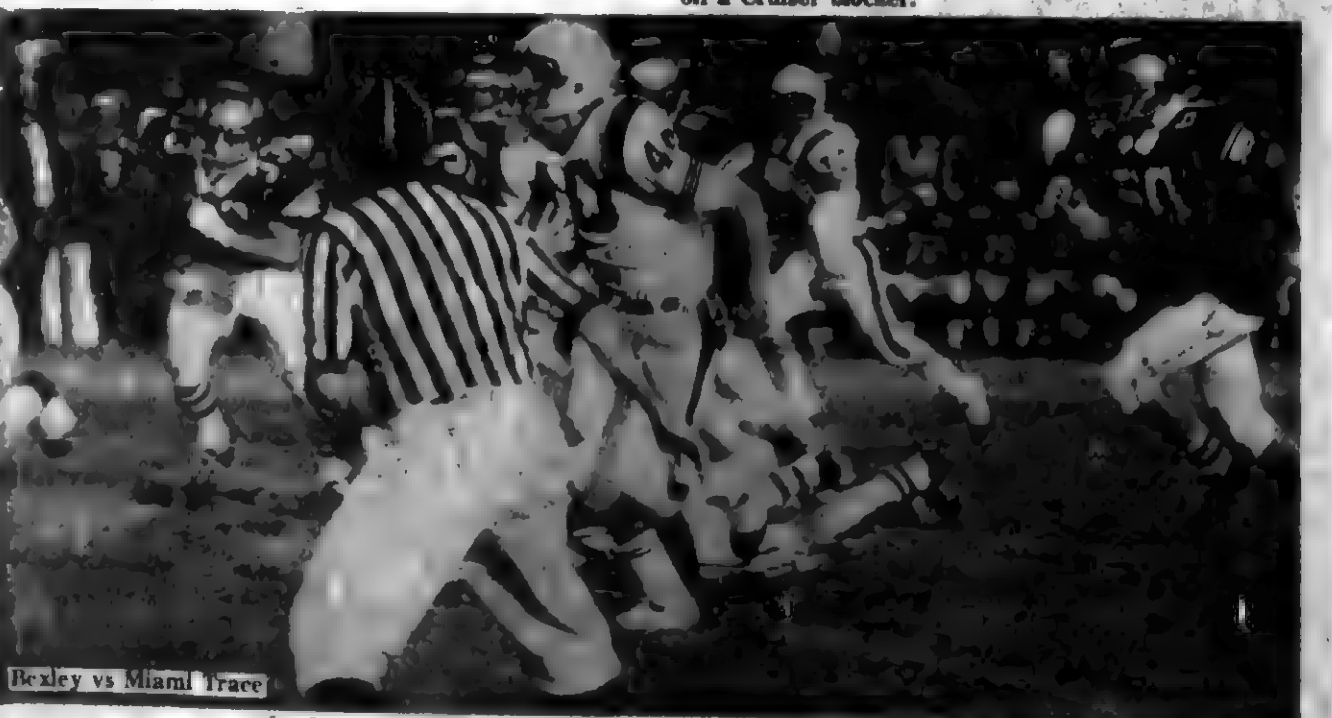

A THORN in the side of the Cats all night was Watterson QB Dean Dixon (18) who had quite a night for himself. When he wasn't passing or slickly handing off he was running as shown here as he leaps over a Cat defender.

Franklin Heights vs Grove City

Aerial Bomb

IT WAS A 50-yard plus pass completion on this play for Reynoldsburg's Darryl Newby (84) as he caught Mike Cronin's bomb and outmaneuvered the Groveport defender Ed Bland (42).

Bexley vs Miami Trace

Raider Rampaging

TOUGH defensive play featured the Raider forward wall and this one found defensive back Dave Tinkham (12) coming up to stop the Groveport ball carrier after warding off a Cruiser blocker.

Just About Gone

ALMOST LOOSE then caught by a Groveport defender. Bill Simpson (48) is Reynoldsburg's Paul Malernee (36). The play was almost broken for a TD but the Cruiser defender made the catch in time.

Watterson vs Westerville

A Falcon Score

SOMEWHERE in this pile of players lies a football and a goaline with Franklin Heights getting the score and going on to defeat Grove City (white-clad) 9-7 to win the Southwestern School District grid title. It kept the Falcons' record unblemished.

Only 58 Yards To Go

WITH A STRONG look of determination, Bexley's John Bernaloch (46) begins his incredible 58 yard runback of a Miami Trace punt. Crisp blocking got Bernaloch past the Trace defenders. It was Bexley's first score of the night in their whitewash of Miami Trace.

Wohlert Finally Halted

STRONG STEVE WOHLERT (12) gave Watterson's rated team all it could handle last week even though Watterson won, 28-27. Here the keen quarterback is nailed by a swarming Eagle defense after he had grined 16 yards. Eagle defenders are Ray Kuss (28), Scott Bringardner (84), Mike McCloskey (24-on ground) and Tom Carshaden (62).

Shenandoah Replica On Display At COSI

A one-third size replica of the U. S. airship "Shenandoah" is now on exhibit in the Center of Science & Industry's new solar glass front display area through the courtesy of its owner, Lewis H. Gray, and the Columbus U.S. Navy Recruiting Office.

Builders of the airship were Joseph Kohot and Jack Duckworth, local model makers, associated with Rockwell International. The original "Shenandoah" first flew September 3, 1923 and was the first "made-in-USA" rigid ship to be inflated with non-flammable helium and the first to be moored to a floating mast.

On October 10, 1923 she was officially christened "Shenandoah" by the wife of Naval Secretary Edwin Denby at the Naval Air Station Lakehurst, New Jersey.

where a giant hanger had been completed. Her name in the Indian language means "Daughter of the Stars."

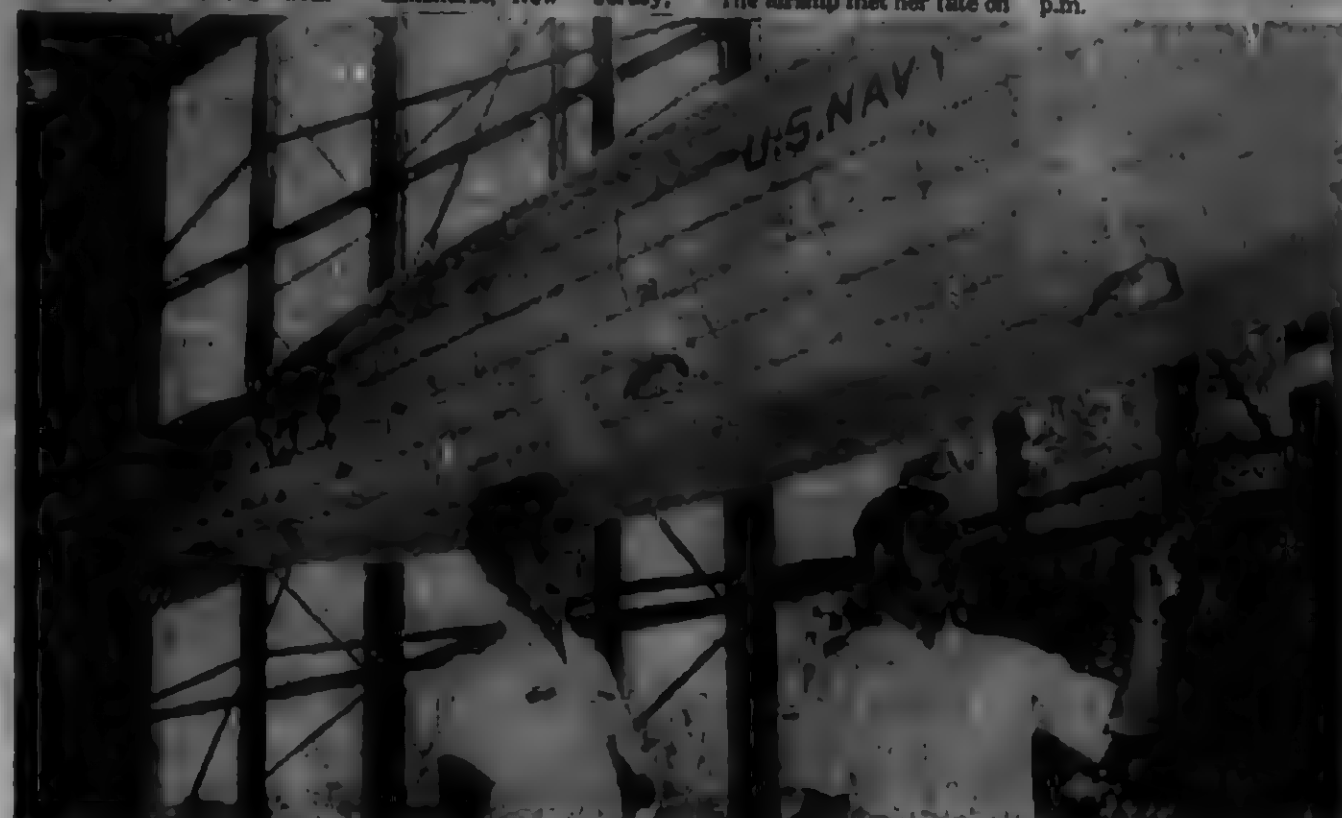

Of the "Shenandoah's" flights, her most spectacular was around the borders of the country in record time. Her official mission was to serve as a scout for the fleet, and she made several flights scouting and reporting on an imaginary enemy.

The airship met her fate on September 3, 1925 when a heavy squall line crushed the ship and 13 of the crew were lost.

The replica owned by Gray actually flew for various fairs and other events, but is now anchored to a permanent mooring at the Center.

COSI visiting hours are Monday thru Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sundays and holidays from 1 to 5:30 p.m.

LT. DUDLEY MORRIS, left, Columbus U.S. Navy Recruiting Office, is shown looking at a model of the airship U.S. Shenandoah on display at COSI, 200 East Broad St., with the owner Lewis H. Gray, Columbus. An audio visual tape on the history of the airship will be part of the exhibit. The model will be at the Center thru December. Gray and the Navy are co-sponsors of the exhibit.

Hilltop Buckeyes Win Title

The Hilltop Buckeyes won the N.H. Baseball Championship last Sunday at Whetstone Park, with a commanding 13-4 victory over the Linden Eagles.

The Buckeyes took the lead in the first inning on back to back extra base hits by Tim Kusan, Jerry Kappas, and Julian Kim. Four additional runs were added in the second inning and three more in the third. In the fourth inning the Hilltop bats were still noisy when nine runs were scored on eight hits. The Buckeyes' final hit came in the sixth inning when Tom Mowery hit a solo home run.

Linden scored their four runs in the second and third innings on singles by William Hines and William

The 5-10, 165 lb. linebacker lettered as a freshman at Defiance and his background includes little league football with the Westgate Hawks and Holly Hill Eagles.

He was all district in this high school area in 1972.

How To Use Crayfish

Most fishermen nowadays don't attempt to gather crayfish, but if you can get a dozen or so from your local bait dealer, they'll give you some mighty good fishing especially for catfish, largemouth and small bass.

These lobster like creatures are one of the most delicious fishes to eat. Crayfish live in lakes and streams hiding under rocks and they search for food at night in shallow water along the shoreline.

Most of your old time bait catchers hand pick crayfish but you can catch them with a seine or net and keep them alive in a box of damp moss. On long trips and hot days add an ice cube or two, or lay wet newspapers over them. Handle crayfish by the shell just behind the head between your thumb and forefinger. This will keep them from curling around and pinching you. Did you know you can eat crayfish, that's right, just drop them in boiling water, add salt and they'll turn red when done just like lobsters. You can eat the claws and tails and believe it or not, they taste like shrimp.

Scioto Trail Campground

There are three different camping areas located within the 9,400 acre forest, park complex, each serving a different type of camper.

At the upper end of Lake Caldwell, a 50 site Class "B" area provides good clean moderately developed facilities for family campers.

At opposite extreme, a walk-in primitive campground at the upper end of Stewart Lake can be reached only on foot with campers needing to carry everything including drinking water with them.

Another primitive area, either useful for families or groups, is located across S.R. 372 from the Stewart Lake picnic area near the site of a former creosote dipping plant.

The two small lakes provide fishing, but there is no beach. Boat launching is permitted and electric trolling motors may be used. The park forest is located on S.R. 372 east of U.S. 23 ten miles south of Chillicothe.

Camping Information

All Ohio State Park campgrounds are open year-round. Campsites are limited to occupancy by one car, bus, travel trailer, motor home, pick-up coach, and/or tent or tents having a separate or combined maximum floor space not in excess of 300 feet, or one house trailer of 30 feet or less in length, plus one vehicle for exclusive use in daily transportation and no more than ten persons.

No pets are permitted in the camping areas. Reservations for adult or youth group camping are mandatory and must be made 14 days in advance, with youth groups having priority. Group camping also permitted in primitive areas.

Reservations are not accepted for family campsites.

Class "A" Sites Generally have approved water under pressure, drinking fountains, waste water drains, flush toilets, laundry and shower facilities, numbered lots, picnic tables and fire rings or outdoor grill.

Class "B" Sites Generally have approved well or hydrant water, vault type latrines, waste water drains, either marked or unmarked lots, picnic tables and fire ring or outdoor grill.

Primitive Sites Have only pit-type latrines and waste containers.

Dan C. Armbruster, chief of the division of wildlife of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, has reported that 652 hunters had taken a total of 820 squirrels by noon Friday the first day of the 1973 squirrel hunting season. This is a decrease from the 1972 totals of 738 hunters and 785 squirrels.

Armbruster said the reports do not show the total number of squirrel hunters or the squirrels harvested, but do give a general indication of the number of hunters and of squirrel populations.

The squirrel hunting season continues through November 10 on private lands and through December 23 on public hunting areas. Hunting hours are daylight to dark, Monday through Saturday. There is no hunting on Sunday. The daily bag limit is four and the possession limit is eight.

Changes Announced Three management personnel changes in the Ohio Department of Natural Resources have been announced today by Director William B. Nye. Nye said the changes involve: Jack E. Miller, chief of the division of parks and recreation since January, 1972, who becomes assistant deputy director in the department's Office of Recreation and Resource Management.

Rodney E. Cooper, chief of the division of watercraft since June, 1971, who succeeds Miller.

Thomas A. Smith, Jr., assistant chief of the division of watercraft since August, 1971, who moves up to replace Cooper.

The changes, Nye said, will put Miller closer to the department's policy-making level, while providing increased administrative responsibilities for both Cooper and Smith.

Hunting and Fishing Governor John J. Gilligan has proclaimed September 22 as Hunting and Fishing Day in Ohio.

"Hunters and fishermen have always been in the forefront on the conservation movement," Gilligan said.

"Cooperation among sportsmen's clubs and state and federal agencies has resulted in many fine wildlife conservation programs."

"Through the years, Ohio sportsmen have paid for wildlife conservation efforts in the state through license fees and taxes paid on hunting and fishing equipment," the Governor said.

Planning Westgate Rededication

Center, 455 S. Westgate Ave., was built under the direction of the Columbus Recreation Commission at a cost of $300,000 derived from the 1960 Parks and Recreation Bond Issue. The council is trying to redo the program as it was done 10 years ago and is trying to have many of the same people who participated in the dedication come to rededication. (Photo by Kathy Devaney)

Washboard Player Needs Home

NOTE: Bobby is a quiet, congenial young man, who will be 12-years-old when his Oct. 7 birthday comes around. He is among the more than 150 children of Franklin County Children's Services who need the love and attention that a foster home could offer them. Following is Bobby's story.

Bobby's bright green eyes light up beneath his sun-bleached hair as he recalls his adventures at the Ohio State Fair.

In fact, those memories will stay with this 11-year-old lad for a long time because they represent some of the happier times he has had this year. He still remembers the good times he had at King's Island and Sea World last year, and can recall all the particulars about the carnival and the giant whale.

Bobby is one of the children who resides at Franklin Village—and he is waiting for a foster family that can provide even more of the good times he'll remember all of his life.

On his favorites list is softball and football—and he claims he even likes school this year! When extra reading time is available, cars and motorcycles are the main course of the day.

"And I'm gonna have a motorcycle someday, too," he says in just the right tone to make one believe that he's a boy to follow through on his ideas.

Radio listening means that hopefully Bobby will hear an Elvis Presley tune, along with a few from the Jackson 5 or the Osmond Brothers. And the unlikely combination of ham and candy are the best things anyone can put before him at the dinner table. "Well, maybe I could have the candy afterwards," he admits.

Little Bobby gets along well with adults and his own peers. And communication comes easy when he wants someone to share an experience or feeling with him.

Science is another favorite. ("Did you know that flies carry the worstest germs?" he inquires.) And so is washboard playing. That's right! Young Bobby made his talent debut in a Franklin Village jug band by playing the washboard. He was joined by other music-maker friends on kazooes, broomsticks, sandpaper and jugs.

"But I can't remember what song we played, it was so noisy," he laughs.

Bobby is a regular, fun-loving child who needs some attention and lots of love. A foster family willing to share this with Bobby is needed. He's got a lot of love in his little four foot 10 inch body.

"And I'm not really a pest," he says as he swings off in his favorite ball-bottoms.

Could you open your heart and your home to a foster child like Bobby? For more information on the foster care program of Franklin County Children's Services, call, write or visit the agency at 1951 Gantz Road, Grove City, Ohio 43122. Telephone 570-5441, Ext. 304.

New Schools To Be All-Electric

COLUMBUS—New guidelines call for future Columbus public school buildings to be all-electric. They will be designed to utilize electrical energy as a total energy source.

A local consulting engineering firm recommends new Columbus schools be designed for all-electric operation due to nationwide shortages of fuel oil and natural gas.

The firm, H.A. Williams and Associates of Columbus, was retained by the school system to study potential effects of the national energy crisis on the $89.5 million Columbus school construction program.

In a report to the school system's development department, the firm says additional fuel oil and natural gas are unavailable, propane is under a moratorium and proposed new school buildings will not be large enough to economically use coal.

"THIS LEAVES electricity as the current prime fuel source," the report states, and sets forth guidelines on selection of available fuel sources and energy conservation.

Dr. Howard Merriman, executive director of development, said architects and engineers will be asked to follow the guidelines in designing projects contained in the school building program.

ALL-ELECTRIC heating plants should also be installed in existing schools, the guidelines say, "if a total boiler replacement is required because of age or if a main boiler addition is proposed."

For addition and remodeling projects at existing schools, the building's current fuel source is to be retained. "If the addition requires only the addition of boiler sections."

The guidelines note the school system is now working on establishment of a "credit bank" with Columbia Gas Company that would allow for expanding gas heating plants in existing schools where new additions will require increased boiler capacity.

Under the arrangement, the school system's overall allotment of natural gas would remain the same, but consumption of some schools could be increased when reductions were made in the gas consumption of other school facilities.

MERRIMAN said present plans are to switch the heating plant in the Adult Education and School Services Center, 52 S. Starling St., to fuel oil if supplies become available. The heating plant, which now uses gas, is already equipped for fuel oil operation. Enough gas would be made available by the conversion, Merriman said, to meet the increased demands resulting from all addition and remodeling projects included in the first phase of the building program.

ALTERNATIVES ALSO SOUGHT

While recommending electricity as the fuel source for new schools and major heating plant projects in present schools, the energy report guidelines urge flexibility in the design of building program projects.

ARCHITECTS are advised to "keep up to date on the fuel market" in order that alternative fuel sources, such as propane, can be considered if they become available.

Boiler rooms being designed for all-electric installations should have the space...to install larger equipment and fuels in the future," the guidelines also recommend.

The engineering report also includes a series of recommendations for designing building program projects in a way that would maximize energy conservation.

THE REPORT notes that, in many cases, "This will mean increased first costs," but says the energy conservation measures would amount to a savings in building operating costs.

ENERGY CONSERVATION MEASURES

The recommendations include added wall and roof insulation, use of double-glazed glass and holding glass areas to a minimum. Following the recommendations, the report states, could cut by nearly one-half the amount of energy needed to heat a 20-classroom school wing.

ALSO RECOMMENDED are energy-recovery devices for certain exhaust air fans installed in schools and even low-usage shower heads that would cut the amount of hot water used by schools.

Other energy conservation measures should be studied and incorporated in building designs "whenever possible," the report urges.

It says fuel shortages "are here and will be for some time in the future," adding that fuel costs will rise, with some going up as much as 80 percent "in the next 18 months alone."

"THE COLUMBUS City School System...must join all segments of society in utilizing all sources of energy as seems most appropriate and, most of all, embark upon a program of optimum utilization," the report states.

Board Hears Report On Adult Education

COLUMBUS—The Board of Education was given a program report on the Metropolitan Home and Family Life Program during a committee-of-the-whole meeting Tuesday, Sept. 11.

The program, one of 17 operated by the school system's Department of Adult Education, is conducted in 11 centers in Columbus Metropolitan Housing projects and other low-income housing areas of the city.

DON E. THATCHER, executive director of adult education, said the program "provides instruction in areas of greatest benefit to homemakers and their families."

Thatcher said participants receive training in a variety of home and family skills, including sewing, reupholstering, furniture refinishing, home decorating and food preparation. Instruction is also offered in child rearing and consumer education, he added.

Ninety percent of the program's cost is financed by the State Department of Education's Division of Vocational Education, with the school system funding the remaining 10 percent.

THE PROGRAM, which served over 950 persons last year, was begun as a pilot project in 1961 for residents of the Lincoln Park Housing Project. Operation of the program was turned over to adult education when the department was established in 1968.

Thatcher said the program was dropped for about a year and a half when the State Department of Education discontinued funding in early 1968. But in August, 1969, he said, the school system received renewed funding for operation of the program in four centers.

Since then, Thatcher said, the program has served over 3,000 persons, the number of instructional centers has grown from four to the present 11, and the program's staff has been expanded from four teachers in 1968 to 24 teachers and 11 aides this year.

Besides Thatcher, Mrs. Alice Johnson, teacher on special assignment in charge of the program, took part in the report to the board.

squad and first aid training refresher course. The board approved the expenditure of $4.25 for books for the 25 men who will be taking the course. Instructors come from Kent State to teach the emergency victim care class, Richards said.

The board discussed the improvement of Inah Ave. at a special meeting in August. The street will be 26 feet wide and have curbs and gutters. Surface drainage will run south. Property owners will be assessed for the improvement.

After meeting at the fire house in New Rome for the summer the trustees will again meet at the maintenance building on Alkire Rd.

Expenditures Approved

West Columbus—The Franklin Township Trustees set the 1974 tax rates with little discussion at their Sept. 17 meeting. The greatest increase will come from the fire levy which voters increased in the last election. Estimated money to be received from the fire levy is $537,000; for the general fund $48,000; and for roads and bridges $63,200.

In other action the board accepted the bid from Outback Truck Corporation for a foam truck. Delivery of the crash-fire-rescue vehicle is scheduled for Sept. 1, 1974. Cost of the truck is $74,482.00.

At their last meeting the board accepted the bid Kaufman-Goodwin Medical Electronics Inc. of Columbus for two instruments for the heart unit. The ECG and defibrillator will cost $2,700.

Crucial Corner

Mental health is usually a concept that stirs mixed emotions. On the one hand, most people would affirm the desire for and the need of mental health. Yet, on the other hand, upon inquiring about mental health needs for a person or a community, the comment often occurs, "We don't have any mental health problems here." The contrast between need and identification seems curious, but quite understandable, especially when the meaning of "mental health" is investigated.

Traditionally, mental health has often meant mental illness, whether implied or inferred; and associated with bizarre behavior, irrational thinking, incoherent ramblings, craziness, weird life styles, destructiveness, harm and the macabre. Conversely, treatment of such situations has become associated with institutions surrounded by walls and fences, behind-the-door conversations with an expert, shock treatments and long term recovery spanning years, and usually viewed by the average individual with a certain sense of helplessness or avoidance.

In recent years, however, the focus has truly begun to change from illness to health, from a singular eye-view on treatment to include the increasingly concentrated focus on prevention. The latter view begins to see the importance of life in the home, schoolroom, street, marketplace; the search for relationships, meaning, family, productivity, creativity, better management of conflict, community development, etc.

As a result, the concern for better mental health is expanding from a particular to general interest. Also, a side benefit of this expansion of viewpoint takes the consideration of concerns off the primarily "problematic" approach, and moves to a balance of considering effective development and enrichment of human growth.

Mental health concerns, as a result, are beginning to embrace the major themes of effective growth and development of every individual; how to live an effective and satisfying life, find creative work, be a helpful parent, discover the fullness of intimacy, establish a supportive community atmosphere, assume responsibilities according to capacities to make contributions and learning to live with These nearby. Essentially, then, mental health concerns are found at the centers of these "crucial corners," and touch and affect each one of us at the significant levels of our own growing.

This column in the coming months will be an attempt to provide a format to further identify some of the "crucial corners," offer some practical alternatives for effective living, and respond to specific situations that present concerns facing individuals in the Hilltop-Lincoln community area. Obviously, the content of these articles cannot be guaranteed solutions, but can serve as a resource individuals can use for consideration.

It is also another way of making the staff of the Southwest Mental Health Center available for your utilization. We will attempt to answer questions and concerns as specifically as possible.

Why Contribute to Tom Moyer's Campaign?

Tom Moyer, President of the Columbus School Board is a candidate for reelection in November because he wants to continue to help lead the Columbus Public Schools.

Tom wants to make his record before the voters during the coming weeks and that will require money.

We believe it is desirable that public officeholders pay for their campaigns with contributions from many individuals. It is important to keep Tom Moyer's sense of fairness and open-mindedness on the Columbus Board of Education. Please send your contribution to Re-Elect Moyer Committee, 230 East Town Street, Columbus, Ohio 43215.

For you, who love good movies, here is something you won't want to miss. Beginning next month at Westland I, Graceland I, Carousal and College Theatres, The American Film Theatre will present superb new motion pictures, not simply taken from the stage, but transformed with the intimacy, power and scope only film possesses.

The American Film Theatre is a subscription series of eight glittering star-studded new movies, inspired by eight great plays of Broadway and London.

The movies represent a flock awards, including Oscars, Tonys, Pulitzers and even a Nobel Prize, which have been won by the plays and creative talent associated with the 1973-74 premier season of the American Film Theatre, the first "National Theatre-on-Film."

The lineup includes, "The Iceman Cometh," with Lee Marvin, "Rhinoceros," featuring Zero Mostel, "The Homecoming," winner of four Tony Awards. This is the first in the series in Columbus.

Also in the series are, "A Delicate Balance," with Katharine Hepburn, which won author Edward Albee the 1967 Pulitzer Prize. Another Tony Award Winner, "Luther," is included in the series. "Butley," with Alan Bates, "The Sisters," starring Laurence Olivier, and "Lost in the Stars," which is the only musical in the series.

Each movie will be shown only four times at the theatres mentioned, matinee and evenings on Monday and Tuesday. You may purchase a season book for the October to May series, or purchase individual tickets. Take my advice, these will sell like the proverbial hotcakes. Call Westland I, Graceland I, Carousal or College Theatre now.

Today is the beginning of the great musical "Hello Dolly," at the Country Dinner Playhouse. The well known Marion Marlowe plays the role of Dolly along with a top or not, the same is true of Jerry Jaxon. He also plays the keyboard and sings as well as Dave, what a performer.

If that's not enough, wait until Rodney Wall sings. What a voice. Rodney will also bowl you over with his guitar work.

Then, there is drummer Jimmy Spencer. He is one of the smoothest, speediest drummers I have heard in a long time. His technique will amaze you.

Last, but not least is Laurie Douglas. She is a cute as a bug in a rug. A real doll baby type. The kind you would like to take home to father, if you could trust him. Laurie sings, and I do mean sing! She owns a deep, throaty voice. Also, Laurie knows what to do with what she has. She is a "Pro" Performer. And, would you believe that Laurie holds her own as organ bassist.

Summerwine makes it all happen because of pure talent, professional showmanship and a variety of musical selections. They dish out plenty of good vocals, be it solo work two or three or four part harmonies, plus strong instrumentals. Add it all up, and the end result is a quintet that will keep you glued to your seat.

I promise you that Summerwine is one of the most entertaining and exciting groups Around Town this week. If they don't please you, I don't know what will.

They will be at the Rodeway Inn Motel, in the Stage Door Lounge this week and next. And, I have a feeling they will be held over, that's how good Summerwine is in my opinion.

Another smashing group is taking the crowds by storm at Marco Polo's Lounge. Their name is Jam Burger. What a name. It fits the group, as far as I'm concerned. Jam, meaning they jam, and burger, meaning they give you a little bit of everything. The group features Dave

Balloon Launch Launches Sunday School

Lincoln Village—A gigantic balloon launch will take place this Sunday morning, Sept. 30, at the Lincoln Baptist Church, 200 Old Village Rd. The launch will get under way at 9:30 a.m. on the church parking lot.

The balloon launch is part of the Lincoln Baptist Sunday School Rally Day. Each person that attends the opening of Sunday School will receive a helium filled balloon to which they attach a tag with their name and the church's address. On a given signal all the balloons are released simultaneously.

Last year 360 balloons were released on Rally Day. Tags were returned to the church from as far away as the state of Virginia. Each tag that is returned is placed on a map showing where it landed.

A small remembrance is sent to those who return the tags. Often a correspondence is struck up between the sender and the returner of the balloon.

This year Mrs. Betty Goudy, Sunday School superintendent, is expecting that at least 450 balloons will be launched. She extends a warm welcome to all those who wish to participate in this year's balloon launch.

There are Sunday School classes for all ages at Lincoln Baptist. Free bus transportation is provided to and from Sunday School and Church. All are welcome.

South vs West

Daylight Was Almost Reached

IT WAS almost daylight for South's QB Jerry Runicka (11) against West's tough Cowboys but quick pursuit by the Cowboys caught Runicka before he could get away. West was a bit to stall this South drive that was headed TD way and it meant the ball game.

GAMES OF THE WEEK

League Action At Peak

by SANDY SCHWARTZ

AREA high school football galloped into full league swing last Friday night with initial contests in the Ohio Capital Conference, the City League, the Metro League and the Mid-Eight League. And an interesting week it was.

Worthington, Gahanna and Westerville continued to convince people that they are the favorites of the OCC as they won their contests. Eastmoor, Walnut Ridge and West proved likewise in the City, and Bexley surprised a few people with its lacing of Groveport.

Worthington's John Madry dashed for 172 yards to pace the Cardinals to a 43-20 victory over Delaware. Madry collected 123 of those yards in the first quarter and he also collected four TD's in the course of the evening. Not bad John.

Westerville marked their OCC start with a 28-0 slugging of Westland. Steve Wohler highlighted that affair with his always dazzling runs, one a 56 yard punt return, and his overall team leadership. Senior running back Ron Lawson provided a pair of Cat Gahanna narrowly escaped upset-minded Mt. Vernon 13-7 and in the other OCC game Whitehall very timely picked up their first victory over Reynoldsburg 29-20. Rick Robinson, who is coming off of an injury, starred in that game as he scored three Whitehall TD's.

Ray Griffin, brother of the famed Ohio Stater Archie, helped Eastmoor open their City League South campaign with a 45-0 walloping of Mohawk. Griffin scored three times as he picked up 108 yards on 14 turns with the pigskin.

Walnut Ridge worked hard to score a fourth quarter TD and edge Marion Franklin 6-0. The Scots drove 61 yards in 11 plays to earn that final score with powerhouse runner Matt Guttman slamming the final two for the six pointer.

In another City South 1973 debut, Dave Koblenz's West High footballers nailed South

15-8. Tom Biggers scored a game winning TD with :49 seconds remaining in the game to provide that win. Biggers also scored the other West TD.

In City League North action Northland demolished East 22-0.

Bexley handed Groveport a 29-3 setback in a Mid-Eight League opener as it scored 23 of those points in the second half. John Bornoloh led the attack with a pair of TD's. QB Steve O'Brien helped the Lions pick up 188 total yards.

In a hard fought Metro-League opener Franklin Heights battled West Jefferson to a scoreless tie. Both teams failed at scoring opportunities, credit that to excellent defense throughout the game.

Hartley entered the win column with a 26-14 victory over Central in an area non-league affair, while Miami Trace manhandled Ready 27-0. Mark Disabato was instrumental in that Hartley win.

And Watterson, pride of the Catholic League, continued their central district football supremacy with a 17-0 blanking of Lancaster. Eagle quarterback Dean Dixon figured in all of the scoring as he passed four yards to Steve Yaroch for a score, 46 yards to tight end Scott Bringardner for six and he laced a 41 yard field goal and an extra point.

SOME KEY league matchups will highlight this week's Friday high school grid card.

Gahanna, winner of 16 straight games and defending Ohio Capital Conference Champions, will entertain a strong Westerville team in the highlight of the OCC. This game could go a way in deciding that league race.

In other OCC games Worthington plays host to Mt. Vernon, Westland travels to Reynoldsburg, and Delaware is at Whitehall.

City League South action finds Marion Franklin at West in the top fight there and South at Mohawk and Eastmoor at Central.

On the other side of Broad Street there is a gala affair when Mifflin, newest member of the City North risks its undefeated record against defending champs Northland. North is at Linden and East will host Brookhaven.

Bexley is at home to try to make it two straight in the Mid-Eight, they challenge Urbana and in the Metro League Franklin Heights will travel to Teays Valley.

In non-league action Walnut Ridge will be at Hartley to renew that east side rivalry and Watterson will face sports minded Cincinnati Elder in Cincinnati.

Saturday's schedule finds New Albany at Academy for a 2:00 afternoon fracas and St. Charles battling Dayton Kiser at 7:30 at Eastmoor High School.

YOU CAN disregard season records for this one, it makes no difference who is favored, you'd better get there early if you want a seat, you can bet that it'll be a real tight one and be sure not to leave until that final gun has sounded.

All of this refers to one and only one contest. That rugged, grudge-filled Otterbein College and Capital University football game.

That extravaganza will be held this Saturday night at 7:30 at the Otterbein gridiron.

These two cross town rivals square off with a tale dating back to 1927, yes that is when the first heyday was staged. 46 games have been held since '27, Capital holding the victory edge 25-20, one tie included.

This years matchup will not be a league contest but can't think we'll be sold short.

Cap comes in fresh from a 13-7 slapping of Marietta last Saturday. The Crusaders capitalized its second whirl with the ball as senior all-conference halfback Craig Snider scooted 14 yards to paydirt.

That scoring drive covered 85 yards in 12 plays, the highlight being an 11 yard pass from Bob Ginn to Watterson product Joe Duffy, that on a crucial fourth down play. Eastmoor grad Curt Moore also added valuable ground yardage on that drive.

Cap scored another TD late in the half to stretch the lead and then rested on defensive laurels to limit Marietta to one TD the second half.

Otterbein, meanwhile, lost a toughie to defending Ohio Conference champs Heidelberg 21-14. Saturday at the Bein, to even their season slate at 1-1.

Walnut Ridge graduate Jim

Bontadelli was instrumental in both of the Otters scores as ran one over from the eight and he passed to wide receiver Lelf Peterson for the other score.

But you can bet that it will all be on the line Saturday night, no holds barred, a good rugged football game.

Capital vs Marietta

CAPITAL'S TOM HILT caught this pass from Bob Ginn for a Crusader gain in Cap's 13-7 win over Marietta then was immediately smashed down by a Pioneer defender.

Westland vs Westerville

Two Directions Lead Nowhere

WESTLAND'S Cougars had some good moments in their 28-0 loss to Westerville in this OCC clash and this was one of the. The Cougar QB (no program available so he remains unidentified) headed past Cat defender Richard Shoot (62) then was brought down by defensive back Tim Betts, not shown in the photo.

South vs West

That's TD Land Down There

SOMEWHERE in this pile is a goaline and a ball in the hands of West's Tom Biggers who made it in from the five yard line for the Cowboys' first score against South. The score came shortly after a South fumble.

Capital vs Marietta

Duffey Gets Bombarded

CAPITAL'S JOE DUFFEY, a former Watterson star, was on the receiving end of several Bob Ginn passes and this was good for plenty of mileage and Joe hung onto the ball although he was sacked hard by the Pioneer defenders.

Westland vs Westerville

Cougars Are TD B Victims

THE WESTLAND Cougars made a good stand against Westerville's aggressive Cats on this series of downs but couldn't hold on the last one and that's when the Cats fall back.

Ron Lawson took the ball in for one of his two TD's in the 28-0 win over the Cougars in an OCC clash.

Stepping Out Tonight

WEST'S talented QB Mike Bowman had a good night against South in a Columbus city league tilt won by West 15-4. Here he virtually runs over South's Eddie Arnold on his way to a good gain. Other South players visible are Brian Hensten (54) and Chris Hughes (82).

Cardinalfish Can Out Fish

Here's a few tips that will save your equipment from getting damaged and help you catch more fish. You can pay a high price for carelessness before, during and after a fishing trip.

I know, I've paid the price and experienced some of these losses. Always carry an extra rod and reel, yours can be damaged and put out of action very easily. I loaned a friend a rod of mine one day and he fished with it in the rain.

When he was through using it he put it in a cloth bag and then in an aluminum case without wiping it dry. Days later when I opened it, you're right, making rust and mold.

ANOTHER mistake, never lay your rod and reel on the ground for any purpose. Someone just might step on it and if you get sand and gravel in your reel and leave it there it can ruin the mechanism. I forgot to check my reels on a recent trip to Hoover Dam. I had worn a tiny groove in the line guide. This mistake cost me a good size walleye when my line snapped. Simple examination of the reel before the trip could have made it a very successful one. Remember open doors and trunk lids have broken more rods than big fish.

Beaver Creek Campground

Located among the banks of Ohio's most scenic unspoiled rivers, this park is rich in both human and natural history. Ruins of the locks of abandoned Sandy and Beaver Canal are located throughout the park and a partially restored grist mill, located near the park office, is open to the public.

Reached from S.R. 7, eight miles northwest of East Liverpool, the park has a 40 site primitive area for family campers and a primitive campground for horsemen. There is excellent smallmouth bass fishing in Little Beaver Creek and fine hiking along the many trails that lace the area.

Flood Damage Claims Should Be Filed

Frank D. Ray, Director of the Columbus District Office of the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA), today warned Franklin County residents suffering damage to residential or business properties as a result of the June 19-26 flooding that the final date for submission of SBA disaster loan applications is Friday, September 28.

Ray said that loan applications are still available at SBA's Columbus ABANDONED township roads and farm lanes in the park and nearby rural roads provide ample opportunities for horseback riding. During the early spring and fall, canoeing and rafting is popular on the stream.

Coast Guard Recruiting Moves To New Location

Columbus U.S. Coast Guard recruiting is to take place from a new street-level location at 20 E. Long St., Columbus.

Recruiting headquarters were previously located on the 4th floor of the U.S. Post Office Building at 121 E. State St.

The new office location is an attempt to "Promote more community awareness," according to Bob Peterson, the recruiter in charge. "A lot of people don't know there's a Coast Guard Recruiting Office, or a Reserve Unit, in Columbus," he said. "Or else they think they must still put their name on a long waiting list in order to join." (During selective service years Coast Guard inductions could not keep pace with prospective enlistments.)

Forty-two men and women were recruited into the U.S. Coast Guard from the Columbus office last year—23 "Regulars" and 19 "Reserve."

Expanded office hours will also be employed to strengthen recruitment efforts of the all-volunteer service. In addition to weekday hours of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Coast Guard men and women from the Columbus Coast Guard Reserve Unit will staff the new office on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The new recruiting office address is as follows: the telephone number has Sub-Recruiting Office, 20 E. Long St., Columbus, Ohio 43215, 489-6788.

New Carpet Cleaning Method Available

A new carpet cleaning method is now available to East Columbus Reynoldsburg and Worthington residents.

It's called Steamex and is handled by Blackburn Rental, 888-8878, Blackburn Rental is located at 1244 Chesterton Lane in Desautel.

It looks somewhat like a vacuum cleaner with a squared off solution that moisture and cleanser mixture penetrate to fiber depth.

Steamex will suspension is lifted up and out of the carpet by simultaneous vacuum action.

There are no brushes to distort pile or scrub dirt in deeper. There is no after effect from over-sudsing.

The unit will fit into an auto trunk.

H & R Block Starts Second Tax School

H. & R. Block will offer another session of its Income Tax Course starting October 17, it was announced by Jerry Grise, city manager.

For nine weeks, students will study all areas of tax preparation and receive actual experience in preparing individual returns. Grise said, "The course is programmed to teach the student increasingly complex tax problems as study progresses.

BEE Incorporated

JOSEPH A. WOLFE, Safety Council Director for the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, signs incorporation papers for the Better Environment for Everyone Committee (BEE) while committee members witness the signing. BEE committee members include (left to right) Columbus Attorney Langdon Bell; Gail Turley, public relations director for the White Castle System; Wolfe; and Mrs. Dorothy Geiger, Ohio Environmental Council. The BEE Committee was organized in late 1972 to clean up and improve the Franklin County environment. The BEE Committee is now planning fall clean up drives and hopes to introduce an environmental education program to area schools in the late fall. Further information about the BEE committee may be obtained through the Center of Science and Industry, 224-6361.

4-H Achievement Night Has Special Meaning To Many

Over 400 Franklin Countyans received awards and recognition for their outstanding achievements in 4-H at the Annual County 4-H Achievement Night Program Wednesday at the Agricultural Administration Building Auditorium, Ohio State University.

Receiving commendation that evening for being selected as a recipient of the State 4-H Alumni Recognition Award was Jerry L. Kaltenbach of Hilliard. Jacqueline LaMuth, County 4-H Agent, explained that each year only four Ohioans—former 4-H'ers—may receive this award. It is made to those who have made a significant contribution to 4-H as a result of their affiliation with 4-H, past and present.

Kaltenbach, a former Franklin County 4-H'er, is president and general manager of Gooding Amusement Company, Inc. Franklin County Agricultural Society.

While serving as president of the Franklin County Agricultural Society, he helped reorganize the Junior Fair program so that it could provide opportunities and facilities to 4-H and other youth organizations.

He served as general manager of the Ohio State Fair for several years. Recently Kaltenbach was appointed to the Ohio 4-H Foundation Board of Directors.

Top 4-H member awards in citizenship were received by Connie Taylor (3608 Clearview Ave. Col.); Three C's and Mike Sherman (5600 Tuttle Rd. Dublin); Lucky Live Wires. They received the William Danforth "I DARE YOU" Award.

Outstanding leadership pins were presented to Sue Dye (6728 Cleveland Ave. Col.) Westerville Wranglers, Vicki Milliron (13 Brookmeadow Reynoldsburg) Golden Spurs, and Valerie Hoffman (2085 Wilson Rd. Col.) Pins and Pens.

Achievement Pins were awarded to Greg Seelenbinder (3404 Noe-Sixty Rd. Col.) Can-Win Livestock, Cindy Rigby (104 Roberts Rd. Hilliard) Buckeye Riders and Sherri Passmore (351 Hill Dr. Gahanna) New Albany Style.

Honor Club Awards were earned by the following clubs: Bakers' Dozen, Brice Busy Bees, Brown Belles, Buckeye Riders, Busy Needles, Can-Win Livestock, Crazy Covers, Double D's, Eastside Gals, Galloway Jolly Workers, Grove City Goodtimes, Horsemasters, Lucky Shamrocks, New Albany Style-ettes, Pathfinders, Snipping Scissors, Trail Dusters, and Westerville Wranglers. Honorable mentions went to Galloway Guys and Gals, Hilliard Make & Bake, Pins and Pens, and Town and Country.

The County representative to the Ohio Quarter Horse Congress announced that evening was Nancy Rhymard (4365 Langton Rd., Hilliard) Hunt and Rack.

Assisting Miss LaMuth with the presentation of the evening's awards and recognition were: Paul Syb; president County 4-H Extension Advisory Committee, Richard Rhymard; past chairman 4-H Horse Clubs Advisory Committee, Mike Sherman; 1973 President Junior Fair Board, Phil Nieman; horse judging team coach, Tom McNut; County Agricultural Agent, Mrs. Ralph Stacy; 4-H Expansion Coordinator.

Glicks Named Pace Setters

REPRESENTING HOUSE Beautiful, Mrs. Elizabeth Schick, promotion director, presents the "Pace Setter" store award to Glicks President Robert A. Glick, Executive Vice President William Glick and O.M. "Rich" Rueckel, manager of Glicks Furniture Showcase store. The Pace Setter Program, begun in 1970, consists of a carefully selected group of retail stores in the country. There are currently 58 stores in major areas participating in this program. Glicks is the only Pace Setter Store in Central Ohio. As a Pace Setter Store, Glicks will be tying in with House Beautiful's major decorating issues to develop innovative merchandising approaches to make it easier for customers to envision the latest in home furnishings in their homes. This is the second occasion this year that Glicks has received national recognition. In January the National Home Furnishings Association praised Glicks new Furniture Showcase Store in their national publication. Calling it "a store the customers asked for" they cited that the Showcase Store was the result of competent research. In addition to the New Showcase Store on Morse Road, Glicks presently has stores in Northern Lights, Town and Country and Great Western Shopping Centers, Glicks Warehouse Outlet, plus stores in Chillicothe and Newark. A new Showcase is planned for opening in early 1974 at 2223 S. Hamilton Rd.

IN MEMORIAM

To My Son "KIM"
Whom I Love
With All My Heart

I miss you so much son
Since you went away
My heart is broken
It's not been the same

It's hard to put in words
The way that I feel
Your going away
Seems so unreal

These things are so hard to understand
We live and we die
That is God's plan

You were such a fine son
The best there could be
God blessed us so much
Your father and me

My only hope
Is to be with you someday
To that place called paradise
God's highway

As I sit in my chair
You bought for me
I'll keep it forever
Till I meet with thee

What I wouldn't give
To see you walk in the door
And hear you say
Hi Mom!

On what memories I have of Curly blonde hair and beautiful eyes of blue
So very kind
And thoughtful too
No wonder I couldn't help loving you

It's almost time
For your birthday dear
I'll bake you a cake
As tho you are here

The tears just keep falling down my face
I can't help it son
You can't be replaced

I pray each day "Kim"
To Sweet Jesus above
To love and to hold you
And to give you my love

I'll say bye for awhile
And hope that it won't be long Till I see your smile

So dear Jesus,
I pray that you will do this for me
Just keep him so very close to me

I Love You

Project REAL Gives Student Work Experience

BY KATHY DEVANEY

Galloway—"Students who were going into a profession that required four to eight years of schooling didn't know what that profession required of them. They were going in blind," Ed Hantel, director of the REAL program said.

With Project REAL (Realistic Educational Approach to Learning) students in college preparation courses are given an opportunity to find out about a profession, he said.

There are 47 seniors at Westland High School participating in the program. For one hour of credit the student works seven hours a week; for two hours credit the students work 14 or more hours a week.

They are usually involved on a job nine months but may have a multitude of learning experiences if they aren't sure what field they want to enter, he said.

The students are not paid unless the employer insists because the idea of the program is to give students a learning experience in the community.

"WE DON'T want kids in the program just for the money," according to Richard Curtiss, senior guidance counselor.

"We don't want REAL to be a cop out, an easy credit course, which it could be. We are very careful in our screening in order to match the student with the professional," Hantel said.

Hantel said he depends on the counselors' evaluation of the student. The counselor talks with the students as well as checks their past academic and behavior record.

THE COMMUNITY has accepted the concept of the program and individuals have placed someone if they could, Hantel said. "Most of them say they wish they could have had such an experience when they were in school."

Placements aren't accidents. We know these students are good risks for the confidential jobs," Curtiss said.

The employer knows the placement of a student will cost him money for training, but he gets the money back through the student's work, he said.

The 47 students are involved in the following professions: 20 in education, 10 in law enforcement, two in TV-broadcast; two in restaurant management, one at the Spectator for journalism, one in commercial photography, three in law, one with a doctor, one in oral surgery, three in social work and three in research.

THE GIRL PLACED with Dr. Vincent Santangelo wants to be a doctor. The established vocational program is more a nursing experience so REAL has come at the right time for her to gain actual experience in her chosen profession, Curtiss said.

The girl is number two in her class and has had the right courses and has shown a commitment to become a doctor. Dr. Santangelo has her working in his clinic drawing blood, taking case histories, assisting with minor surgery in the office and even had her help with a birth at a hospital, Hantel said.

One student in research is working with a team at Battelle which is implanting artificial hearts in dogs.

Another student in research is part of Project CLEAR, which is studying the ecology of Lake Erie.

A STUDENT interested in social work is part of a team at Southwest Mental Health Center. The student sits in on board meetings as well as works with the Center staff.

Dr. Newell Yaple, an oral surgeon, wants the student with him to have more than just the experience of working with someone in oral surgery so he has asked an orthodontist and a general dentist to take the boy for three or four months each.

"The right reasons for being in the program are wanting to know something about the job, where they are going and about themselves. With that commitment they will do the job. The students are great and the placements are tremendous too," Hantel said.

Project REAL has been a team effort with Glenn Hoddy, he said. Next year 150 students are expected to participate.

Oct. 22 parents will meet with the students involved in the program to hear of their experiences.

Mt. Carmel Resource Center Open

BY KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus—The Mount Carmel Medical Center Library has received the first Heart Sounds Learning and Review Package in the U.S.

The device has tapes simulating the sounds of heart beats associated with various disorders. There are 20 in the series; the library now has four.

The tape also has a lecture and is attached to a box which has different lights for the first and second heartbeat.

"The student can hear the sound of the heart unobstructed by a fat chest or noise on a ward and then can go out to the patient and know what he is supposed to hear," according to Dr. Robert Schoene, chairman of the Library Learning Resources Committee.

THERE ARE also two audio-visual learning carrels equipped with a carousel slide projector and cassette tape deck.

The equipment will be used by the house staff of 60-65 interns and residents, and by the attending medical staff of approximately 500.

Another unusual piece of equipment is a video cassette unit with a color TV monitor. The library belongs to the Network for Continuing Medical Education and receives 60 minute cassette tape every two weeks.

There are three programs of varying lengths on the tape and they deal with contemporary topics such as acupuncture or arthritis.

THE NEW EQUIPMENT is part of a medical library started in 1940 under the direction of Mother Constantine.

"The library and the new audio-visual division includes complicated sophisticated equipment that has tremendous teaching value for interns and residents in training at Mt. Carmel Medical Center as well as post graduate study for attending physicians," Dr. Schoene said.

The system provides "multiple sensory bombardment" so that those who learn by hearing and those who learn by seeing benefit, he said.

The library committee which Dr. Schoene heads has a representative from each department or section in the hospital that works with Head Librarian Miss Jeanne Law in selecting pertinent material.

MISS LAW is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and has a Masters in Library and Information Sciences.

Outside the university this is the first hospital to have all this equipment in one place, Miss Law said.

The equipment was purchased by the Sisters of Holy Cross and the Women's Auxiliary, which recently gave the hospital a check for $5,000.

Other materials in the library—resource center have been purchased by attending physicians who have contributed money for books and periodicals for the center since 1940.

Readying For Rededication

Ten years ago Director Charles Moore had six time workers, two of whom spent some time at other center; and seven part time staffers. Poling expects to have a staff of 10-12.

new sophisticated electronic units used in training interns and residents. The units are also to be used for post graduate study of attending physicians.

A Man Named Peter

By Joan Seimer on Behalf of The Parishioners of St. Stephen's Church

Many years ago, there lived a man named Peter, who Christ chose to build and to be the head of His Church.

There was another man named Peter who was chosen to build and to be the head of St. Stephen the Martyr Catholic Church. This man named Peter was the Reverend Father Peter R. McEwan, pastor of St.

Stephen's, 4131 Cline Rd., who passed away suddenly

Saturday, Sept. 22, of an apparent heart attack.

It was Saturday, the day of the 23rd annual "Father Pete Open." Father Pete, as he was affectionately known, started his tournaments 23 years ago while he was assistant pastor of Cochocton Sacred Heart Parish to raise money for the needs of the parish. He brought this tournament with him, to his other parishes to help their needs by raising funds.

The golfer's were playing in the tournament at Bolton Golf Course this year. Father Pete was rushing around taking care of their needs and keeping the golf scores. The men after finishing their games of golf left for St.

Stephen's, where they were to have their dinner and receive their golfing awards.

This year the dinner Father Pete was having for the men was to be in St. Stephen's barn. The barn was on the property which Father acquired when he purchased the land for St. Stephen's. Father had a dream to finish the barn for the children of St. Stephen's.

It was to be a gymnasium and recreational building that they could use all year, especially in the winter months when it was hard for them to get outdoors and play. That was the hope for the success of the tournament this year.

The men were waiting for Father Pete to come to St. Stephen's with the trophies he was to bring when they were told that Father had been found dead in his car at Bolton Golf Course. How ironic that Father Pete should die on the day of his Father Pete Open.

Besides his love for God, his priesthood and his wonderful Scottish family, Father had two loves: his love for his people of St. Stephen's and the beautiful countryside land of St. Stephen's and his love of all sports, especially golf.

Looking back over the years (10) that he was at St. Stephen's, his people have many fond and unforgettable memories of Father Pete. One and memory was that of when he lost his rectory and all of his and his brother Andy's possessions in a terrible fire in November, 1968. His brother Andy who was a carpenter has been with Father for many years and worked hand in hand with Father on everything at St. Stephen's.

They worked for nearly two years on the rectory which was a small shack and they transformed it into a beautiful building only to see it destroyed by fire. Father's dog "Pluffy" who had just had pups, warned Father of the fire and perhaps saved his life. Although he burned himself trying to save them, to his regret two of the puppies perished in the fire.

We can never write in words all the happiness Father Pete brought to us at St. Stephen's. The little things we will never forget. Father worked for his people and with his people. Never afraid of hard work or of dirtying his hands.

People would see him driving a bulldozer, which he nicknamed "Stevie" after St. Stephen's, to clear the land.

And you could hear him laughing with the children at the things that small children would do, which would sometimes embarrass the parents during church. Father would laugh and put us at ease by reminding us that Jesus loved children and was always surrounded by them. He loved everyone and everything around him. In other words he had a great "love of life."

And on St. Patrick's Day when those of us that were Irish would get a little too big-headed, he would remind us, while smiling, that St.

Patrick originally came from Scotland. And on Sundays he would make going to Church a little bit more exciting by telling us stories. Stories of his family of which he was very proud—stories of his experiences or stories of life, all which had a moral that taught us more of life. Father Pete didn't ask much of life but he gave life.

Born May 17, 1917 in Glasgow, Scotland, the son of the late James and Jeanie (Reilly) McEwan, Father Peter R. McEwan was one of 13 children. He received elementary education at St. Aloysius School, and completed college training at St. Charles Preparatory School. He returned to Scotland in 1938. Father McEwan studied for the priesthood at St. Peter's Seminary, Bearsden, Scotland, and was ordained at St. Andrew Cathedral at Glasgow, Scotland June 22, 1943. He served as assistant pastor and chaplain in Glasgow before coming to the Columbus diocese.

He was assistant pastor at Our Lady of Victory Parish, Columbus, in 1946. He then served as assistant pastor at Sacred Heart Parish, Cochocton, Ohio (1950-1951), St. Peter's Parish, Chillicothe (1951-1954), Sacred Heart Parish, New Philadelphia, O. (1954-1956), then as pastor of St. Mary Parish, Shawnee, Ohio (1956-1963).

He was named pastor of the new to be built St. Stephen the Martyr Parish June 18, 1963.

He is survived by brother, Father James McEwan, Chaplain of Scioto Village, Father William McEwan, pastor of St. Peter Parish, Worthington, Thomas McEwan of Columbus, Andrew McEwan with whom he lived, Phillip McEwan, Garland, Texas; sisters, Sarah Hendry, Glasgow, Scotland; Mary Kennedy, Columbus; Bridget Miley, Columbus; Bertha Tupper, Grove City and many nieces and nephews.

The Most Reverend Edward J. Herrmann, Bishop of Columbus, was the principle celebrant, with the Fathers James and William McEwan officiating at the 10:30 a.m. Mass Sept. 23 Wednesday at St. Stephen the Martyr Catholic Church. Along with many other priests celebrating the Funeral Mass, was Father Hector Poulin, assistant pastor of St. Stephen's. Father Peter McEwan was buried in St. Joseph Cemetery, South High Street.

How to make a relaxed 10-minute long distance call.

It's really very easy. Just dial your call direct, without operator assistance, between 5 and 11 P.M. Sunday through Friday. (Rates are even lower after 11 P.M. and on weekends.) By doing that, you'll be able to relax and enjoy your call. Instead of worrying about the cost.

Because when you follow those guidelines, a 10-minute call to California won't cost more than $2.60 plus tax.

So dial your long distance calls the less expensive way and relax. Even if you talk for 10 minutes.

Ohio Bell

Golden Age News And Notes

"ONCE you retire from work, the most important thing is not to retire from life," says Julius Marcus, Director of the Senior Citizens' Placement Bureau of Franklin County. Located at 889 E. Broad Street, (Telephone: 252-6238) the Bureau has placed 315 people in gainful employment during its first year of existence.

This has generated a payroll of over $20,000 a week, or a million dollars a year to pour into the economy of the City.

Mr. Marcus estimates that there are more than 10,000 additional senior citizens in Franklin County he should be in contact with.

"THE BUREAU works as a complete entity and no one person can take credit for our accomplishments," he continues modestly. We have men here from the professions, from the world of science, all doing the interviewing and placements.

They all have in common their age past 65 and their enthusiasm. No one ever stops working. Our greatest satisfaction is in creating new full lives, and new goals for our clients. We give them something to look forward to, a new challenge, a feeling of energy and accomplishment. Every human being has talent and love—they must share them."

"If I were a Doctor for retired persons, I would give them all the same bottle of medicine and on the outside it would say just two words: "keep busy." Had a fellow come in here not long ago, he was retiring from the Presidency of a large company.

The company let him retain a desk in his old office. However, when he went in, there was no one who was his boss and he didn't even say good morning any more. He was being ignored and it was killing him."

"I told him, 'You are just like that retired old man in your house - it just shrinks there as a bit and to no purpose. If you were to build something on it, even if it were just a dog house, it would have a meaning and you would have a good feeling about it because you had created something. Well, he took me at my word.

He no longer hangs around his old office as a sort of leftover adjunct. He is busy. He has made a playground for all the neighborhood children, a place where they can use free time productively. He is a much much happier man."

ACCORDING to a new and startling study by the United States Census Bureau, only one in four of the citizens over 65 are still in the labor force. This compares with a total of nearly half of the citizens over 65 that were still in the labor force in 1950.

When you put this statistic alongside one produced recently by the Christian Science Monitor to the effect that living costs have plunged upward 10 percent in the past six months, you have an emerging picture of what faces the over 65 retiree. When the wages of the working man even cannot keep abreast of the rising tide of inflation, the prospects for retirement on fixed incomes are fraught with serious difficulties.

THINK working at the Senior Citizens' Placement Bureau feel that if there is a new rise in inflation, they will be flooded with requests for help. As of now, the maximum supplemental income allowed over social security payments is $2100 and is due to go up to $2400 January 1.

Some social security raises are planned to materialize in 1975 but as of now the final legislation is murky in its provisions and still pending.

"HERE WE sit," concluded Mr. Marcus, "with 14,000 people over 65 below the poverty level in Franklin County. We have the jobs and we must reach more people. They need our help. There are no limits for anyone. There is something for everybody. They just need their courage, the energy to look for new avenues, and love and security."

WITH MUDDY SHOES

THE LONGEST air pollution alert yet to be recorded, since Ohio started keeping track of dirty air, took place the first ten days of July along the Ohio River in eastern Ohio.

This was the first time documented proof could be gathered to show how the very young, the elderly and respiratory invalids are affected by the lack of clean air.

Environmentalists call that section of the river valley "acid alley" and look with great fear on the air pollution indexes from the industry and utility stacks strung along the waterway.

FOLLOWING from north to south, the Ohio Valley Hospital and St. John Hospital in Steubenville both showed a 25 per cent increase in respiratory disease patient admissions during and immediately after the ten-day alert.

The inhalation therapist at Martins Ferry Hospital reported 25 per cent increase in patients having breathing difficulty while the inhalation department of Bellaire City Hospital reported a 10 per cent increase in pulmonary problems.

Over on the western edge of Belmont County, upward from all the airborne garbage, Barnesville Hospital reported they had only two admitted during the first week of July with respiratory problems. The issue seems at this juncture be clear cut. Bad air is bad health.

On July 28th I went over to the State House to listen in on the passage of House Bill 206, being considered by the House of Representatives. The bill would call for the Public Utilities Commission to keep an eye on the energy resources of Ohio. To plan and in time of crisis, to allocate electricity, natural gas, heating oil and gasoline with the approval of the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

A STATE representative from Miami County jumped to his feet and for fifteen long minutes, berated the Ohio EPA, the PUCC and all living citizens who voiced a concern over the state of the environment. He blamed the energy shortage, the food shortage and the Cleveland Indians on environmentalists. He offered an amendment that would take the Ohio EPA out of the bill. It failed.

Back at my office I think that the man, being a lawyer, is also a petroleum wheeler-dealer. Naturally, he didn't want controls of any kind to be placed on the use of energy. He was quite willing to see the fuel intended for propelling automobiles go to drive barges instead.

1973 END AUGUST 1973: Write to your state senator and ask that he strengthen H.B. 206 when it gets on to the Ohio Senate and pass a strong bill. (If you don't know who your state senator is, call the contributor and ask for his name and address.)

Gospel Group Celebrates First Anniversary

The Capital City Gospel Music Association will celebrate its first anniversary with a parade of singing, Friday, Oct. 5, 7:30 p.m. at Hillcrest Baptist Church building, 2480 W. Broad.

Born Oct. 5, 1972 the COGMA was organized by 11 vocal musical ensembles. With concentration on only gospel music the groups range from male quartets, mixed quartets, women's trios and family groups. Their styles of singing are as varied as accompaniments, from full back up band of bass guitar, rhythm guitar, piano and drums to piano only to unaccompanied singing.

The purpose of this new organization is for fellowship, growth and ministry of gospel singing. Each quarter of the year they have given a community concert of music with five groups performing and held in the Hillcrest Baptist Church building on the Hilltop.

Plans are forming to move the location of singings to other parts of Columbus. Four other groups have joined during the year bringing membership in COGMA to 15 groups.

Attendance at the concerts this year has grown until 500 are expected to attend the First anniversary parade of singing.

Those performing are Capital City Boys, Gospelites, Harmonettes, Marcum Family, Hopson Singers, Heritage Quartet, Sunshine Trio, The Followers and The Hitch Family.

Other members of COGMA are Gospel Ambassadors, Soul Purpose, Cassidy Trio, Melodymen and Mt. Olive Quartet.

Name New Director To Council For Retarded Children

West Columbus—The Board of Directors of the Franklin County Council for Retarded Children, Inc., 129 E. State St., has named Charles E. Gerlach new Executive Director of the organization. Gerlach, who lives on Sullivan Avenue, will oversee the operations of the private, non-profit Council during a planned period of expansion and growth.

The new director views the Council as having recently completed a period of transition. "During the 1950's and early 1960's," he explained, "this organization was solely responsible for the planning and implementation of all educational programs for the trainable mentally retarded here in Franklin County. That was an extremely heavy burden for a private organization to bear."

This responsibility was lifted, however, in the late 1960's when members of the Council succeeded in passing two levies to support an extensive program to care for the basic needs of the retarded.

"We have completed a self-examination and have charted a course for the future."

That future will involve the Council in several major areas, according to Gerlach. "The Council's new role will be defined by its unique status as a private organization in a field largely funded through public channels. We will move actively to perform those functions which can best be done on the private level."

Those functions include support for legislative and litigative action on behalf of the retarded; advocacy of the rights of the retarded; organization of grass-roots, self-help groups for the families of the retarded; family counseling; and innovation of new types of programs to meet the constantly changing needs of retarded citizens in a complex and changing society.

Specific new programs include an information and referral service, to be operated in cooperation with the Community Information and Referral Service; an intensive public education program designed to eliminate some of the discrimination based ignorance that the mentally retarded meet in their social and economic lives.

The new director is a graduate of the Lutheran Theological Seminary of Capital University and attended graduate school at the Ohio State University. He has been a community worker with agencies in Columbus and a family counselor with an agency in Shreveport, La.

Hilltop Ohio Bell Office Has Open House

West Columbus—Ohio Bell will have an open house at its Hilltop telephone exchange building, 2615 W. Broad St., Wednesday, Oct. 3, Joseph Jester, district commercial manager for the phone company has announced.

"Everyone is invited to come in and explore the communications equipment and services in the building between 6:30 and 9 in the evening," he said.

Visitors will be able to watch calls moving through the local and long distance switching equipment housed in the building, and the new electronic switching system equipment will also be open for inspection.

Telephone people from the Columbus area will be on hand to guide visitors through the building and answer questions about its equipment.

Highlight of the open house will be a 1921 telephone line-installation truck which has been restored and outfitted with the telephone tools of that era.

The truck, built by White Motor Corp., has a wooden body. No nails or glue were used in its original construction and none have been used in the restoration. The vintage truck boasts kerosene running and tail lights and acetylene headlights. Its top speed is 12 miles an hour.

In addition, modern whistles and their equipment which Ohio Bell uses today in its day to day operations will be on display outside near the building.

A Picturephone model will also be exhibited. Jester noted, and all guests will be welcome to try the television telephone. Also to be seen at the open house will be a cable splicing operation.

"We're really looking forward to seeing everyone there," Jester said, "so we can show them how the telephone exchange serves them and our fine exhibits on the telephone and communications."

Hello Dolly Menu At Playhouse

THE CURRENT fare at the Country Dinner Playhouse is, "Hello Dolly." The production of "Dolly" is not up to the usual high powered offerings that I, and the rest of the people, are accustomed to at the Country Dinner Playhouse.

While it is one tremendous job to take a giant of a show, such as "Dolly," and produce it with a relatively small cast on a small, arena stage, I still feel that director John Bowab failed to bring out the best of "Hello Dolly." I have seen musicals, "Fiddler on the Roof," as one example, produced on a dinner theatre stage, that kept all of its charm, story and excitement. Dolly is condensed so much, that it is almost mutilated. In fact, it was difficult for me to realize that I was watching the musical, "Hello Dolly."

ANOTHER big let down for me, was the star, Marion Marlowe. Granted, she did receive a standing ovation. Marion cannot perform well without electronics. She needs microphones. Marion's voice just does not project. This is true in both her singing and speaking voice. There were minutes when Marion sounded like the Marion Marlowe in the recording is used to hearing. But, these were too few and far between. Thank goodness for some strong supporting cast members. Nancy Tompkins as Irene Melloy is the star as far as talent and ability is concerned. She, along with a couple of others, saves the show. Nancy has a beautiful voice, dances well and really comes across the lights in playing a convincing part. Another one, in the same category, is Joy Smotherman, playing the role of Minnie Fay. This is a small part, Joy handles it for everything it is worth, and practically steals the show. What a great voice.

The part of Cornelius Hackel is handled very well by Worth Howe. This young fellow knows comedy, has a good sense of timing and seemed at ease on stage.

These people, along with others, rather elaborate costumes and some pretty good choreography saved Marion Marlowe and the condensed book of "Hello Dolly."

GO SEE for yourself, I promise you the evening will not be a total loss. Yet, it will not be what most of you expect with a show like, "Hello Dolly" and Marion Marlowe.

Grog Shop

In Goodie

For a bang up evening, you must plan to visit the Grog Shop at Stouffer's University Inn. Be it Tuesday, which is the Oldies, But Goodies Night, or Sunday afternoon, when there is live entertainment, dancing and Grog or any night during the week.

HELPING to make it a sure fire place to go is the Mike Kamen Duo. Yep, it is a duo... But, when you walk in you had better look closely. If not, you will swear there is a trio or quartet on stage.

Mike Kamen is the leader, as well as the versatile performer. Mike plays organ, electric piano, guitar, banjo and harmonica. Often times, he plays two or three of these at once. No matter which instrument he handles, Mike handles them expertly. Mike plays the keyboard as a true master. His fingers literally fly across the banjo strings. When he picks up the guitar, Mike treats you to some mighty pretty chords and harmonies. His harmonica beautiful.

Now, if that's not enough, wait until you hear this fellow sing. Owning a deep voice, loaded with pretty tonal qualities, Mike could easily make it strictly as a vocalist. HELPING out is the other half of the duo, Terry Myer. What a nice, smooth drummer, who also adds some fine vocal harmony to the duo.

You name it and they will play it. Be it, contemporary, old standards, country and western or music from the 50's.

Stopping by on Tuesday, I was treated to the Grog Shop's Oldies, But Goodies Night. Not only does the Mike Kamen Duo play more music from this era, but two or three times an evening, personable Bill Sweetser takes over as M.C. and conducts twist and jitterbug dance contests. Prizes are awarded, and believe me, the crowds love it. And, don't think this special night doesn't draw the people, young and old, student, politician and folks from just about every walk of life.

the dance contests, Bill plays records from the 50's, with special feature dances. Such as where the girls choose their partner. Also, Bill has Name the Record contests, where you must name the song and the artist. Prizes also are awarded. As I said, the Tuesday's Oldies, But Goodies Night really packs them in.

On Sundays, Mike Kamen Duo provides music from 3 p.m. until 8 p.m. I can't think of a better way to have some fun on Sunday afternoon. It is a great place to meet people, that's for sure.

So, if you are between the ages of 18 and 80, stop in at the Grog Shop soon. Besides the tops in entertainment, there is always something special going on that proves to be a heap of fun. It all happens at the Grog Shop, Stouffer's University Inn.

Using the theme, "An Old Fashioned Love Song," the junior class, which is planning and sponsoring the dance, hopes to have a large turnout of students and alumni of Grove City High School.

Junior class President Barbara Carr commented, "This year we hope to see many returning alumni at the game and the dance, after all that's what the homecoming is for and with the alumni being admitted free to the dance, there's no reason not to come."

The junior class suggests for a fun-filled evening alumni come with old school mates and their mates to the game and finish up the evening by getting reacquainted at the dance. Alumni are asked to bring a class ring or diploma with them to the dance.

Price of the dance is couple, $3, and stag, $2.50. Dress is semi-formal.

Army Forming American Platoon

Drawing on the tradition of regional military units and the success of the recent hometown area platoons in N.H., Mich., Mass. and Tex. the U.S. Army has announced plans to form a national platoon.

Made up of two men from each state plus Puerto Rico and Guam, it will be called the American Infantry Platoon.

To be eligible for selection, applicants must be high school graduates or have equivalency diplomas, be without previous military service and meet the platoon's mental, physical and moral qualifications. Determination of the platoon's membership will be made by the recruiting districts commanders.

Besides being part of an innovative and prestigious unit platoon members will receive $307 a month starting pay less normal deductions, housing, meals, medical care and other Army benefits. Also available, if the requirements are met is a $2,500 cash enlistment bonus paid upon successful completion of basic and advanced individual training. Welcoming ceremonies are scheduled at Ft. Ord., Calif.

Veteran's Day, Oct. 22 the 104-man platoon will then attend basic training at Ft. Ord and serve its first tour of duty at Ft. Carson, Colo.

Ohio Dominican To Present Three Dramas This Year

West Columbus-Three dramatic forms, a classical French comedy, an absurd drama and a musical comedy will be included in the theatrical season at Ohio Dominican College, William Vensel, chairman of the Department of Speech and Theatre at the liberal arts college, announced.

Vensel explained that the combination of plays is one of potential, of contrast and particularly one of purpose. "It should prove to demonstrate the many fashions through which genius takes form," he said.

Representative works to be presented by Ohio Dominican students in Erskine Hall on the campus at 1216 Sunbury Rd., are: "The Doctor in Spite of Himself," Moliere's famous comedy, to be staged Oct. 11 through 14; "The Empire Builders," by Boris Vian, an example of absurd drama, Feb. 23 through 24; and "Carousel," Rogers and Hammerstein's heart-warming and optimistic musical, May 9 through 11. "We chose a Moliere work to mark the 400th anniversary of the master of French comedy," Vensel said. "The Doctor" is a fine example of Moliere's caustic wit and amazing ability at insult. Like all of his comedies, it stirred protest among the smart and powerful members of the Seventeenth Century Parisian society. Only King Louis XIV refused to oppose Moliere, and the King's interest and attitude helped Moliere and his troupe gain popularity.

All through Moliere's life - on stage or off - he detested and was a stern critic of the medical profession. "It was a final insult to that profession that he died in the presence of doctors - while he was on stage portraying an imagined sick man," Vensel commented.

In the '30's a bizarre and jarring new theatre form developed - so bizarre and so jarring that it was referred to as "Absurd Theatre." The name describes works which convey the sense that the human condition is essentially absurd and that this condition can only be presented adequately in works that are themselves absurd.

"The movement had its roots in the expressionistic and surrealistic movements in art," Vensel explained. "We chose a semi-serious drama to illustrate the absurd as our winter production."

Swinging to the heart-warming mood for spring, "Carousel," a favorite of theatre goers, will be presented by Ohio Dominican's Department of Speech and Theatre and its Department of Music.

Vensel said that subscriptions for the entire season of dramatics at Ohio Dominican may be obtained by phoning Ohio Dominican College, 263-2741, Ext. 61, or by writing the college's Department of Speech and Theatre, 1216 Sunbury Rd., Columbus.

"Old Blue" Swims On And On
Five years and 90 miles later "Old Blue", stocked by the Division of Wildlife in Mt. Gilead Reservoir, was caught near Darbyville in Big Darby Creek.

The large Flathead Catfish was tagged and released in Mt. Gilead Reservoir June 13, 1968. Apparently Old Blue, tag number 00105, escaped from Mt. Gilead Reservoir, swam down Whetstone Creek to Delaware Reservoir, continued south via the Olentangy River to the Scioto River. Continuing down the Scioto River to the confluence of Big Darby Creek with the river, he then swam up Big Darby Creek to the vicinity of Darbyville, where his travels were interrupted on September 20, 1973 by Circleville angler Russ Whaley.

Tom Waldon, State Game Protector residing in Pickaway County, was contacted by Russ and his fellow anglers Sam

Tomlinson and Ralph Hall. Thus began the search for "Old Blue's" original home some 90 miles away.

Stocked by the Division of Wildlife, "Old Blue" was sponsored by the Mt. Gilead J.C.'s who offered $25.00 to the person catching the fish. Charles Shealy, State Game Protector residing in Morrow County, confirms that the Mt. Gilead J.C.'s will award the prize money in the near future.

After having been temporarily detained, the 13 pound 4 ounce Mt. Gilead "Old Blue" was released unharmed in Hargus Lake. If he retains his rambling way who knows where he might be caught the next time.

Pymatuning Campground

The 3,580 acre reservoir on the western shores of which this park is located lies partly in Pennsylvania, with 438 Class "A" sites in a recently expanded area, the campground is the second largest in the state park system.

Within the controlled area, campers enjoy the convenience of modern wash-houses with showers and coin operated laundry facilities (included one heated for off season use) and restrooms, electrical hookups on 308 sites, a trailer waste disposal station, a commissary and a beach.

An interpretive program is directed by a seasonal naturalist during the summer. Fishing is excellent for bass and walleyes and there are boats for rent. Motors of up to 10 horsepower are permitted.

There are also 50 primitive sites for family campers near the northwest corner of the 4,919 acre park and there is a primitive area near park headquarters designated for use by organized groups. The main park area on the Ohio side is reached via Pymatuning Lake road from S.R. 85 or U.S. 322.

BOB TOMPOS, of Helen Hutchley's, Fishinger and Dublin Rd. Columbus, with his 3 lb. 17" largemouth bass caught recently at Hoover Reservoir. Bob was casting the silver Rebel Humpback deep diving lure next to weed beds on the east shore between the first and second bridge.

Hot Fishing In Cold Weather Can Be Fun

WITH COLD weather just ahead, many anglers are thinking about storing their fishing gear until next spring.

This could be the biggest mistake of the year, since much good fishing awaits those who are interested enough to learn some new methods, and acquire a little extra clothing.

Spooning for bass is one of the latest innovations in winter fishing. Yes new technique got its start in some of the Ozark lakes where ardent anglers grew tired of waiting around all winter for something to do.

THEY BEGAN experimenting and came up, with several methods of fishing spoons that take bass during the cold weather. And information reaching Mercury outboards' fishing department indicates that most of the bass taken during the cold months are big fish - often much larger than those caught during the rest of the year.

A favorite method of spooning is to locate old roadbeds and fence lines that are now flooded. These harbor big bass, and the idea is to cast beyond them, then retrieve over them with slow flutters of the spoon. Often, bass will hit just after the cast, while the spoon is falling.

It's difficult to feel the hit, say the Mercury experts, since the fish take the spoon very softly. Many first-time spoon fishermen don't realize they've had a strike. To be prepared for the light tap of the fish, you should lean into the cast with your body and follow the lure as it drops in the water. Hold a tight line, and be prepared to strike instantly.

ANOTHER winter spooning method calls for fishing alongside standing timber in lakes where the trees were flooded. Best places are trees along old creek beds or river channels. Drop the spoon straight down, stopping each five feet to jig it up and let it flutter back down. The fish will probably hit on the downward fall. When you find the correct level underwater, you can move from tree to tree, taking bass at each one.

Nature's Bountiful Crop Is Free Horn Of Plenty

LIFE TAKES on a new dimension during fall when nature's bountiful crop of wild fruits and nuts is ready for harvest. If you've never experienced the mouth-puckering taste of a green persimmon, or the tangy freshness of ripe wild grapes, there's a treat waiting for you on a nearby lake.

Although you should always seek permission to enter private lands, Mercury outboards' outdoor recreation department reminds us that most large reservoirs are ringed by a belt of public-owned land.

This is usually under control of the Corps of Engineers, but often administered by other federal or state agencies. The important thing is that these lands are available for your use, and they often contain an abundance of natural wild foods.

PERSIMMONS are one of nature's most desired fruits - if they are sweet. They're not ripe until after the first frost when the cold causes the starch content to ferment slightly and become sugar. Use your boat to look for persimmon trees in old fields, and along hills bordering flooded bottom lands.

Ripe persimmons can be eaten right from the tree. They are also used in bread and cake recipes, and they can be packed in sugar and saved for later use.

Hickory nuts, walnuts, beech nuts and pecans are common trees throughout much of the Midwest and East. Walnut, pecan, and beech nut trees prefer rich bottom lands, while hickory trees grow on the hills away from the water. Nuts can be removed from the hulls and stored in a refrigerator until needed for cookies, cakes and other dishes.

Wild grapes are also plentiful. Their vines can be spotted growing on other trees, and although the fruit is often high in the host tree, they're worth the effort to retrieve. Grapes are used for making jam and jelly, and some find the wild variety ideal for making wine.

ONE FINAL thought from the Mercury staff is to visit a bookstore or library and obtain copies of books describing wild trees and shrubs that grow in your part of the country.

Wish I'd Said THAT

"If you think time heals everything, try sitting it out in a doctor's office." Robert Schneider, Times Herald-Examiner, Chicago, Chicago.

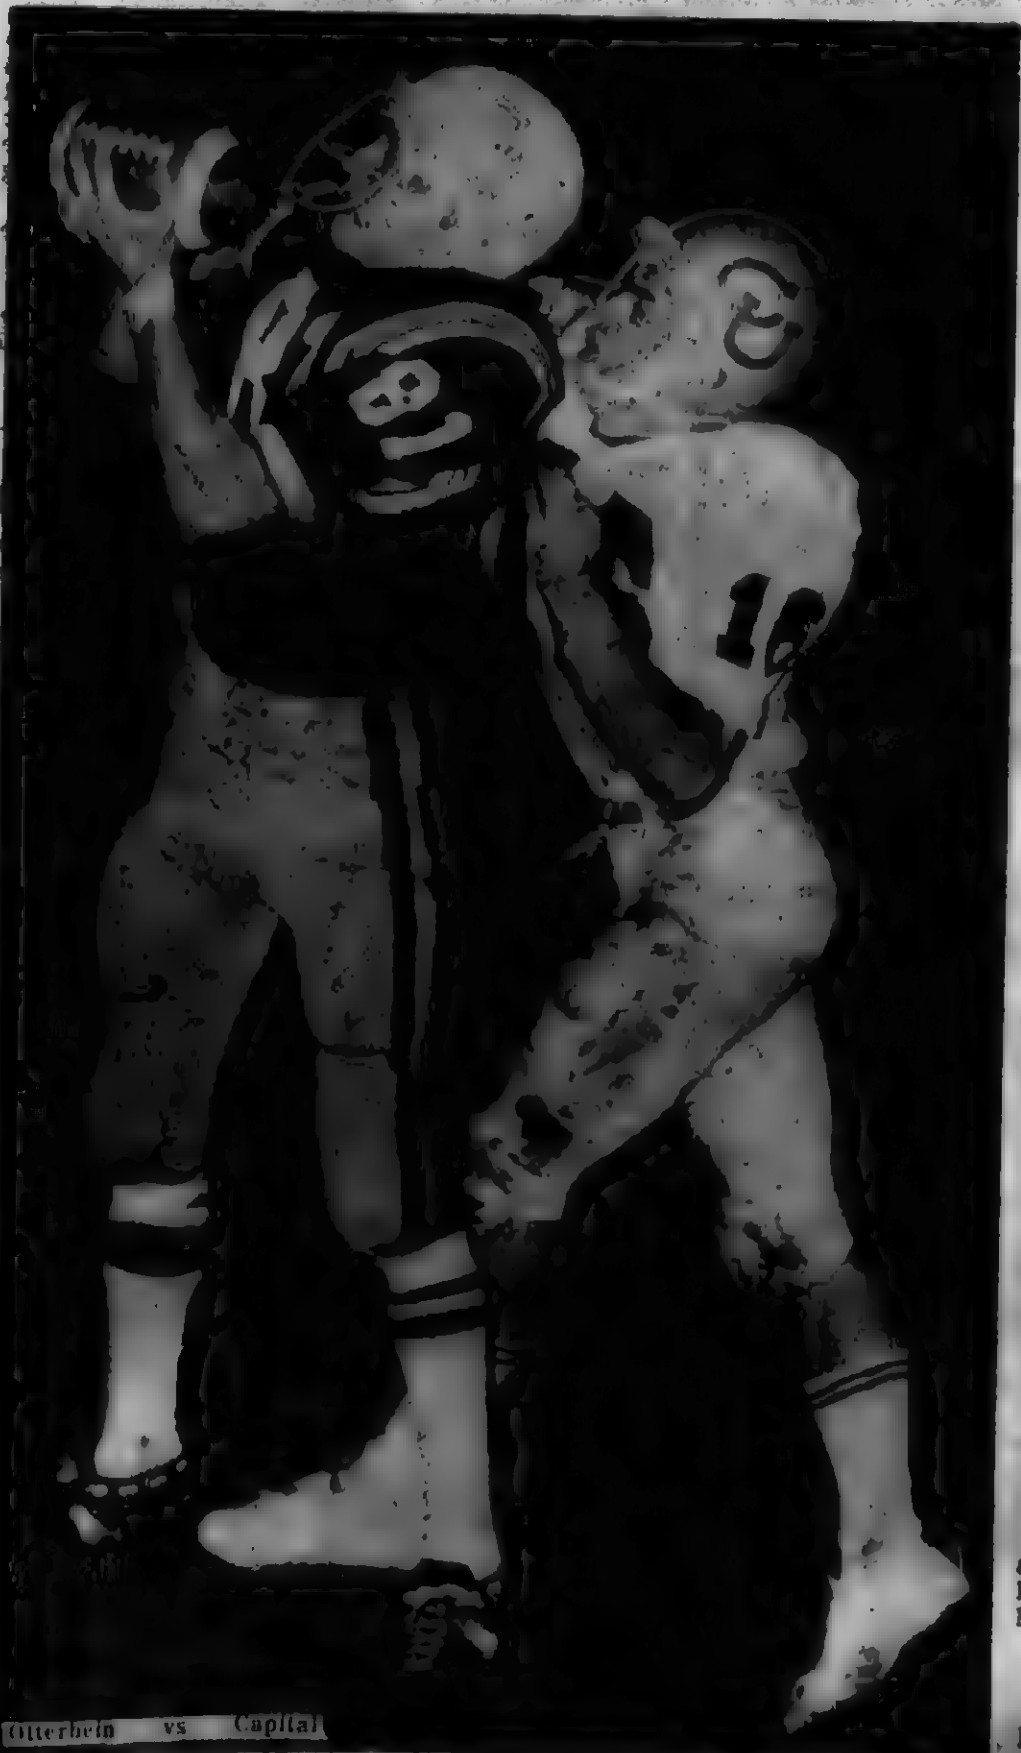

Worthington vs Mt. Vernon

IT WAS Madry, Madry and more Madry for Worthington as 'Jumpin' John gave Mt. Vernon more than the Yellow Jackets could handle in the Cards' 21-0 zip in the OCC finale. Here's John (26) just about ready to complete a 20 yard jaunt with six seconds left in the second period for the Cards' first score. Madry shook off three tacklers en route to the six-pointer.

Worthington vs Mt. Vernon

MT. VERNON'S defensive back Bill Hillier (12) was no match for Worthington's swifty John Madry (26) and Madry outstepped Hillier for a long gallop under the watchful eye of an official.

Otterbein vs Capital

Otterbein's Cardinals almost got a last minute touchdown against Capital's tough Crusaders when this Jim Boutadelli pass found its way into the hands of the Otters' Neil Mairs (48). Defender Larry Focht (16) almost got his hands on the ball but a shuffle step by Mairs outmaneuvered Focht to enable the swift receiver to get in catching position. The Crusaders won, 8-7.

Consistency Winning For Most League Leading Teams

By Sandy Schwartz

IT WAS quite a week this fourth week of schoolboy football, and some key league races are shaping up this early in the season.

Gahanna romped to its 17th straight win over a three year span to highlight the Ohio Capital Conference but Worthington and Whitehall also emerged victorious to keep the 3-0 OCC pace.

Eastmoor dumped Central to move atop the City League South and Northland dropped Millfin to shed light on another CL North crown there.

Gahanna's consistent Lions amassed 346 rushing yards, 185 by super back Greg Bates in dumping Westerville 20-7.

Whitehall edged Delaware 13-7 as Rick Robinson and Mark Hunter tallied six-pointers to pad the Ram win.

High stepping John Madry sprinted Worthington to its 21-0 conquest of Mt. Vernon. 2-back Gary Chambers collected a pair of TD's for Smokey Wren's men. And Reynoldsburg squared its OCC mark at 1-1 with a 28-21 thriller over Westland. Bob Beasley hauled in a seven yard strike from QB Mike Cronin with :14 seconds remaining in the game to give the Raiders their winning margin and first OCC win in four years.

IN THE 74th running of the City League, Eastmoor mangled Central 24-8 in the south division's spotlight game. Ray Griffin sparked in collecting three Warrior scores. Marion Franklin dropped West 15-7 in another CL contest, both Marion scores coming with less than six minutes remaining in the game.

Northland continued its dynasty of the north side of Broad Street with a 20-0 dubbing of newcomer Millfin. In another CL north game East lost a squaker to Brookhaven 8-7.

BEXLEY couldn't find the goal line in losing to Urbana 20 in a tough Mid-Eighter and Teays Valley slipped Franklin Heights 14-12 despite a valiant effort by Falcon running back Gary Jones in a Metro League tilt. Jones rolled up 282 rushing yards in 20 carries.

In area non-league action Catholic League members didn't fare real well as Walnut Ridge scuffed Hartley 19-6 and AAA smoothy Cincinnati Elder clobbered Watterson 25-0. New Albany edged Academy 13-6 and St. Charles kept its slate clean with a 21-12 win over Dayton Kiser.

Terry Logan and Matt Gutzman scored TD's for Walnut Ridge but Hartley found consolation in registering the first score of the year against the Scots. Ed Radcliff hauled in a 13 yard pass from Mike Disabato for that score, the drive was set up by a Paul Kogalmeyer interception.

Friday night's been action finds West at Mohawk, Central at Walnut Ridge and Eastmoor hosting Marion Franklin in the City South, while East travels to Millfin in the City North.

Scuffling in the OCC has Worthington going to Westerville for a key match-up there while Reynoldsburg is at Delaware and Gahanna first Westland. Whitehall will try to make it three straight, Mt. Vernon being the foe in the other OCC game.

Franklin Heights entertains Hamilton Township in a Metro tilt while Ron Shay's Watterson group will try to regroup at South.

DeSales is at Hartley in a Catholic League opener while Saturday's grid mena shows Hilliard at Bexley in the Mid-Eight. Academy is at Hawken and St. Charles goes to Newark Catholic in non-league combat.

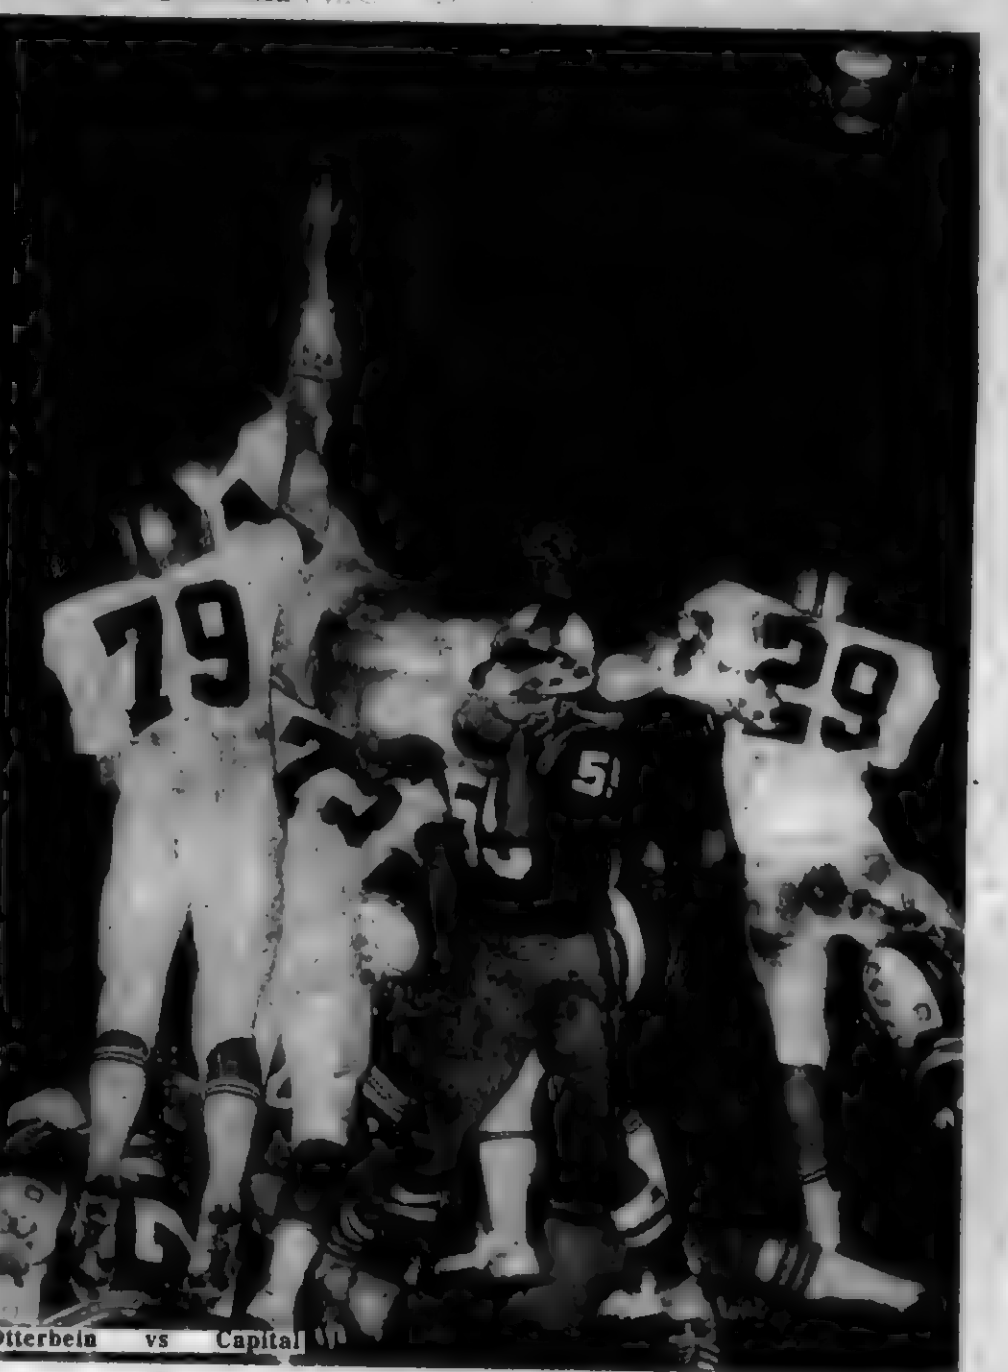

Westland vs Reynoldsburg

WESTLAND'S COUGARS got into scoring gear three times against Reynoldsburg's Raiders in an OCC clash at Reynoldsburg last week. It wasn't enough, however, and the Raiders eked out a last minute 28-21 win for their first OCC win in four years. An unidentified Cougar is hauled down here by a white-clad Raider.

West vs Marion Franklin

FUMBLITIS hurt West's chances against Marion Franklin in the Cowboys' homecoming tilt against MF at the Cowboy Inn. Here's a late fumble by a Cowboy back that led to the winning TD in a city league contest.

Otterbein vs Capital

A NOBLE EFFORT - even though for naught - was this try by Capital's defenders to attempt to block an Otterbein extra point that was successful and put the Otters up 7-6 in the second half. Notice the airborne Crusader who vaulted over the Otter defender in his attempt.

West vs Marion Franklin

WEST'S COWBOYS had plenty of defensive drive even though they lost to Marion-Franklin on the MF late quarter surge. Here a Cowboy lassoes an MF ball-carrier at the line of scrimmage.

Crusaders Edge Otterbein

CAPITAL slipped by Otterbein 8-7 last Saturday night in the old 'Nerve Bowl' played before a capacity crowd in Otterbein's Memorial Stadium.

Watterson grad Joe Duffy, a 6-1 sure handed senior tight end, booted an 18 yard field goal with only 41 seconds left in the game to give the Crusaders the rightful claim to small college champs of Franklin County.

Capital struck the scoreboard for a six-pointer with 7:30 left in the first half when all-conference running back Craig Snider bolted off tackle for two yards and the TD after most of the first half was spent chasing punts by both teams. The extra point try was wide giving the Capman a 6-0 lead.

But the Otters of Moe Agler were not to be deterred on this night of frustration, a night that saw the pigskin punt away 19 times, as they received the second half kickoff and immediately marched 63 yards in 14 plays for a TD and the lead.

Jim Cox scored that one from the one yard line and Joe Lopez added the point after to stake the Cardinals to a 7-6 lead. The crucial play in that drive was a one yard gain by premier running back Steve Scharr, a Grove City native, on a fourth and one situation.

Defense then once again took charge of the game until freshman Dave Truex returned an Otterbein punt 20 yards to the Card 25 yard line with 8:20 left in the game.

10 plays and four and one-half minutes later Duffy provided his heroics and Cape celebration on this 50th year of Crusader football. Incidentally, Duffy entered the scruffle as Capital's second string place-kicker. Duffy also collected 61 yards in three punts.

THIS satisfying victory gives Coach Gene Slaughter's gang a six game budge in this ancient 47 year old rivalry, and its 11th victory in 12 tries since Slaughter arrived on the Capital scene 12 years ago.

Ballot Language Question Needs A New Interpretation

By Ted Brew
Secretary of State
State of Ohio

WE AMERICANS are accustomed to thinking of our nation as a "democracy" and our form of government as "democratic". The U.S. Constitution, however, does not employ those terms, but rather guarantees to each state a "republican" form of government.

The difference is that in a republic the laws are made by representatives of the people, while in a true democracy the laws would be made directly by the people themselves.

OVER THE years changes have come about to make the "republican" more "democratic". Many political scientists view the history of American government as a process in which we have moved gradually from the indirect "republican" concept of government to grant a more direct voice to the people in many areas of government.

When the U.S. Constitution was first written, for example, the people had no direct voice in the election of either the U.S. Senators or the President of the United States, the former being elected by the state legislatures and the latter by an electoral college in no way chosen or bound by the electorate.

THE VOTERS had no voice in the nomination of candidates by political parties and no means by which to initiate legislation when their elected representatives failed to act or to block legislation that did not enjoy popular support.

Today, by contrast, U.S. Senators are elected directly by the people they represent. Time has all but destroyed the independence of the electoral college. In most states direct primaries have replaced unrepresentative systems of nominating party candidates for state and local office.

AND, PERHAPS more significant than any other change, many states now have adopted initiative and referendum procedures. All states but one require the approval of the voters before an amendment to the state constitution is adopted.

Ohio voters are now called upon to decide a wide variety of matters directly, including tax levies, bond issues, reorganization of school districts, zoning, local option on liquor sales, annexations, initiative and referendum questions and approval or rejection of constitutional amendments.

With increased rights, however, come increased responsibilities as well. When decisions are placed directly in the hands of the people, it is not enough that they elect knowledgeable and capable officials. They must also inform themselves about the issues to be voted upon and be able to understand the questions presented.

IN THE early days of this century, it was not difficult for the voters to understand ballot issues. The questions were usually brief and simply worded. No reference was made to the specific sections of the law or of the constitution affected by the vote.

The voter could readily determine the precise question on which he was voting and could vote "yes" or "no" without wondering if he had in reality voted the opposite of his true intent.

THE COURTS in those early years were quite permissive on the matter of ballot language. A 1922 decision, followed as precedent for many years, said that "the printed matter upon the ballot was not designed to perform the function of informing the voters of the text and effect of the permissive on the matter of ballot language."

A 1922 decision, followed as precedent for many years, said that "the printed matter upon the ballot was not designed to perform the function of informing the voters of the text and effect of the propositions, but was chiefly for purposes of identification."

The proposal had to be clearly stated, but the law did not require the ballot to contain a text, and a court could not strike an issue from the ballot because of objections to the language unless it would "mislead, deceive or defraud the voters."

Thus, whether the ballot question was prescribed by the legislature or by the Secretary of State, it could be simply stated in layman's terms without fear that a court would set it aside and require a more formal and legalistic question.

NO ISSUE would be ordered off the ballot so long as "a careful analysis of the printed matter shows the substance of such provision."

That has all changed in the last twenty years. In 1963 the Ohio General Assembly enacted Section 3506.06 of the Revised Code. This law required the questions and issues on the ballot to contain either a full text or a condensed text of the proposal to be voted upon.

The ballot question for local issues is prescribed by the Board of Elections, while the Secretary of State or the legislature prepares the question in the case of state wide issues and constitutional amendments.

In either case the question prescribed may be (and often has been) set aside by court order if the court feels that it fails to "properly describe the question, issue or amendment."

THIS SOMETIMES occurs too late for the question to be rephrased in time for the printing of new ballots or for absent voters to vote on the rephrased question. In 1972, for example, the question of authorizing a state lottery was scheduled to be voted on at the May 2 election.

April 28 the Ohio Supreme Court ruled the issue off the ballot, giving among its reasons that the law required a condensed text that is "complete, and from which no essential part is omitted." Thus the law prevents the Secretary of State or local Board of Elections from wording ballot questions simply, and phrasing must often sound like a bill before the legislature in order to meet with court approval.

THE TIME has come to change that law and go back to the kind of simplified ballot language used earlier in the century.

There are three reasons why I have become convinced of the necessity of this change:

1. Proposed amendments are being placed on the ballot in greater numbers than ever before. In the fifty years between 1913 and 1963, thirty-two amendments were approved by the voters. Since 1963 twenty-eight more have approved. Thus in the last ten years our constitution has seen almost as many amendments as in the previous fifty years. Seven such amendments were on the ballot last May; at least four more will be submitted this November. 2. Amendments are getting more complex. For example, the full text of the Vietnam bonus amendment, Issue 4 on this November's ballot, is ten pages long. No condensed text can really convey all that is contained in the amendment, yet a full text is obviously impossible. A general question referring to the most basic features in the only realistic approach.

3. The voters are expressing frustration and anger over the phrasing of ballot questions. Some become cynical, even suggesting that the questions are deliberately designed to confuse them. Wide-spread confusion over the effect of a "yes" or "no" vote on the state income tax amendment last fall is cited as an example.

FLEXIBILITY in phrasing ballot language must be restored. To accomplish that he has recommended to the Ohio Constitutional Revision Commission an amendment creating a Commission to prescribe the ballot language. The requirement for a full or condensed text would be repealed. The ballot would have to properly describe the substance of the proposed amendment, but the rule would be restored that ballot language can not be set aside by the courts unless it misleads the voters. "No long as the question allows a full and fair expression of the voters' choice, they should not be disenfranchised."

PASSAGE of his proposal will have several advantages:

First, it would allow the ballot to be phrased in a manner that can be readily understood by the voters, rather than merely in a manner acceptable to the courts.

Second, it will reduce voters' cynicism about the whole process of voting on such issues.

Third, it will get us back to the principle that on matters as basic as this, the choice of the people can be fully expressed only if they understand the question.

If the trend of making government more "democratic" means anything at all, it is that the voice of the people must be heard in a clear way.

Columbus Tech Has New Women's Program

Columbus Technical Institute's Division of Continuing Education is offering a unique program designed to assist women explore career opportunities that have traditionally been closed to them, as well as the educational opportunities necessary for the support of these careers.

The course provides: career information, testing, individual counseling, contact with professionals, opportunities for self-analysis, employment trends, and educational information and guidance.

A special feature of the course will be a "non-traditional lab" experience where the enrollees will have the opportunity to investigate careers that women have traditionally not been encouraged to enter, such as electronics, business data processing, aviation, mechanical drafting, and many others. Students will be exposed to equipment utilized both on the job, as well as that required for educational training.

Instructors for the course are D. Carol A. Fough, Director, Division of Continuing Education, Columbus Tech and Dr. Louise Vetter, Research Specialist, The Center for Vocational and Technical Education, The Ohio State University.

The class will meet Tuesday evenings, 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. from October 9 through November 27.

The cost including counseling, testing and lab fees is $35. Class enrollment is limited to 25 students.

For further information or registration contact Columbus Tech, Division of Continuing Education, 221-6743, extension 244.

Environment is limited. You can help ensure a better environment for future generations by encouraging your local schools to include environmental education in their curriculum. The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency argues you to help make environmental improvement a way of life for Ohio's youth.

TIRED DRIVING

Avoid steady driving around your usual bedtime, warns your Ohio Department of Highway Safety. Your alertness level drops sharply about the time you're accustomed to going to bed. The driver's seat should be vacated any time eyes start burning, eyelids become heavy, or gaze begins to freeze on the scene ahead.

NUTRITION A LA CARTE

People ask me about cholesterol and I tell them research has a long way to go before we will have answers. The question of whether the foods we eat have anything to do with heart disease has not been settled. Meantime, drastic changes in your diet should not be made without medical advice.

Medical research has shown that the great majority of babies in excellent or good condition at birth are babies of mothers whose diets were excellent or good. The mothers, too, enjoyed better health and had fewer complications in pregnancy. This is why mothers-to-be should know and practice good nutrition.

Is there an overweight or obese teenager in your house? At Harvard they found that such youngsters gain weight not because they eat more than their thinner schoolmates, but because they exercise less. They were physically inactive 90% of the time and often ate less food.

Phosphorus in your diet — and milk is a good source — is needed in every living cell. It's involved in chemical interactions with proteins, fats, and carbohydrates in giving the body energy.

essential materials for growth and repair. Phosphorus is available in many foods, especially those rich in protein or calcium.

For dental health eat a balanced diet and choose snacks that won't stick to your teeth. Good snacks include milk, fresh fruits, crisp celery or carrot sticks, lettuce or cabbage. Also, unsweetened ready-to-eat cereal. You can make a delightful snack by dipping celery ends into softened cream cheese dip.

A little safety along with good meals for your family is a good idea. The kitchen can be one of the most dangerous places in the house if we aren't careful. Keep hot things out of the reach of children. Also, poisons, sharp utensils, electric appliances, and especially hot grease and cooking oils.

Anemia is a frequent problem among women of childbearing age and teen-age girls. It is caused by inadequate iron reserves in the body and not enough iron in the diet. Good food sources of iron include whole grain and enriched cereal products, eggs, meat and poultry, apricots, prunes, and raisins.

DRIVER ERROR

Driver error is a major factor in driving accidents says the Ohio Department of Highway Safety. Most frequently this involves driving too fast for road conditions. Factors which can result in driver error are physical, mental and emotional deficiencies; intoxication; fatigue; lack of knowledge; and skill; inattention and recklessness. Steer clear of driver error.

Nutrients Wasted

The open burning of leaves pollutes the air and wastes valuable soil nutrients. As an alternative, the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency urges you to start a compost heap of leaves and other organic matter. For a free "Composting" booklet write: Public Interest Center, Ohio EPA, P.O. Box 1040, Columbus 43216.

BY MISSY FRAZIER AND DANIELA DAVIES

Homecoming

This week is "Homecoming Week" at Westland High School. The main theme is "The Homecoming". Each class will have a float telling what homecoming means to them. The floats will be seen in the homecoming parade Oct. 4 in Lincoln Village.

The homecoming game against Gahanna Oct. 5 is where the new queen will be crowned. She will then reign at the dance in her honor Oct. 6 from 8-12:00 p.m.

Candidates for the court are: Marcia Minton, Leslie Whitel, and Starlett Montague, freshmen; Sue Burns, Annette Jackson and Mary Sue Cavin, sophomores; and Becky Turner, Sue Hidy and Mary Tweed, juniors.

The candidates for queen are Kathy Coblenz, Kim Coe, Shelly Dye, Patty Edwards, Christy Grimm, Carol Hidy, Connie Hudson, Kim Metcalf, Sally Vano and Mary Wernham.

Patrons Busy
The Music Patrons were busy this summer raising money to support the needs of the Music Department. They shared a booth with the Athletic Boosters at the Columbus art show, and then again at the Franklin County Fair.

They are now in the middle of their annual candy sale. The money from these and other projects will go to buy new choir robes, band uniforms and other supplies for the music department.

Athletic Boosters
Once again the Westland Athletic Boosters kick off a busy fund raising season. Carl Walker, president, has announced that the membership drive is in full swing with tickets still at $1. The boosters are still selling reserved seat tickets to the football games and also ask friends of Westland to save coupons and box tops from Colgate-Palmolive Pet Products.

Twirler
Head Majorette and Feature Twirler Paula Forester, currently Circleville Pumpkin Queen, placed first in several baton twirling contests this summer and fourth in the state at the Ohio State Fair. The other majorettes are Brenda Ater, Candy Fisher, Debbie Gets and Donna Howard.

Cheerleaders
The varsity cheerleaders won trophies at camp this summer for stunts, cheers and pom-pom routines. The varsity cheerleaders are Patty Edwards, Kim Metcalf, Connie Hudson, Kathy O'Ryan, Charlotte Jones and Mary Wiseman. Charlotte Jones was chosen "Frettiest Cheerleader" out of 200 girls.

The junior varsity cheerleaders competed at the Ohio State University Cheerleading Camp winning first place in pom-pom routines and second place in cheers.

The freshman cheerleaders are Debbie Glassburn, Amy Grimm, Teresa Vance, Gail Stagg, Gayle Miller and Gretchen Woods.

WCVO Has Semi Annual Tea

West Columbus-Josephinum Pontifical College, 7625 N. High St., Worthington, will be host to the semi-annual tea sponsored by WCVO Auxiliary on Thursday, Oct. 18 at 1 p.m.

According to Mrs. Frida Koch, chairman of the steering committee, a large turn-out of the Auxiliary membership is expected to celebrate WCVO radio's first anniversary and introduce the new officers.

WCVO-FM radio, 104.9mc., began its first day of broadcasting as a non-profit, non-denominational religious station on October 13, 1972, at 4400 Reynoldsburg-New Albany Rd., New Albany.

Reservations for the tea may be made before October 15 by calling 886-8171.

Queen Candidates

WEST COLUMBUS-Sandy Neff, Wanda Cline and Diane D'Elia are candidates for Homecoming Queen at Franklin Heights High School. The Club keeps its administrative and projects budgets and books separate so the return of all the money to the community is assured. This year the aged as well as youth will benefit from the sale. Receives Grant

West Columbus—The Southwest Community Mental Health and Rehabilitation Center has received an award of $625,475 from the National Institute of Mental Health. The grant provides for federal funding of the Center's program for one year beginning Oct. 1, 1973. Continuation of the grant for an additional seven year period is contingent upon congressional action in the next year.

The federal funds will be utilized to continue the Southwest Center's existing programs and to provide some expansion. Center officials hope to establish short-term acute-care inpatient services as a part of the expansion. Additional staffing in some facilities such as the London office in Madison County will be possible.

Continuation of the Center's 24-hour crisis service at 854 W. Town St. in Columbus is assured. The Center's existing out-patient, day treatment and consultation and community education services will continue.

The receipt of federal funds is the result of a three year process which began in March of 1971 in Southwest Franklin County under sponsorship of the Franklin County Mental Health and Rehabilitation Board.

The Southwest Mental Health Center was established the following year and funded by county tax levy funds, state matching money, contributions and fees. The center submitted the application for funding to the federal government in March of 1972.

The Center provides counseling and community services to residents of Franklin and Madison Counties. Services are located on Columbus' Near West Side at 854 W. Town St.; the Hilltop-Lincoln Village area at 3081 Sullivan Ave.; in Grove City at 3331 N. Broadway; and in Madison County at 15 E. High St. in London.

Dealing With Book, Mustache

Controversial Issues Come Before Board

by Sandy Schwartz
Special Staff Writer

Columbus—The Columbus School Board's Oct. 2 regular meeting heard a plea from an irate parent to "establish some kind of guidelines for reading materials in the schools."

Mrs. Glenn Payne, 561 Elizabeth Ave., said that her 15 year old daughter, a sophomore at Eastmoor High School, was instructed to buy the book entitled "The Learning Tree," written by Gordon Parks. Mrs. Payne objects to the content of the book claiming it is filthy and that it "makes fun of God."

Mrs. Payne is a member of AWARE (American Women Already Richly Endowed). She stated that she had kept her daughter home from school for two days and that she would continue to do so until action was taken.

"In the meantime, until something is done, I will keep her at home, but I can not keep her home indefinitely," she added.

BOARD PRESIDENT Thomas Moyer said that immediate action would be taken on the issue. Moyer asked Mrs. Marie Castleman, chairman of the Curriculum Committee and board member, "to study the underlying issue of this book and report whether it should be used in the school system."

But Mrs. Payne did say, "I feel that the board is basically helpful and I'm confident that something will be done."

The Board was also informed of another controversial issue. That being a Notice of Summons from the United States District Court. The Summons concerns Duane D. Gibson.

Gibson is the Walnut Ridge student who was ordered to shave his mustache and when he didn't comply was suspended from school for five days. Gibson was ultimately told to shave or attend another school and a suit has been filed.

IT WAS disclosed that the Board's community relations committee is looking for public reaction to a proposal by board member Paul Langdon. The proposal is that public participation (the times when a citizen may directly address the board) be moved from regular business meetings to committee-of-the-whole sessions.

Mrs. Marilyn Redden, community relations committee chairman, added that the committee will consider whether to recommend Langdon's proposal to the full board at the meeting Thursday, Oct. 18, at 10:00 a.m. in the board room of the Education Center, 370 E. State St.

In other action the board appointed Brubaker-Brandt, Incorporated architect of the new Southeast Career-Vocational Center which will be built somewhere in the southeast area of the city. A definite site has not yet been picked.

Also awarded was a $349,650 contract with Ed Ross Construction Company for general contracting and electrical work and a $75,570 contract with Eastern Piping Corporation for plumbing.

Contracts for remodeling and addition work at Sullivan Elementary School are $184,201 with Dawson-Evans Construction, $46,600 with Armstrong Electric, $34,600 with J.A. Croson Plumbing and Heating, and $25,725 with R.H. Reeb Plumbing and Piping.

DR. WALTON WALKER suggested that the board keep the public aware of the rising costs on construction sites and that the board make sure the money is available to honor these contracts.

The school board also considered a proposal to finance membership to the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for the Columbus High Schools.

The annual membership is currently being paid by each school through money earned by sales, dances and other school sponsored activities. The board requires each school to be a member in good standing with the association.

Also included in this proposal would be the payment by the board of expenses for each high school that was being evaluated for the North Central Association. These expenses would be regulated by the Superintendent and would not exceed $600. Generally two schools undergo an evaluation each year.

Also included in the board meeting were personnel changes, raises and appointments.

In Decision Making Process

Development Department Wants Citizens Involved

BY KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus—New members of the city's Development Department, including Director Jack Huddle, want citizens to become involved in the decision making process for development affecting their area of the city.

"If we get the right people involved we can formulate a process so that when change comes it is good to every neighborhood. Then we won't have decay," Huddle said at a meeting at Westgate Recreation Center sponsored by the United Community Council.

He said Columbus has a population of 600,000 and is 160 square miles.

"We have change every day—we have to deal with farm land being annexed, a community becoming a transient rather than permanent community, an old community becoming young, etc. Change always happens and we have to develop a process to deal with it."

PAUL BALDRIDGE, administrator of the Planning Division, outlined the four phases of the community planning process.

Phase I is community inventory and analysis through which basic information or data on the community is gathered. This would include the physical characteristics, economics, land use, transportation, community facilities, etc.

Phase II involves goal formulation in which what the community can become is evaluated.

Phase III is planning and policy formulation which establish priorities and developmental and operational possibilities for land use, transportation, community services, etc.

THE FOURTH phase is implementation. Baldrige said this is a continuous process and Columbus is involved in all phases but primarily in Phase I.

"Professionals should provide the people with information so they can make the decisions. We tend to forget that if it weren't for people we wouldn't need to plan. We should be oriented to the people and the communities where the people are," he said.

Carl Wilhelm, assistant to the administrator of the Planning Division, is also concerned with citizen involvement.

"WE HAVE resubmitted a request to City Council to get revenue sharing funds for the Community Planning Process," Wilhelm said.

"We are also working on having teams of planners for five management areas in the city. Each area would have a team available to it. They would go out to the community to discuss what the citizens want and then go back to the city and integrate those community concerns into the overall possibilities of the city."

"This takes time and a commitment by the city and the citizens. It would be an access point for people to city government," he said.

TOM KIPP, Capital Improvements Program (CIP) budget coordinator, explained that the CIP budget has very little money which is flexible—which can be moved from project to project.

"Bonds are sold for specific projects and they can only be used for those projects. The $5 license tag fee must go for the street system."

"The proposed budget for 1974-75 will be available this month and the Development Commission will hold hearings in late November to hear comments and complaints. Council will hold hearings in January. No project can be taken out of the budget unless it is amended," Kipp said.

Ferne Zetty asked what had happened to the zoning report which she had helped with from 1964-66.

"Why has it been held in committee after thousands of dollars and four years were spent working on it?" she asked.

Huddle said the report had been given to him. It would be passed at one time. He said Columbus has a good zoning code which has had 40 pieces of legislation passed to amend and change it.

Oct. 16, Tuesday, speakers at Westgate Recreation at 7:15 p.m. will be City Ombudsman Nadine Henninger and Community Relations Director Odella Welch Williams.

Commend Westland Students

Galloway - Letters of Commendation honoring them for their high performance on the 1972 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test - National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT - NMQST) have been awarded to two students at Westland High School. Principal Fred Slater has announced.

Those named Commended students are Sandy Harbour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Harbour, 390 Deerfield Rd., and Kyle Dover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dover, 271 Carilla Lane.

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC) has named 30,000 Commended students throughout the United States. These students are among the upper two percent of those who are expected to graduate from high school in 1974.

Edward C. Smith, president of NMSC, said: "The high standing of Commended students in the Merit Program competition shows that they have great promise of continued success in college. Although Commended students advance no further in the Merit Scholarship competition, their attainment in this nationwide program deserves public recognition."

To increase their scholarship opportunities Commended students' names are reported to the colleges they named as their first and second choices when they took the PSAT - NMQST in October, 1972. The reports include home addresses, test scores and anticipated college major and career intentions of the Commended students.

Mr. Slyh became a member of the Hilltop Business Association in 1967 and was elected president in 1961. He was appointed executive secretary in 1965 upon the resignation of "Doc" Campbell and served in that capacity until his death.

He was also a member of First Community Church, the Hilltop Kiwanis Club, Shrine, and Goodale Lodge 373 of the Sea Gull Rite of the Masons.

Mr. Slyh was the retired owner of Slyh Roofing and Siding, Inc.

Ellis To Appoint Energy Committee

School Superintendent Dr. John Ellis announced Monday, October 1, that he will appoint a committee of school personnel to look into ways the school system can deal with possible fuel shortages that may occur as early as this winter.

Ellis noted predictions of fuel supplies are "notoriously inaccurate," but said he believes there is a chance that this winter or next the school system "will get the word that emergency procedures should be instituted."

The superintendent named Charles Hall, assistant superintendent for business affairs, to head the committee and said members will include central office and building administrators, teachers, custodians, secretaries and maintenance personnel.

"I WOULD like to see people from every area of the school system on the committee because their total cooperation will be needed if we are to deal with the problem correctly," Ellis said.

He said he will ask the committee to come up with recommendations for dealing with emergency fuel shortages and ways the schools can "discharge their responsibilities to be providers of accurate information that will help people make judgements about what they do."

Specific tasks that Ellis said the committee will have include attempting to predict trouble spots if fuel shortages occur, determining possible fuel conservation methods that will not interfere with the school program and establishing a system of tentative priorities for operating schools if fuel becomes unavailable.

He said the committee will also be asked to consider whether in-service training for teachers, principals and custodians can contribute to fuel savings, develop appropriate curriculum materials that can help students understand the energy crisis and consider what communications systems can be developed to ensure cooperation and understanding.

THE SUPERINTENDENT pointed out that the committee's work will be confined to current school operations and will not extend to recommending energy systems for new school construction. He noted that a consulting engineering firm has been retained to deal with the energy crisis as it relates to the school building program.

Ellis said the basic function of the committee he will appoint "is to study the fuel situation and recommend options or practices that will enable us to make the best of what could be a difficult situation."

The committee will be asked to submit its first report December 1, Ellis said.

Libraries Appeal 1974 Budget

Grove City-The Franklin County Budget Commission, consisting of Arch Warren, Auditor, George Smith, Prosecutor, and Philip Goldalager, past Treasurer, determined the needs of the county libraries in this area as follows:

Columbus $2,922,577.40;
Grove City 295,233;
TOTAL $4,885,151.08

The Grandview Heights Public Library's request for 1974 totaled $599,865.18. The Grandview Heights Board of Trustees passed a resolution stating that they were dissatisfied with the action of the Budget Commission of Franklin County and that library filed an appeal with the Ohio Board of Tax Appeals to contest the allocation of the funds.

One day after the Grandview Heights Public Library Board filed their appeal, an appeal was filed by the Grove City Public Library Board.

Within two hours after the filing by the local library, a third appeal was filed by the Columbus Public Library. Grove City had requested $580,530.15 and received $295,233. The Columbus Public Library requested $3,301,635.92 and received $2,922,577.40.

This appeal is the third appeal that has taken place in Franklin County in the last five years.

In 1969 the Grove City Library received 5 per cent of the total amount distributed to the county of $197,000. That 5 per cent of the total was the same approximate percentage that the Grove City Library had received for eight straight years.

Previous to that, the Grove City Library had only received 3 per cent or 3 per cent for a seven year period.

The 1970 appeal resulted in the Grove City Library receiving 9 per cent of the county total or $371,138.56 for 1970, according to Donald V. Schuler, director of libraries.

The Columbus Public Library appealed in 1971 but the result for the Grove City Public Library was that it still received 9 per cent of the total 1971 distribution or $380,915.06.

Grove City is receiving $424,185 in 1973.

Crucial Corner

FACING STRESS

The most pressing periods of stress occur in the midst of a crisis, whereby normal routines and behavior patterns are broken. A person, then, experiences the stretch and crunch of adjustments and change. By definition, a crisis will end, and usually lasts from six to eight weeks.

During this time a great deal of strain is experienced, along with a sense of disorientation, until resolutions begin to emerge or get worked out. Some of the most obvious examples of crisis may be a change in geographical location, loss of a loved one, change in job or promotion in present job, divorce or separation, additional person coming to live with the family unit, physical illness or injury, drastic change in financial situation or change in stage of life. Any of these situations requires major adjustments, bring on a period of emotional strain and as a result produce stress.

At the outset of a crisis, a person remarks naturally, "I just don't know what is happening to me." So one of the first steps in facing a crisis is to become aware of the effect that subsequent changes have on you, and the stages one goes through in making an adjustment.

Emotional reactions, expectations, relationships, eating and sleeping habits, values, bodily functions, thought patterns, attitudes and energy level all become altered for no apparent reason. Symbolically, it is as if one's own inner house has temporarily been invaded by strangers and the "at home" feeling seems gone, and often is expressed as "I don't know what is wrong with me lately," or "I just don't seem myself." A crisis, whether major or minor, produces a period of disorientation.

Adaptation to a crisis or change usually results in calling upon what has worked for us before, as if nature returns and repeats previous experiences in order to face the present.

If applicable, then facing the crisis and making necessary adjustments happen more readily and seem natural. If not applicable, the stress becomes accentuated by frustration and it becomes necessary to look for new alternatives with which to face our present situation. Crisis situations, as a result, confront us with learning situations and a certain amount of struggle.

At this juncture, a person usually goes through five stages in confronting a crisis: avoidance, anger, promising, depression and finally acceptance. The latter stage usually is experienced creatively and energy seems to be more readily at one's disposal. Confidence begins to return and a more hopeful attitude towards outcome begins to dawn.

The following may be some helpful hints of self-management during a period of crisis that will assist maximizing your strengths during periods of stress:

1. Maintain regular eating habits
 2. Maintain sufficient sleep or rest periods.
 3. Do not neglect physical exercise of some sort
 4. Concentrate your mental focus on the present, and avoid raising up concerns that happened in the past, or that have no bearing on what you are dealing with presently.
 5. Talk things over with someone that you trust or have confidence in.
 6. Concentrate your efforts on those immediate steps towards resolving the crisis, and not so much on all the things that could go wrong.
 7. Avoid energy wasting activities, as a way of forgetting your troubles.
 8. Continue participating in some activity which is enjoyable to you.

West Freeway Opens Today

West Columbus—A section of the West Freeway (I-70) in Columbus from Grandview Avenue to Wilson Road was opened at 9:30 a.m., today with Governor John V. Gilligan presiding. County, city, state and federal officials along with state legislators were present to assist the Governor at the ribbon cutting ceremony held on the westbound lanes of the north leg of I-70, just west of Grandview Avenue.

This section of the Freeway (I-70) is part of a $17,625,000 project that begins just east of the I-270 Outerbelt and continues to Grandview Avenue on the north leg and to near the Penn Central Railroad tracks on the south leg. The contractor on the project was B.G. Davis of Dayton. Work started on this section of the West Freeway (I-70) on October 26, 1970.

Westbound traffic entering the West Freeway at Grandview Avenue and Wilson Road will be allowed to proceed on the westbound lanes, giving those motorists full use of the I-270 interchange and also access to the existing I-70 west of the Outerbelt. I-70 eastbound traffic approaching the I-270 interchange will continue to be detoured around the Outerbelt.

Construction is underway on the three remaining sections of I-70 through Columbus. When completed the south leg of I-70 will tie into the Mound Street Interchange. After completion of the south leg of the West Freeway (I-70), construction will begin on the north leg that will tie the section that currently ends at Grandview Avenue into the Spring-Sandusky Interchange.

The scheduled completion date for the south leg that ties into the Mound Street Interchange is Oct. 31, 1978. It is probable that the West Freeway (I-70) will open to West Broad Street sometime in November. Complete General Construction, Co., of Columbus, the contractor for the section of the south leg of the West Freeway between the Penn Central Railroad and West Broad Street, reports that progress indicates the work will be substantially complete to allow traffic to safely use the facility by Thanksgiving. When this section opens, eastbound traffic will be allowed to enter the West Freeway at the I-70, I-270 interchange.

The Brookshire United Methodist Church plans to lay the cornerstone for the new Education Building and Fellowship Hall Sunday, Oct. 14.

Laymen under the direction of Eugene Huffer, 2720 Howey Rd., will be in charge of the 11:30 a.m. Worship Hour.

The Cornerstone Service will begin at 11:15 a.m. with the entire Church and Church School participating.

Three important dates in the history of the congregation are engraved in the white marble cornerstone.

The founding date—1840, marks the earliest beginnings at the home of Jacob Grubb on Green Street. This congregation later became known as the Gift Street Methodist Church. Following the westward growth of the city of Columbus, the Church relocated on South Hague Avenue at Briggs Road.

The second date, 1988, marks the construction of the present Sanctuary under the new name of Brookshire.

The current year, 1977, indicates the construction of the Education Building and Fellowship Hall addition which crowns the location for worship, fellowship and service.

Following the cornerstone service, the congregation will go to Darby Creek Park for the annual church picnic.

Heritage Lounge

Has Stylists

A TRIO that is highly entertaining is currently in the Heritage Lounge of the new Holiday Inn-OSU. Tapestry. The place is the outfit. Their decorative musical designs and stylings definitely suit their name. Lee Davison is the leader who plays drums and sings. This fellow has a rich, mellow voice that you don't mind listening to the entire evening. His vocal approach is highly individualized. Lee's drumming techniques prove to be rather tasty, also. This fellow is not a pounder. He sits down strong rhythms, yet keeping in mind, that drums should not over shadow the rest of the trio.

Organist Pete Cana is a solid musician who seems to know meaning of good music. Playing the electric organ with good chord structures, a knowledge of harmonics, Pete lets his audience know that he is there to entertain them, and not blast their ear drums. Pete also comes across with some nice vocal work.

To me, the real star of the trio is Lee's wife, Angel. No pun, but this gal sings like an Angel. Her vocal qualities are superb. It has a rich, full flavor, along with a nice, easy style. No matter what Angel sings, a dreamy ballad, or a live wire up tempo number, her tasty tonal qualities are always right on target.

In fact, the entire trio are right on target with their selections, stylings and overall general approach. They play a wide variety of material. Even when they serve up some of the contemporary songs, they keep their style in a rather soft, standard vein. You'll be surprised how pretty some of the new songs can be when played properly. Tapestry do play them properly, that's for sure.

THEY HAVE combined a beautiful blend of contemporary material with a rather standard approach. This, along with their talent, adds up to a pleasing, relaxing trio. The name is Tapestry is the name of this new Holiday Inn-OSU, which by the way, will have their grand opening this weekend. And, don't forget the Deepoes, another fine trio, playing the oldies that are great for dancing or easy listening in the University Lounge on the eleventh floor. You see, you go one place, and can spend an entire evening hearing a variety of top entertainment. See you there this weekend.

when there was not one poorly prepared dish. But, it's the truth.

The King Crab Legs were simply yummy. I bet I ate a half of dozen of these. The Lobster Tails also were a taste treat that I won't forget. They were cooked in beer and cloves. Really a different, unique flavor. Speaking of flavor, wait until you bite into the Broiled Trout. Out of this world. The same is true for the better dipped Cod. What a beautiful experience.

Other items on the Seafood Buffet included deep fried clams, shrimp, salmon loaf and halibut steak. All of these items were just as tempting as the ones I mentioned.

Before you settle down to all of these wonderfully prepared sea foods, you have your choice of eighteen salads. If I didn't watch myself, I could have filled up just on the salads, such as potato salad, macaroni salad, plus a host of relishes and many other selections.

You also have your choice of a wide assortment of vegetables.

IF YOU HAVE not been to the Ramada Inn South for awhile, then take my advice and visit the place soon. After a series of managerial changes, Andrew Gabriel has taken over the reins, and he is driving the Ramada Inn South into the winners circle like a sulky driver holding the reins of a speedy pacer.

Andrew comes to the Ramada Inn South with years of experience in many of the top hotels from the eastern resort areas.

He has as his assistant, Jerry Peck, the man actually responsible for the top notch food and service, including the Canoe of Seafood Buffet. Jerry certainly knows his business.

As I said, the best example is the Canoe of Seafood Buffet. You won't find a better dining bargain anywhere Around Town. Make plans now to drift on down to the Ramada Inn South this Friday. It's a wonderful catch.

Skipping

Around Town

Dave Rake's Summerwine is taking this town and The Rodeway Inn by storm. They are receiving standing ovations almost every night.

This is a super group...Mershon Auditorium opens its second year of the "Guitar Series," Saturday, Oct. 20, with the great Spanish flamenco artist, Sabicas. Then Friday, Nov. 30, brings Charlie Byrd and the trio with some mellow jazz styles. On Oct. 24, Mershon opens its 17th Great Artist Series with the Ballet West Dance Company. These are just a few of the excellent presentations by Mershon during the current season.

Take advantage of them, each one is a fine representation of the musical arts...Another top artist coming to town is Errol Garner at the Scot's Inn, beginning Oct. 15...For a very relaxing, entertaining evening, stop into the lounge at the Holiday Inn-North and listen to the Jerry & Nick Duo. The lounge is intimate, and oh so cozy. The music by Jerry & Nick falls into the same category. This is a great spot to dance or talk to that favorite person of yours. They are there Thursday through Saturday...Marco

Was I mistaken! Every item on the buffet was absolutely delicious. Now, that is saying something.

Worthington vs Westerville

DEFENSIVE BACK Don Wolcott (21 in white) had a busy night trying to contain Westerville's Steve Wohler and here, with a little help, hauled Wohler down after a long gain by the Cat QB.

Worthington vs Westerville

PETE RIGHT (11) a tight end defensively in Worthington's 23-21 loss to Westerville, was able to contain Dan Romick (24) here as the speedy Romick was TD bound with only Right in his way.

Worthington vs Westerville

WORTHINGTON DEFENDERS Pete Right (11) and Don Wolcott (21) keyed on Westerville's Steve Wohler all evening and here just contained him enough to keep him from the end zone. Wohler scored on the next play.

Bexley vs Hilliard

RAZZLE-DAZZLE was missing from offensive attacks of Hilliard and Bexley last week but Bexley's speedy John Bernabe made up for it with some fancy running on this play. Bexley won the mid-4 clash.

Walnut Ridge vs Central

MATT GUTTMAN (35) Walnut Ridge's all-state bound fullback, fights his way through Central defenders for a three yard gain in second period action.

Walnut Ridge vs Central

IT MIGHT SEEM like Matt Guttman might with three plays this week of Walnut Ridge's super fullback, but he was the only one to get into camera range. Here, he breaks through the line for an eight yard gain for the Scots. Walnut Ridge's Bob Berdelang (88) throws a key block as left to spring Guttman for additional yardage.

THE HIGH SCHOOL SCENE

Ridge, Eastmoor, Gahanna Loom As HS Front Runners

Spectator SPORTS

BY SANDY SCHWARTZ

Walnut Ridge, and Eastmoor each moved a step closer to its classic City League showdown match as each won City League South contests last week. But Gahanna stood alone atop the Ohio Capital Conference as Whitehall and Worthington couldn't seem to keep the rugged pace.

DeSales and Ready gathered Catholic League victories but CCL cousin St. Charles lost its first contest of the season, a non-leaguer.

Eastmoor converted a bad snap from center on a field goal try to a 27 yard TD pass from intended kicker Raymond Griffin to Rob Hunter. Griffin picked up this mis-snap and raced backwards eluding Marion Franklin defenders only to find relief in Hunter and his waving arms downfield.

Ironically for MF and fortunately for the Warriors this was the game's only score giving Bob Stuart's men a 6-0 victory and a clean 3-0 City League South record.

But Vince Cahill and his Walnut Ridge Scots remained only a half step behind the Warriors as they picked up their second league win without a loss in whomping Central 37-6. Matt Guttman and Terry Logan once again churned the Scot offensive attack giving all indication that the November 2nd, WR-Eastmoor clash will have plenty of weight in deciding who will represent the south side of Broad Street in that coveted CL championship match.

In the other CL south game West blanked Mahan 7-0 via a strong defensive effort. For the second straight week Roosevelt Williams boasted all of the Cowboy offense as he scored the games lone six-pointer on a 13 yard dash from scrimmage and accounted for the extra point with his toe.

IN THE OHIO Capital Conference Gahanna made it three straight by blasting Westland 46-6. Greg Bates tallied three TD's to spark the fire and help mount the 10th straight Lion win.

Westerville got a super performance from its super quarterback Steve Wohler who raced for three scores to stop Worthington 28-21. This loss drops Smokey Wilson and his men from the top rung of the OCC as Mt. Vernon did the same to Whitehall in the running of Rick Robinson.

In the other OCC game Delaware outscored Reynoldsburg 28-14. Reynoldsburg did get a 40 yard scoring strike from strong-armed Mike Cronin.

IN A PAIR of Central Catholic League openers Ready blanked Wehrle 12-0 and DeSales clouted Hartley 25-20. Brian Histrion starred for DeSales with his neat ground work while Mark Disabato delivered Hartley's punch.

Franklin Heights battled Hamilton Township to a 14-14 tie. Gary Jones scored both of the Heights TD's as Ed Lewis' men are still looking for their first Metro League victory. Bexley tapped Hilliard 6-0 in a Mid-Right game thanks to the strong work of two way performer Jeff Edlestein.

In non-league contests around the area Westram routed South 23-14, Cleveland Hawken stopped Academy 14-6 and Hester Catholic tackled St. Charles' win streak 20-7. Chris Bruzese tallied a pair of scores in Waterson's winning effort while a 20 yard strike from Jim Tracy to Marty Kluhn netted St. Charles' only score.

Next Friday's grid slate shows Walnut Ridge at West, and Eastmoor at South in the City League South while Weststone is at East in the north.

A strong week in the Ohio Capital Conference has Westerville at Whitehall, Gahanna at Worthington, Mt. Vernon at Reynoldsburg, and Westland at Delaware. Hartley hosts Wehrle in a Central Catholic League affair.

Grove City is at Bexley in the Mid-Right while Franklin Heights will try to find the winning track as it travels to Dublin in the Metro League. Academy travels to East Knox in the lone Mid-Buckeye contest.

Saturday's menu has Waterson and Ready matched at the Franklin Heights field and Danville and St. Charles tugging at Eastmoor.

Cap's 50th Grid Homecoming Pitted Against Heidelberg

The Ohio Conference football juggernaut of recent seasons has been tiny Heidelberg College, located in northern Ohio in the small town of Tiffin.

Heidelberg ripped through an 11-0 1972 season with nine regular season victories, a 24-0 blanking of Muskingum in the first-ever Ohio Conference championship game, and a 28-16 triumph over Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl opponents Fort Valley (Ga.) State. That made Heidelberg the crown prince of college division football for '72.

And the Riesenmen have not quit there. Already this fall they've whipped Defiance, Otterbein, Muskingum and Marietta. Now they'll come to Columbus Saturday to meet Capital in the Crusaders 50th football homecoming.

It should be a bruising game. Cap is off to a fine start and has shown a surprisingly tough defensive unit. Columbus kids like Dave Toopes (Ready), John Ebron (Mohawk), Denny Bernhardt (Bishop Hartley), Tom Hilt (Northland) and now-injured Bob Suber (Linden-McKinley) have made Cap's defense aggressive.

Capital also has some skilled offensive performers of its own that Crusader followers like to promote. Halfback Craig (Cannon) Snider (Celina) is one of Cap's all-time great backs and tough fullback Gus Brockington (Cleveland Glenville) is another standout. Their running mate at right half is Columbus Eastmoor product Curtis Moore and top-flight end and place kicker Joe Duffy (Waterson) is also a local sidlight.

Action will get underway at Bernlohr Stadium at 1:30 p.m.

Otterbein Plans Homecoming Oct. 13

Otterbein College Homecoming is scheduled October 13 with the theme of the annual parade to be "The Wonderful World of Cartoons."

Parade time is 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 13.

Also on the calendar for the Homecoming festivities are the President's Coffee Hour in the Campus Center Lounge at 9 a.m., sorority and fraternity luncheons and the campus luncheon at noon, the President's Reception at 4 p.m. and an informal dinner at the Campus Center at 8 p.m.

Traditional highlight of the day is the afternoon football game when the Otterbein College Cardinals will meet Marietta at 1:30 p.m. in Memorial Stadium.

Coronation of the 1973 Fall Homecoming Queen and presentation of the "O" Club Award will be at halftime of the football game in addition to the Cardinal Marching Band halftime show.

Members of the Otterbein "O" Club will hold their dinner at 5:30 p.m. in the Campus Center.

Knox Lake

Muskie Fishing

Knox Lake is expected to provide some very good Muskie fishing this fall. Early spring netting by the Division of Wildlife produced one of the best catches of this species on record. Four distinct size classes were caught; 16" to 17", 20 to 24", 27" to 30" and 33".

Scale samples were collected from all of the netted muskies to determine the age-growth and relative success of stockings. The size of the Muskies caught this past spring generally reflect the successful stocking of 1969, 1970, 1971 and 1972.

The muskie population of Knox Lake is expected to increase substantially as a result of the most recent stocking of advanced fingerlings measuring 7 to 11 inches.

Known by many of Ohio's bass fishermen as one of the best, Knox Lake may also soon become known as one of the better Muskie lakes.

Other species present in this scenic 495 acre lake include: Black Crappie found in good numbers of excellent size, fair populations of Bluegill and Bullheads of fair size and good numbers of Channel Catfish of desirable size.

Boat launching facilities, boat rental, concession - tackle shop, picnic tables, tree-lined shores and good fishing make a visit to Knox Lake a memorable one for the whole family.

Waterfowl Clinic

A waterfowl clinic is being held October 13, at the Delaware County Bank, Drive-In Branch on Route 41 at 7 p.m.

The purpose of the clinic is to assist waterfowl hunters in their duck identification. Species and sex identification will be very important this year when Ohio will be under the point system bag limit for the first time.

Personnel of the Division of Wildlife will conduct the clinic and answer questions concerning the upcoming season. There will be no charge and all ages are urged to attend.

Dropped From OCC Tie

Cats Have All The Cards Especially Ace Wohlert

By Bruce Reynolds

THE FINAL score was 26-21, but it could have easily been worse as Worthington dropped a decision to Westerville last Friday night before a capacity crowd at Otterbein Stadium. The loss dropped them from a share of first place in the OCC.

Worthington-Westerville games have always been exciting and this was no exception. Although two big plays in the second half kept the game interesting, the contest was not as close as the score indicated.

The Cards earned only three first downs in the second half, two being credited on touchdown plays. Aside from these two scores, Worthington gained less than 20 net yards in the second half.

THE CARDINALS' biggest nemesis was Wildcat quarterback Steve Wohlert, who scored three touchdowns, narrowly missing two more on punt and interception runbacks. The predicted battle of two all-star running backs, John Madry of the Cards and Westerville's Dan Roush, was basically one-sided.

Spectator SPORTS

Roush rushed for 155 yards to Madry's 54; however, John did break loose on a long pass late in the game.

In the middle of the first quarter, Westerville started their first sustained drive. Roush and a Cardinal face mask penalty brought the ball to the Worthington 14.

On a fourth down, Wohlert, needing only a yard, faked

THE CARDS started to move on their next possession, but stalled at the Westerville 23 as a fourth-down pass to Jeff Teach was two yards short of the needed yardage.

The teams then traded interceptions as Rick Kopf

JERI CHAMBERLAIN

Falcon Queen Crowned

WEST COLUMBUS - During half time ceremonies at the game between Franklin Heights and Hamilton Township, the 1973 Homecoming Queen was announced. Wanda Cline reigned over the festivities, with maid-of-honor Diane D'Elia, and sealer attendant Sandy Neff. Wanda was crowned by 1972 Homecoming Queen Sandy Woods. The '73 Queen was escorted by Jeff Kuhn. Shown here are Sandy Woods crowning Wanda while Jeff watches.

Homecoming Brings Tears Of Joy picked off a Wohlert toss and Phil Harper of Westerville grabbed a deflection off the hands of Tom Atha.

Westerville then moved 38 yards in nine plays to score, with Wohlert burrowing under his center to score from the one-foot line for his second score.

The key play on the march was a fourth-down dive by Roush for an important first down that sustained West SENSE they were about to be involved in a rout, Worthington fought back. Madry broke off the big play, a 25 yard gain, and later a pass interference call moved the ball to the hosts' 12 yard line. Tim Crandall then hit split end Steve Sullivan over the middle for a score. Jay Hansley's kick made it 14-7 at halftime.

Wohlert returned a Crandall punt 43 yards early in the third period, but the drive was halted when Gary Costas recovered Roush's fumble.

Penalties pushed Worthington back inside their five yard line, and they couldn't move out. Two dangerous passes, one on an attempted option by Gary Chambers, were nearly intercepted.

WESTERVILLE had fine field position after the Cardinal punt and scored in just three plays. Again Wohlert got the points after Roush got most of the yardage. So in the middle of the third quarter, the Cards again needed to get back in the action.

Just one minute and 20 seconds later they had done so. Dave Alban broke off tackle and saw nothing but daylight ahead, then outraced the Westerville deep backs in a 63-yard sprint.

The extra-point snap was low and mishandled, and Hansley's kick was short.

WOHLERT now showed his expertise at leading an offense. The Wildcats embarked on a slow seven-minute-half-minute drive to the Cardinal three yard line where they were stopped cold. Worthington took over but soon was faced with fourth and one at their own ten-yard line.

With seven and a half minutes to go, Cardinal mentor Snokey Wion decided not to punt and gambled for the first down, a decision that will be talked about all season. Crandall's pass to Chambers in the flat was low and incomplete and Westerville had the ball back.

ONE MINUTE later, Roush rambled in from three yards out with what proved to be the winning points.

Worthington promptly lost the ball on their next possession as Chambers tried the option but didn't fool Wohlert who intercepted.

THE WILDCATS again attempted to use up some time but ran out of downs with three minutes left.

On the first play, Madry circled out of the backfield and just outran the secondary. Crandall dropped an 86-yard touchdown strike in his arms, and Worthington was back in striking position.

Hansley's onside-kick attempt didn't go ten yards and Westerville had possession at midfield. They couldn't move, punted, and with 52 seconds left, the Cards tried a last-ditch effort. But the offense couldn't pull off another explosion and they ran out of time.

Open Burning Trustee Topic

By Kathy Devaney

New Rome-Opening burning was a major topic of discussion at a regular meeting of the Prairie Township Trustees Wednesday, Oct. 11.

"The Ohio EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) held meetings when it was inconvenient for township trustees (1-7 p.m.) but good for municipal officers, who don't have a problem of enforcement. We were never involved.

"They come to us for enforcement and we don't know what we're enforcing or why," Board Chairman Lester Yerian said.

YERIAN SAID there had not been enough notification of the people or the township and the trustees have not had an opportunity to inform the people.

Member of the board Jack Heister said, "We were handed the regulations at the meeting Tuesday (Oct. 9) without a chance to read them before."

"Studies should have been made to see how the county could get rid of garbage before the regulation was passed," Yerian said.

The board will have a special meeting tonight at 7:30 to discuss what action they can take to inform the people.

BY KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus-"Forty years ago we had plans we fought for for the west side. Ten years later there were new plans. Each time a new group comes into an agency they have terrific ideas.

"We don't believe what you tell us until we actually see results," Elma Booth told representatives of the Mid-Ohio Regional Planning Commission (MORPC) and the United Community Council (UCC) in the second of a series of community involvement meetings at Westgate Recreation Center Oct. 9.

Bill Habig said the MORPC is trying to coordinate community groups and public officers in the identification of problems and in the generation of solutions.

"THE ACTION PLAN we developed is for citizen involvement in the review of roads and highways and transportation improvement. They would be involved through all phases rather than just at public hearings," he said.

Habig said the MORPC regional transportation plan was used by COTA as the basis for their campaign for the COTA levy. "Bus service must be expanded. The downtown is rapidly developing."

After Habig's presentation one man said "By the time the buses get to Grove City and other suburban areas, they will be stumps. The houses won't last 20 years."

"We're wrapped up in present problems and we're not looking ahead 20 years," he said.

Ferne Zetty complained about the surrounding of the Hilltop community with commercial development. "This doesn't seem to be planned."

GENE JACQUES said "Plans run 16 years behind actual development. We didn't want another Morse Rd., but it's happening on 161 and on the west side. "We're amateurs. You can't have citizen input and expect an ideal society to pop up."

Another sign of a lack of planning, Jacques said, was the four lane bridge put on Trabue Rd. when the railroad crossing is the problem.

Habig said the city and county cannot mesh their road plans. The city doesn't have the capital improvement funds to improve roads. The county has what it will do outlined and the two do not coordinate their activities.

Habig also gave general information about housing in the area.

ONE SEVENTH of the population is in the low income bracket and 10 per cent fall below the poverty level.

The peak for single family unit building was 1961. There are now more multi-family unit starts. There are a lot of condominiums, which is a compromise between a home and an apartment.

"There is a need for $21,000 homes and low rent structures. Approximately 15,000 units with rents of $80 are especially needed for the elderly," he said.

For every $500 increase in the price of a home 3,000 people are priced out of the market.

Habig admitted governments aren't expending enough to keep housing up and there is a need for better code enforcement.

A PROGRAM WHICH could help citizens present their viewpoint and have evidence to back them up is Benchmark.

This will give citizens as well as governments statistical data and a measure of attitudes in the various communities which make up the city.

Why is it Called Benchmark?
Just as the surveyor or navigator uses "benchmarks" as reference points for calibrating his instruments, estimating his position and progress, and determining his future course, BENCHMARK is designed to generate "social reference points" - benchmarks available to all segments of the community as they design and chart their own futures.

Modern metropolitan areas suffer - simultaneously and ironically - from an abundance of raw data and from a lack of comprehensive, refined and understandable information that can be used to identify and solve social problems.

In Columbus, as in nearly all other metropolitan areas, no coherent picture exists of the metropolitan community, its neighborhoods and their changing needs and aspirations.

HEALTH DATA ARE collected by health institutions; education information is gathered by schools and boards of education; characteristics of the physical environment by planning agencies; economic data by business and commercial groups.

Rarely is this wealth of information integrated and synthesized so that it becomes understandable or useful to citizens and community decision-makers.

As a consequence major decisions, public and private, are often made without benefit of facts that might allow the community to assess the consequences of alternative policies and programs.

There is, for example presently no simple way to find out how much public and private money flows into the metropolitan area for social services, what that money buys and how effectively community and individual needs are being met.

Nevertheless, business is expected to heed community priorities in its charitable and development decisions; social agencies are expected efficiently to meet public needs; and city, county, regional and state agencies must budget their resources from year to year - all without a clear portrait of what needs have been met, what expectations remain unfulfilled, and what emerging expectations require attention.

A PROTOTYPE of the Benchmark concept will be developed in metropolitan Columbus. Specifically, Benchmark-Columbus will produce a periodic Columbus Area Social Report, based on surveys taken every four months to assess the needs and aspirations of citizens and record their appraisals of progress toward a variety of community goals.

Development of the Social Report, in collaboration with other community groups and agencies, will incorporate relevant information that is already being collected for more specialized purposes.

The Social Report will integrate and synthesize information on social, economic and environmental conditions from surveys, census data, institutional studies and program evaluations. It will respond to the needs of a broad range of community residents - public officials, civic and neighborhood leaders and those with interests in planning the future of the larger metropolitan region.

Benchmark-Columbus is a community program; its policies and programs will be established by the Columbus Community Conference (CCC), a broadly based, voluntary coalition of participants from both public and private sectors.

The primary responsibility of the CCC is to insure that Benchmark remains truly responsive to community needs.

EPA Under Fire By Local Officials

BY KATHY DEVANEY

West Columbus-The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) came under fire from local government, police and fire officials when they held a meeting Oct. 9 to explain the open burning regulation which took effect Sept. 21.

Local officials complained about not being consulted about a regulation they will have to enforce.

During a presentation by a panel of EPA representatives officials were told law enforcement officers and fire inspectors would enforce the new state regulation.

A Columbus police officer said a policeman cannot enforce a regulation, only laws. The officer was told he could be an educable force by explaining the new regulation or he could go through county court and swear out an affidavit of complaint against the person in county court.

A SPOKESMAN for EPA backed down and said only fire officers could enforce the regulation, but when one of the fire inspectors asked how to go about it, he received little support from Carl Jones, chief of the Fire Prevention Bureau.

Jones cited an article of the fire code which said open burning is prohibited except by provision of the Ohio EPA and that it should be enforced by the fire marshal, chief of the fire departments and the fire prevention office.

The procedure to follow was not made clear.

One fire prevention officer said if he told people to stop burning their trash they would just point to a factory nearby belching smoke into the atmosphere.

The EPA spokesman said the EPA would handle the big violators.

"Because we don't have many inspectors, our enforcement strategy will be limited to mostly large commercial operations," Bill Miller of the EPA's office of regulation and enforcement said.

"We can't police 100,000 backyard and curbside burners as we are soliciting the assistance of local authorities," he said.

A REPRESENTATIVE of the Mifflin Township Fire Department said when they get a complaint about open burning they take their ordinance to him and explain it. If the person doesn't comply, he calls the EPA which sends a letter to the person. "But what happens when the first one refuses to comply?"

Bob Alriths of Denison University made a slide presentation designed to be used for educational purposes outlining the problems of open burning and suggesting alternatives.

He said there was an increase in respiratory cases during leaf burning time and that it has been estimated 10 per cent of the population has asthma or hay fever which is aggravated by the smoke.

Lung cancer is related because of population density-with each person contributing to the problem it grows larger.

In what even he admitted was a controversial study, he said in Mt.

Vernon there was a 100 per cent increase in birth defects of those conceived during leaf burning time.

HE ALSO CITED thousands of dollars spent for new paint, irritation caused by the burning of poison ivy and the possible poison hazard of burning plastics, adhesives and dyes.

Alrith suggested composting on a community or individual basis to dispose of vegetable waste and leaves. A guide to the proper way to dispose of organic material is available in a booklet from the EPA.

He suggested ending open burning by an anti-burning ordinance, trash and leaf pick up, composting and recycling.

The following are excerpts from the new regulation governing restricted areas, which applies to this area:

A restricted area means the area within the boundary of a municipal corporation plus a zone extending 1,000 feet beyond the boundaries of the municipality having a population of 1,000 to 10,000 and a zone extending one mile beyond a municipal corporation having a population of 10,000 or more according to the latest federal census.

All other areas are unrestricted, but these areas also have to conform to certain regulations.

Open burning is defined as the burning of any materials wherein air contaminants resulting from combustion are emitted directly into the air without passing through a stack or chimney from an enclosed chamber.

OPEN BURNING without notification or permission of the Ohio EPA is allowed for cooking for human consumption and for heating tar, welding, acetylene torches, highway safety flares and similar occupational needs.

Open burning is allowed for the disposal of leaves and other landscape wastes and for paper products if the municipality, township or other organized government of a restricted area has requested and been granted authorization.

If the governmental units in a restricted area applies for a variance to permit such open burning, it must guarantee that by July 1, 1975 other means of disposing of this waste be found. The unit must show a hardship to its residents.

Hardship is proved if the charge for such disposal service has an annual cost of more than $50 per household.

Prior notification to the EPA is required for forestry, range or wildlife management; prevention or control of disease or pests; and for ceremonial purposes. Ceremonial fires have to be less than five feet by five feet by five feet in dimension and can burn no longer than three hours.

PERMISSION in writing must be obtained from the EPA for disposal of hazardous or toxic materials where the Ohio EPA determines that there is no practical alternate method of disposal; instruction in methods of fire fighting or for research in the control of fire; in emergency or other extraordinary circumstances for any purpose determined to be necessary by the Ohio EPA, and recognized agricultural management purposes to maintain or increase the quantity and quality of agricultural production.

One of the most unusual halloween programs, known as Operation Nightmare, will be conducted Oct. 19 for the teenagers of Columbus and surrounding areas.

After a "hair-raising" sequence of stories, the teens will hear youth speaker Bobby Murr of Louisville, Ky. OPERATION NIGHTMARE is sponsored by some of the area churches and Word of Life Bible Clubs. Word of Life puts on many such programs for the local teens and churches in the United States and Canada.

Painting and drawing classes are being offered this year. Adult classes are Thursday, 7-10 and teen classes are Mondays 7-10. Children's classes are Thursdays: 8, 9, 10 year olds 3:30-4:30 and 11, 12 year olds at 4:30 to 6.

Threats To Free Press

BY ARCH BOOTH

As executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Arch Booth serves as a spokesman for American business. The National Chamber federation represents an underlying membership of more than 5,000,000 business firms, organizations and individuals.

ALTHOUGH I am a columnist of sorts, I do not consider myself a journalist. My function is to represent the institution of business; which I am able to do as a guest in the house of journalism.

The house of journalism is a troubled one today. Many newsmen believe the freedom of the press is under increasing assault, from a variety of directions.

As a houseguest and friend-of-the-family, I'd like to make a few comments.

ANY ATTACK on the free press is a grave threat to our liberties. Freedom of speech is the keystone of our society. Without a free flow of uncensored information even the vote would offer little protection against tyranny, since the voter could not be sure of what he was voting on.

On the other hand, simple criticism of the press - even by public officials - should not be interpreted as a threat. And some newsmen seem automatically to interpret it so. If the press can dish it out, it should also be able to take it.

BESIDES public criticism there are two other things bothering journalists today - with greater justification, I think. The first is whether the courts should be able to force a reporter to reveal information given to him in confidence. The second is whether the government can require a news organization to be "fair."

Reporters have been jailed for refusing to name their sources. Some states have passed "shield" laws to prevent that from happening, and there are bills in Congress to create a federal shield law.

REPORTERS claim that they cannot serve society if citizens are afraid to tip them off to evil doings, which is what will happen - they say - if they can be forced to name their informants.

It's a valid point. Nevertheless, I think shield laws are potentially a greater threat to the press than the consequences of not having them. They are a threat because the government must define that which it singles out for special protection. And if the government can say who is a legitimate reporter, then it can also say who is not.

But it is government attempts to make news coverage "fair" that represent the greatest danger of all, partly because the proclaimed goal sounds so praiseworthy.

BROADCASTERS are presently required by the government to give "fair and balanced" coverage to all sides of controversial issues. Rather than improving the treatment of public issues, that rule has tended to make broadcasters shy away from controversy, for fear of being second-guessed by the Federal Communications Commission.

The broadcasters are regulated because there is not enough frequency "space" in the electronic spectrum for everyone who wants to broadcast. The airwaves are deemed to be public property, which the government does out to those who meet its standards and agree to "serve the public interest." Everyone acknowledges that some form of government regulation is necessary to parcel out the spectrum space, but most broadcasters do not think the government's writ should extend to program content. Neither do I.

And until very recently, no one that I know of even dreamed that the government would try to extend to the print media the same kind of "fairness" rules that are applied to the broadcasters. But that's just what's happened, albeit at the state level.

NOT LONG AGO, the supreme court of Florida upheld a 1913 state law requiring that any paper which attacks the "character" or "official record" of a candidate for office must publish that candidate's reply to its charges.

This law would put the government in the editor's chair. At best, it would inhibit news coverage, as it has with the broadcasters. At worst, it would give the government the means to harass into submission any newspaper that displeased it.

As far as I am concerned, this incredible law is patently unconstitutional, and the sooner that fact is officially confirmed, the better.

NO REASONABLE man believes that the press is always fair. But it is "regulated" by its readers and by the spur of competition. Such regulation is the only kind compatible with the maintenance of a free society.

Golden Age News And Notes

IT'S TWO weeks to Christmas at 906 East Broad Street. November 1, is the date. The occasion, the annual Christmas sale at the Golden Hobby Shop.

The Shop is operated by the Columbus Recreation & Parks Department as an arm of the Council on Aging of Columbus and Franklin County.

All items for sale are handmade by Senior Citizens and are consigned on a percentage basis. Hours are from 10 to 4, Tuesday thru Saturday. There is plenty of parking both front and rear.

Carol Seitz, new Director of the Golden Hobby Shop, is busy assembling her goods and deciding how best to display them.

THE HAIN'T you tried to confine the merchandise to her desk, it wouldn't fit anyway.

It flows all over one side of her office, on the table, under it, creeping out on the floor into the room and even hanging from the overhead lights.

This is the place to get your original ideas for Christmas. In whatever category you are in, short supply: tree ornaments, packaging materials, home decorations, novelty items, and gifts, gifts, gifts.

THE FIVE talent packed rooms will glow with the Christmas spirit for the month of November and December. For the consignees who furnish all the wonderful things there are only two requirements: they must be residents of Franklin County, and all products must have been constructed after the makers reached their 60th year.

One of the main sources of creativity from which the shop draws are the six Senior Citizen Centers operated by the Columbus Recreation and Parks Department.

WHAT THEN will you see there when you make your frequent trips to the Golden Hobby Shop between November 1, and Christmas Day? First of all, of course, are ornaments for the tree.

These come in every form and material from the traditional glass (hand painted) through ceramics to felt and of course beautiful woods. To go along with your Christmas tree there are money trees.

These very clever cuttings were nurtured and brought in by one of the consignees attractively packaged in cellophane. They are selling so fast they can't be kept in stock.

YOUR columnist was struck by the variety of table decorations, one of the most unusual, a foot high Christmas tree made out of pale blue egg cartons, each original egg hollow fluted into an attractive petaled flower with a gleaming jeweled center.

Then there are the fireplace brooms, modeled on the toy brooms.

A man sported a red hat topped the broom handle and the broom itself has a perky red jacket and flared skirt.

DO YOU want to save your money in the New Year? There is a bright red wool shoe enclosing a coffee can for a bank that could help you do it. Baby food jars have been transformed into candy cups for place settings and they are topped by a bright Santa Claus.

Speaking of the Holiday groaning board, table favors come in all varieties, birds in nests, santas perched on snowy blocks of wood, and ceramic reindeer.

In a whole class by themselves are the crocheted and knitted coverings and button lapels.

PUT YOUR front door,

there are elegant wreaths. These are made out of pine cones assembled with the various nuts such as hickory or buckeye and made stable and beautiful with a clear wax spray.

There are also stained glass hangings, bells, stockings, and holly, delicately designed to dress up your windows.

As always there are the long strings of tiny brightly packaged Christmas boxes to hand in a dull spot.

WHEN IT comes to the gifts, you can begin with the packaging. Here you have a wide range of fantastic wrappings, huge made-up bows, and knitted novelties.

For your Christmas letters, there is hand painted stationery and most interesting of all, sets of writing paper with pressed leaves for accents.

The selection in gifts ranges from the traditional knitted sweaters scarves, mittens and slippers to brand new table size white churches concealing music boxes that play Christmas music.

OTHER additions are two hand carved clocks, finger puppets for children (brought in by a retired school teacher) and a new and very nice selection of hand knitted vests for small fry. Come and browse at the Christmas sale of the Golden Hobby Shop, 906 E. Broad Street.

Work For Your Candidates

There is more at stake than usual in local elections this year which makes the "usual good reasons" for your participation more important than ever.

The "usual reasons," of course, are that local officials know your problems best, are in a position to spend your money the most wisely, and should care the most about improving our community. Sending problems (and most of the money to solve them) to Washington or the state capitol in many cases has proved to be an ineffective and expensive way to avoid responsibility for action on local needs.

Now we have federal revenue sharing. Our local officials will be responsible for the prudent spending of the dollars the federal government is returning to our community. The reasoning behind the circular route our money takes from here to the nation's capitol and back is somewhat mind-boggling, but local officials now have a responsibility they cannot slough-off: using federal money to meet essential community needs.

A strong local government is the foundation of our democracy. It is where government can work best to solve problems. And a whole nation need not be burdened when mistakes are made.

Let's make local government more responsible by working to insure the best local government possible.

MAVERICK

Pollution Solution Calls For Action

MANY OF THE badly polluting industries have a hand on the throat of the local citizenry. They say "If we must clean up our sewers and stacks, we will move out and the town will lose the jobs."

Actually, in most cases the violating industry is wearing out the plant and will build a new one anyway. In many cases, the move would not only be prohibitive in cost but would not gain any more freedom to pollute because the laws are federal and apply everywhere.

THE CITIZENS, churches, unions, chambers of commerce and civic clubs of all cities and villages should form a manpower council. Their first job should be to inventory the jobs now available.

If those jobs in a large part, come from a polluting industry, all possible energy should be used to get some non-polluting companies. What is a non-polluting company? It is one that handles intangibles or serves as a promoter or transporter of products made elsewhere. Banking companies, insurance companies, retailing companies and transportation companies all fall in this category.

IN MOST CASES, in order to get the most for your effort, it is advisable to land the home offices of large companies. The headquarters for Borden, Incorporated has been brought to Columbus. They are building a massive high-rise office building on Broad Street. This will employ hundreds of people at all salary levels. Many of the Borden operations throughout the Nation might well be polluting industries (although I know of none).

The fact remains that headquarters do not pollute and do bring many jobs to Columbus. Three whole counties in eastern Ohio are inundated with particulates that is the big provider of jobs.

When Ohio EPA said they had to meet standards, the whole area sent people to a public meeting. High school students were told they couldn't finish school because the tax duplicate would drop.

UNION representatives spoke to save jobs but forgot about the lungs of the workers, chamber of commerce people said the whole eastern half of Ohio would fold.

How nice if they had been concerned about their health and jobs twenty years ago and somehow diversified the industries of the area. Too late? No, but much more difficult now with a deadline hanging over their heads.

LIFELINE SUGGESTION: How diversified is your town's income? What is your chamber of commerce doing to get a non-polluting industry? Give them a push.

Senators, Congressmen Have Local Addresses

Spectator area residents who wish to contact their representatives and congressmen don't have to write to Washington for that purpose.

The four have local offices and mail sent to them locally will let them know it is from this area.

Their addresses are:

U.S. Senator William R. Saxton, 35 Marconi Blvd., Columbus, Ohio 43215.

U.S. Senator Robert Taft Jr., 111 E. State St., Columbus, Ohio 43215.

Congressman Samuel J. Devine, 35 Marconi Blvd., Columbus, Ohio 43215.

Congressman Chalmers F. Wylie, 35 Marconi Blvd., Columbus, Ohio 43215.

Newspaper Advertising: The Foundation For A Free Choice In The Marketplace

By Jack Kaufman
President, Newspaper Advertising Bureau, Inc.

The remarkable thing about newspaper advertising is the way it works. Nobody is forced to read a newspaper, and nobody is forced to read a newspaper ad. But the fact is that nearly everybody does. Indeed, newspaper advertising commands such response that advertisers last year invested $7 billion to insert commercial messages in daily newspapers. This was nearly as much as advertisers put into radio, television and magazines combined.

So the messages must be getting through. And this is happening not merely because they interest and attract the reader, but because the reader goes looking for them. And that is one of the most important points we can make about newspaper advertising. Readers like it, want it, need it, and use it - all of their own free will.

Without advertising, how would the consumer go about exercising his many choices of goods and services in the marketplace? Where would he find them? How would he evaluate them?

Whether the reader uses the newspaper to prepare a shopping list before going to the supermarket or clips the automobile ads before visiting a dealer's showroom, the principle is the same. The newspaper is a market - a free market - where the customer shops before he shops in the store or showroom.

The newspaper is an information package and each individual seeks in it the things that are important to his needs, his interests and his way of life. This includes the information he gets from advertising as well as from the editorial offerings of news and opinion.

We know certain facts about the readership and usage of newspapers and newspaper advertising from our research efforts. Each person who reads the paper, for example, goes through it at his own pace. He looks at it page by page; he eyes each page, and he decides for himself what he wants to read and what he wants to pass by.

The newspaper is a habit so intertwined with our daily lives that those who read it tend to read it every day. Over the course of five weekdays, the average reader reads 4.3 daily newspapers, and spends from 30 to 40 minutes with each paper.

On the typical weekday, more than 100 million Americans read a daily newspaper. And they read the newspaper so thoroughly that the total number of pages they look at, laid end to end, would measure well over a million miles. On the typical weekday, more Americans read a daily newspaper than drink a cup of coffee (80 million) or go to work (77 million) or drive a car (70 million).

Each reader decides for himself how much time and energy he will devote to reading his daily paper. And since the daily newspaper is not free, the reader must decide for himself whether or not to buy it. Last year, readers in the United States and Canada spent $3.1 billion for their daily papers.

The sum of all these statistics is a tribute to the ability of the daily newspaper to serve a broad range of needs and interests for each individual.

We know that readers are continually seeking information from advertising both because of what they tell us and from what we observe about their actions. The same process of inquiry tells us how they seek it.

For example, in experiments involving the use of eye cameras, we have been able to observe how readers exercise their freedom to read or not to read. These experiments found that the eye in scanning the newspaper page had looked at nearly twice as much as the brain could later recall having seen. The forgotten items were evidently scanned and discarded as not being worthy of the reader's attention.

The role of self interest is clearly shown by the fact that real prospects for a product, those who buy it often and find it useful, pleasant and interesting, are twice as likely as other readers to report seeing and looking for ads.

We've had other measures of how readers gravitate toward advertising that interests them. In one of these, some readers received papers with one of the ads missing - just white space where the ad had been. From follow-up questioning it was found that more than three-quarters of the women readers (76 percent) whose papers included a dishware ad recalled seeing it. But less than one-quarter of the women (23 percent) who received papers with this ad omitted could remember the white space.

The freedom to pick and choose, to decide what to read and what to pass over becomes all the more important as individuals face greater and greater demands on their time. More than half of all women in the ages 18 through 64, for example, are now in the labor force. Their multiple roles as wives, mothers, homemakers and workers call for a pace that was not required of previous generations.

And in all walks of life there is a great expansion of activity as interests increase and horizons widen under the stimulus of rising income and higher educational levels. All this leads to a greater dependence on media for the information needed to make intelligent buying decisions.

Meanwhile, there is an information explosion as people demand to know more about the goods they buy and business responds to the need to increase its communications with its customers.

All this increases the value to the reader of the maximal freedom offered him by newspaper advertising: that is - the freedom to read as he pleases so that he can organize his life in accordance with his own needs. Isn't that what freedom of choice is all about?

Bahai's Observe Anniversary

West Columbus--The Bahai's of Franklin Township will observe the anniversary of the birth of the Bahi, the Herald of the Bahai Faith, Saturday, Oct. 20. The observance of this Bahai holy day will be held from evening, Oct. 19 (the Bahai holy day begins at sundown) at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kamran Firoos, 473 Knob Hill, at 7:30 p.m.

45th To Be Celebrated

West Columbus--The Westgate United Methodist Church, at 61 S. Powell Ave., will be celebrating its 45th anniversary and homecoming Oct. 21 at both morning worship at 9:45 a.m. and evening worship at 7 p.m.

The church's first pastor, the Rev. C. D. Osborn (1927-1994), will be speaking at the morning worship, and all former pastors have been invited to share in the evening service.

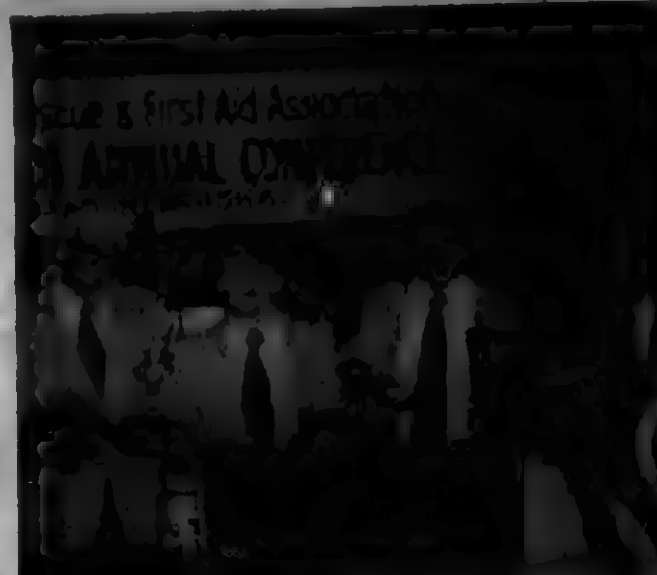

The first service was held at 2836 W. Broad St. Dec. 12, 1927, under the name of Westgate Park Evangelical Church.

There were 32 charter members at the time the present church building was dedicated, of which four are still active.

In 1946, the church merged with the United Brethren to become Westgate Evangelical United Brethren Church; and in 1962, the merger with the Methodist Church gave them the name they presently use.

The church's current membership is 685. Seven pastors and six associate pastors have served the congregation. The Rev. Delbert R. Krumm is the present pastor, having been reassigned at the Annual Conference in June, 1973 to his sixth year.

All members, friends, former members and other interested people are cordially invited to attend the services and the fellowship hour following the evening worship service.

other members of the team. Dan Green, Dan Jewell and Bob Lowry. He takes special note of problems for reference during the exercise. Victim Jodi Welch has both legs immobilized and face covered. The other victim is Greg Welch. He is shown receiving mouth to mouth resuscitation, being moved onto a back board and turned up on his side to aid his breathing. The next competition will be the third Sunday in November in Shadyside, Ohio near Wheeling, W. Va. This year the team has taken third place in two regional competitions, the state competition, as well as the international. (Photos by Kathy Devaney) people, apply for a variance until 1975 and what affect the regulations will have.

IN OTHER action the board decided to return the radar unit used by the deputy sheriff serving the township because it has not worked.

Deputy Glen Goldsberry reported the radar gun had only worked one day since they received it and they have been waiting one month for the salesman to pick it up for repair.

At a special meeting the board reviewed specifications for the improvement of Inah Ave. which will cost $39,235.17. The board will meet with Bre-Kro and the Family Medical Group to discuss their financial responsibility for the improvement.

Also at the special meeting it was decided that the township purchase a cinder spreader from the Gledhill Co. for $996.

In discussing the police levy which will be on the November ballot, Verian said he rode with Deputy Goldsberry one evening.

"IF THERE WERE no calls or accidents to take reports on he could cover the township twice in eight hours. It is physically impossible to get to each street more than once in a normal evening."

There are more than 42 miles of township roads and about an equal amount of county roads, Verian said. "No wonder people say they don't see him often," he said.

Although the levy is on the ballot the trustees are not making definite plans about easies...Rubella...Whooping Cough...Diphtheria...are not diseases from out of the past, they're twentieth century threats to your children.

Have your children been fully immunized against these diseases? If not, or if you don't know, see your doctor or visit your local health department.

how the money would be used until they have it. The levy would provide another man; the trustees would have to decide his hours on duty, Verian said.

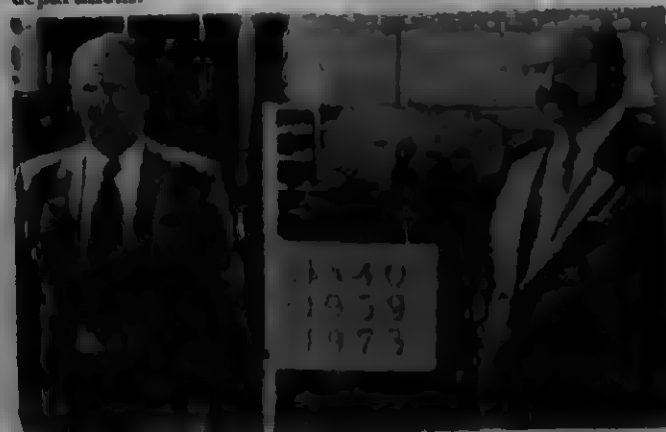

A REQUEST OF an Evergreen Terrace resident to have streets closed for a block party "beggar's night" Oct. 30 was refused because of the precedent not to shut down streets. The Halloween parade request for Lincoln Village North was granted as long as they provide for continued flow of traffic.

Big Pancakes At Westgate Kiwanis

WEST COLUMBUS--Westgate Kiwanis Club members will hold their annual "Pancake Festival" Saturday, Oct. 20, at the Hilltop YMCA, 2570 Valleyview Dr. Pancakes, sausage, orange juice and choice of beverage will be served all day from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. The proceeds from this event will go to support the various community services provided by the club. Displaying the feature value at 1.25 per person are Jack Webb (right) and Charles Carrier. Tickets are available from club members or at the door.

Cornerstone Layed

WEST COLUMBUS--Last Sunday, Oct. 14, following morning worship the Brookshire United Methodist Church laid the cornerstone for their new Education Building and Fellowship Hall. Three dates are engraved on the white marble stone. They are: the Founding Date - 1840; construction of the present Sanctuary - 1960; and 1973 - marking construction of the Education Building and Fellowship Hall. This completes the facilities for worship, fellowship and service. A sealed copper box was placed behind the cornerstone containing many mementoes of the Church's past and present accomplishments.

Hank and Jeanie at Carriage

Hank and Jeanie are currently making plenty of good music as well as pleasing lots of people nightly at the Carriage House.

The Carriage House is a beautiful restaurant and lounge, serving the finest food with the finest service in this area. It's located a few miles south of Scioto Downs. And, adding to all of the excellent surroundings is the Hank and Jeanie Duo.

Heanie sings, and Hank plays piano, plus joining in with Jeanie on some fine vocal harmonies. Let me tell you right now, whatever they do, they do it well.

Jeanie literally tears up a song. Wait until you hear her do such things as, "Stormy Weather." Just great! She sings with a very strong voice. She owns fantastic sounds, along with fabulous control. This perky blonde is certainly a stylist.

Besides being one heck of a singer, Jeanie is loaded with personality. She is Miss ShowBiz, all the way.

Normally, when one person in a duo is so powerful, the other falls behind the boards. Not true in this case. Hank is as entertaining, enjoyable and talented as the other half of the duo. This fellow is a real whiz at the black and whites. You have to hear him play to really appreciate his talents. As I said before, at times Hank joins in on vocal harmony work with Jeanie. He is definitely no such in this department either.

Their musical library runs all the way from the 20's through the 70's. That covers a lot of musical territory, believe me.

The Hank and Jeanie Duo is without a doubt one of the most pleasant twosomes I have heard in a long time. You can hear them also, this week at the Carriage House. Remember, while it is one of the best restaurants Around Town, you can drop in anytime, sip a few of your favorites and listen to Hank and Jeanie. The Carriage House is only about a twenty minute drive from downtown. It is well worth it all.

Colors at Marco Polo

Due to a very last minute change, Marco Polo's Lounge does not have Sterling Silver. Instead, Mark Adams has booked a group by the name of Colors. This is, without a doubt, the biggest misnomer for a group I've heard about in a long time. They have about as much color as the black of night.

Mark Adams has been in business for a little over a year and a half. In this period, Marco Polo's Lounge has booked quite a few of outstanding entertaining outfits. Some of them have been pretty wild. But, all of them have filled the bill.

Mark was informed at 4:30 p.m. on opening night that Sterling Silver could not fulfill their obligation. So, Colors was a very last minute booking for Mark. Which goes to prove that you can't be right all the time.

From a musical standpoint, this quartet can, and does hold their own with most of them. Bob Ochendorf playing guitar and singing harmony does more than an adequate job. The same is true for Mike Kontars at the piano and drums. And, Barry Woods handling bass is right up among them.

These three comprise a pretty strong group. Their music is good, harmony is up to snuff, and they show a rather good degree of showmanship. They keep things moving with good medleys and tight sets moving rapidly from one song to another.

While Halloween is not quite here yet, you sure couldn't tell it by the appearance of the feature singer, who also doubles as drummer. His name is Bob Meadows. This guy I won't forget for a long time. Neither will you. His get up, and his mannerisms are as far out in left field as I have seen in many a moon. Wearing a cardboard type of high hat that looks like a skin from a pinto pony, long, very straggly hair, Bob tries to come on as a real life performer. He just doesn't make it. This fellow tries much too hard to entertain. Doing a so called stand up act, Bob Meadows makes a much better comedian, or better still a freak than a singer.

Yet, when Bob sits down behind the drums, he doesn't do a bad job in either departments. I think Bob has a pretty good voice.

As I told you before, this was a last minute booking. Bob Ochendorf, Mike Kontars and Barry Woods can hold their own. Bob Meadows is a solid drummer. Not bad in the vocal department, either. But, very bad in the department of showmanship.

Yet, he is so different, that you have to go and see him. This is the name of the game.

Next week, Marco Polo's Lounge has booked one of the favorites in Columbus, Autumn Sun and Love. If you have gone Around Town much in the past, I know you have seen them at such places as the Neil House Motel, and other top rated hotels, motels, and lounges in the area. It has been a long time, since Autumn Sun and Love has appeared in Columbus. See them next week, at Marco Polo's.

Waikiki has Food, Decor

Several times in the past I have told you about the Waikiki Restaurant, located in the Imperial House-West Motel. Without a question in my mind, this is the finest Polynesian dining spa in Columbus. Their decor is excellent. The atmosphere is authentic Polynesian, very quiet and intimate. Walking into the Waikiki, is almost like walking into a spot in China, Japan, or Hawaii.

The same can be said for the food. No matter what your preference is, you will find it at this south sea paradise.

I have told you about the Peking Shrimp, which is fresh large shrimp, sauteed with delicate mild pepper hot spices and folded into a secret sauce. Out of this world. Or take their Moo Goo Gai Pan, consisting of breast of chicken, succulent mixture of Chinese vegetables, mushrooms, and broccoli, sauteed in fine imperial spices.

Now, I want you to try their steak dishes. They are not only delicious, but you won't believe the prices. I had the Teriyaki Steak the other evening. Now, here is a prime sirloin steak, with the traditional Japanese recipe sauce that is truly exquisite. Yummy, Yummy, that's for sure. 14.95 is the price. Where else can you find a plain old steak for that price? The meat was very tender.

The Waikiki Restaurant's menu covers a lot of territory. Be it Chinese, Japanese, Polynesian, or American, they have it waiting for you. Anything from duck, to various shrimp dishes, to a variety of steak items. And, above all else, their prices have not changed since they opened about a year ago.

Take my advice, and head to the Waikiki soon. You'll experience a dining experience that you will remember for a long time. One trip makes you want to go back again.

Skipping Around Town

Hold your hat folks, Foster and Ferrell are back in town. This week only at Howard Johnson's on West Broad St. They opened last night, and will close Saturday. Howard Johnson's were lucky in picking them up as they were passing through town on their way south. For all of you who are followers of Foster and Ferrell, you had better make the scene. This will be their last time in Columbus this year, and not until way into 1974. They are still the most dynamic duo in show biz, and are booked way in advance. See you at Howard Johnson's Motel, on West Broad St. this week....The brand new Holiday Inn OSU, had their grand opening last week. A real big bang up affair.

Tapestry is holding forth in the Heritage Lounge, and The Deepoes are providing lots of entertainment in the beautiful University Lounge on the 11th floor of the Holiday Inn-OSU....This has to be a must on your entertainment schedule....Still receiving standing ovations is Dave Rake's Summerwine at the beautiful Rowdway Inn Motel. Just another outstanding group for the Rowdway Inn....This week, the Marriott Inn Motel opens their new addition. There are 60 new rooms, plus a huge banquet room and other facilities for their guests. Their press party promises to be fantastic. More on this next week....My gal, Jo Kiser is back at the Lincoln Lodge.

What a sexy, talented performer. This gal sings up a storm, and plays a handful of piano. Stop in and see her. She does entertain, that's for sure....George Westermeyer III is back at the popular Grog Shop, of Stouffer's University Inn. This guy is terrific, and so is the place he is working. For you younger folks, this has to be a must for you....Don't forget the Seafood Buffet at the Ramada Inn South. You won't find a better, tastier treat in town, and also a better bargain. The price is right and so is the food....Jerry and Nick are still holding forth at the intimate Holiday Inn-North. A duo that plays soft music for easy listening and dancing. Lovers of fine music will dig them and the quiet surroundings of the lounge at the Holiday Inn-North.

"Hello Dolly," continues to play at the Country Dinner Playhouse. Marion Marlowe is the feature in this one. Go see it. Dolly and Marlowe are a good combination....Last, but certainly not least is the luncheon and dinner menu at the Holiday Inn-Reynoldsburg. Great food, and great prices. I recommend it for lunch, Friday night seafood buffet or Saturday night Continental Buffet. You won't be sorry....Get out and enjoy yourself this week. See you Around Town.

This year the true spirit of Christmas can be kept by sending Tiny Tim Christmas cards that help crippled children. They are available from Franklin County Society for Crippled Children.

star drags while spinning or spincasting reels should have smooth drag. Use a reel with a capacity for plenty of line, at least 200 yards.

Any good monofilament or braided trolling line is suitable for landing salmon. Line weight is a matter of choice and skill but 8-10 pound test would be a minimum; 15 lb. test recommended for most anglers.

Lures For Salmon
Silver, blue or bright colored spinners are effective lures, flatfish, spoons, the Heddon Tad-Polly and other lures resembling the shad or alewife. Popular live baits are shad, smelt, alewife, large chubs and golden shiners. Nightcrawlers on a harness are frequently used, particularly in stream fishing. Certain physiological changes take place in the body of adult spawning Coho. Their color changes from silver to dark greenish or black for females and a dark pinkish color for males.

Fishermen, however should not be concerned as the flesh is still good table fare if cleaned and handled properly. Their bodies at this time have begun to soften, so fishermen are urged to take extra care to protect their catch from warmth. It is recommended that they be cleaned immediately and kept on ice until the final processing.

Eastmoor-West Clash Looms As City Clincher

West vs Walnut Ridge

A TOUGH WEST defense put plenty of pressure on Walnut Ridge QB Gary Gioia (10) all night and the Scot QB didn't have much time to hit receivers (or find them). Here comes West end Jerry Dymek (86 in dark jersey) from the backside. A Scot back hoping to delay Dymek is Matt Guttman (36). West-Walnut Ridge photos by Craig Weaver.

West vs Walnut Ridge

STRAIGHT AHEAD went this West offensive play and the ball carrier Roosevelt Williams (at left bottom) heads for a few yards assisted by a gentle shove from a fellow Cowboy.

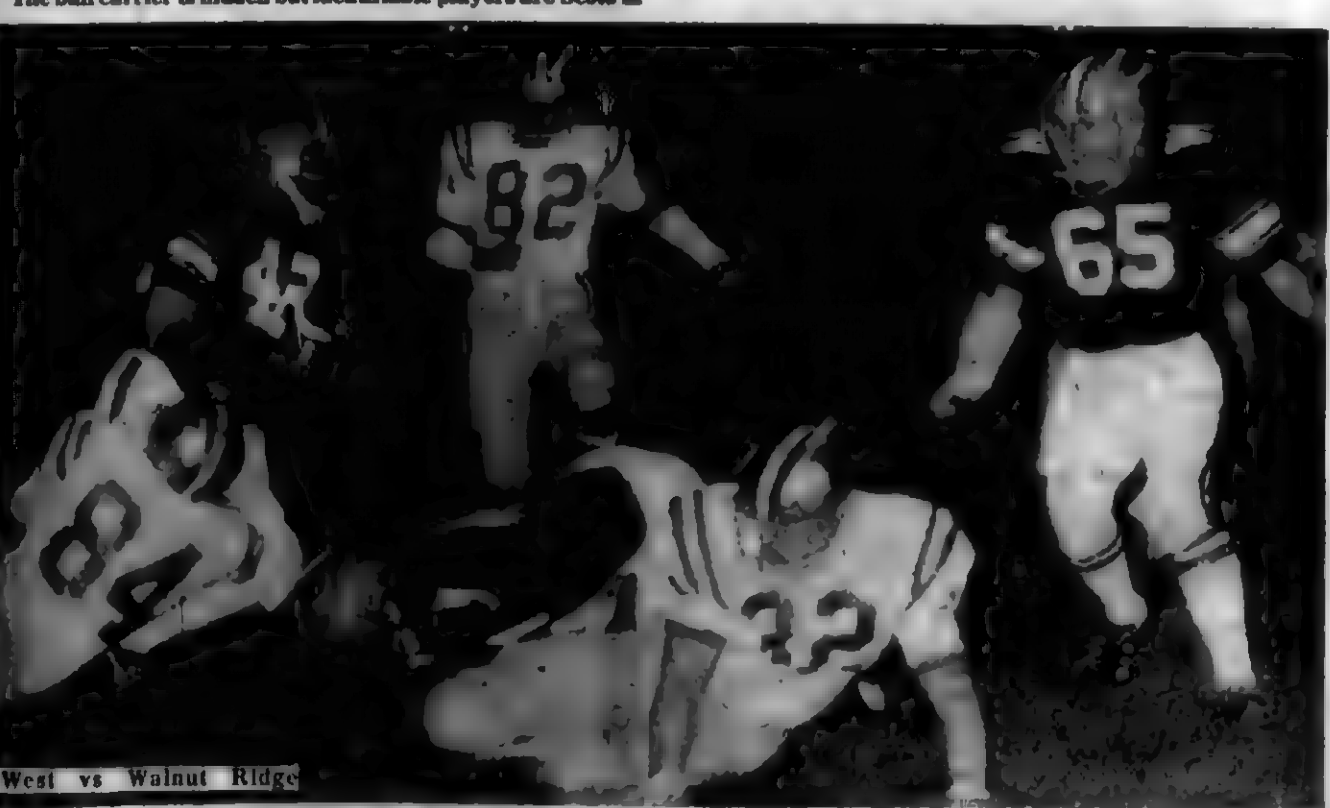

No. 82 for Scots is Carl Turner and West No. 74 is Dave Kaiser.

West vs Walnut Ridge

FOOTBALL PLAYERS are scattered over the gridiron landscape in this complete action shot of West-Walnut Ridge. The ball carrier is hidden but identifiable players are Scots in white, Mike Woodburn (46), Steve Winslow (22) Mark Glenn (25) and Zack Ringmer (21).

West vs Walnut Ridge

EVERYTHING came up "Route" for the West Cowboys in their 10-0 win over Walnut Ridge last Friday and here is Roosevelt Williams (42) picking up a few extra yards in a first period play. Others in the photo are West (in dark jerseys) Ron Copley (86) and Tim Brink (41) on ground and Scots Marty Reid (84), Carl Turner (82) and Steve Winslow (22).

WEST's defensive minded Cowboys and Eastmoor's explosive Warriors clash in Friday's headliner amidst homecoming activities at Eastmoor.

Eastmoor leads the City League South with a 4-0 record with West a step behind at 3-1.

And, West comes fresh from its semi-upset slapping of Walnut Ridge while Eastmoor manhandled South last week. Don Snider a 6'-185 hard hitting linebacker is the hub of this Cowboy defensive unit.

CLASHING head on with the "wall" will be Eastmoor's smooth-striding workhorse Ray Griffin. Griffin, leading the City League in scoring, brings his sly side-stepping moves into this matchup as Central Ohio's premier running back.

"We usually give away size, but our strong point is the reaction that these kids possess," claims an eager West coach Dave Koblenz. Kobe went on to say that the defense has been improving week by week.

KOBLENZ indicated that confidence was another main part of this Cowboy defensive success and named Hap Hall, Snider's co-worker at linebacker as another main clog in that defense.

Others showing steady improvement according to Coach Koblenz are ends Rick Laimhart and Jerry Dymek and tackle Terry Wassmuth.

A fine spectacle this contest should be to view.

IN OTHER City South action Walnut Ridge will try to keep its title hopes alive when it hosts Mohawk and in the North, East will travel to North. Occ action finds Reynoldsburg at Westerville, Westland at Worthington, Delaware at Mt. Vernon and Gahanna traveling to Whitehall.

Franklin Heights will entertain Olentangy in a Metro League tilt while Bexley goes to London for a Mid-Eight scrap.

Saturday's action finds a full CCL slate as the headliner pits DeSales and Watterson at North in the headliner and Hartley and Ready tangle at Franklin Heights.

In Mid-Buckeye action Academy will try to stay on the win line as it takes to the Academy gridiron against Danville at 2 p.m. and St. Charles travels to Cincinnati to face McNichols.

EASTMOOR coupled its smashing of South with a stunning West upset of Walnut Ridge to claim sole possession of first place in grueling City League South action last week.

Gahanna continued its assault on the Ohio Capital Conference by nudging an aroused Worthington eleven and in Metro League action Franklin Heights spilled powerhouse Dublin.

Watterson looks to be in control of the Central Catholic League with its whumping of Ready, complimented by DeSales loss in a non-leagues and Hartley tied Wehrle in its initial CCL outing.

DAVE KOBLENZ'S quick-dealing Cowboy defense stood fast in shutting-out Walnut Ridge 10-0 in the feature last week. West used a key 28 yard field goal late in the second quarter by sophomore sensation Roosevelt Williams to garish all of the necessary offense in this win. Ron Williams added the finishing touch with a 13 yard jog late in the game to add icing to this glorious West High night.

This brings West right back into the CL South title picture as the once beaten Cowboys try to lance the undefeated Warriors of Eastmoor next week.

And Eastmoor looked every bit a first place team should as Bob Stuart's men whacked South 44-0 behind that Ray Griffin power packed offense. Rambling Ray punched out three scored placing him second among Franklin County's leaders in the point parade.

IN THE North version of the CL Linden and Northland each collected wins to shed light on their showdown match next week and East fell to Whetstone 27-12. East did get two picturesque scoring plays in 16 and 35 yard TD ariel-strikes from William Anderson to Phil Dixon.

GAHANNA stands alone atop the OCC with a 4-0 record via a 14-13 squeaker over Worthington. Worthington's upset bid fell short as did a 26 yard field goal try with :30 left in the game.

Smokey Wion's ground game fell inches short in this heart-breaking Worthington loss as Gary Chambers and Dave Alban scored on short runs with the Cards deciding to go for two and the win on an extra-point try with 8:22 remaining in the game. That try failed supplying the final 14-13 tally.

Westerville remained one game behind Gahanna with a 11-0 thrashing of Whitehall. Cool Cat Dan Roush peddled that win with his swift ground work.

IN OTHER OCC action Mt. Vernon dropped Reynoldsburg 35-6 despite another Mike Cronin TD pass and Delaware handled Westland 28-22. Mike Pritchard did give Westland something to cheer about though, an 86 yard kick-off return.

Franklin Heights won a pair of field goals by junior Ron Latham to down pre-season Metro League favorite Dublin 6-0. Bexley dropped two games off of the Mid-Eight pace by its 11-8 failure to Grove City.

Watterson laced Ready 21-0 in CCL action. Dean Dixon figured in all of the Eagle scoring as he threw a pair of TD passes to Scott Brindgardner and Joe Motil and he galloped for another six-pointer. Hartley and Wehrle battled to a 14-14 stand-off, both Hartley scores coming on Mark Disabato to Ed Radcliff tosses.

St. Charles blanked Danville 30-0 in a non-league as Marty Klunk and Dave Heidman registered a pair of TD's each. In another non-leagues Academy chalked up its initial season win with a 20-15 knock of East Knox.

IN SMALL college action Central Ohio's eleven took it on the chin last weekend, Marietta edging Otterbein 13-10 and Heidelberg spoiling Capital's homecoming 30-7.

Penalty-plagued Otterbein suffered its setback at the punch of a TD and two field goals. Cap, meanwhile, found the going rough in losing to the team which owns the nations second longest winning streak.

Mike Colles, Craig Snider, Steve Nole, Jim Pabet, Chuck Izze and Chuck Betts. Of the 21 players, only halfbacks Hobson and Snider did not play their prep football in Columbus or the surrounding area. Both are new residents of the city, however.

Crusader Gridders Hail From Surrounding Areas

Of the 19 Columbus and area products who are continuing their football careers at Capital University this fall, seven were in the starting lineup when the Crusaders opened their season with a 13-7 triumph

Coho and Chinook Salmon Migration

Prized coho and chinook salmon, first stocked in Ohio in 1968, will soon begin their annual migration from Lake Erie to streams where they were stocked, says Dan C. Armbruster, chief of the Department of Natural Resources Division of Wildlife.

Ohio's version of the Pacific salmon run should last from late September through December. Armbruster said the salmon return this year will be comprised of coho stocked in 1972 and chinook stocked in 1970 and 1971.

THE BEST coho run should be on the Huron River where more than 37,500 smolt (young salmon) were released. The Huron river is in Erie County. Smaller coho runs should occur on the Chagrin River in Lake County and Conneaut Creek in Ashtabula County.

October should be the peak fishing month for salmon and the best catches should be in the Chagrin and Huron rivers where more than 300,000 chinook were stocked in those three waterways in 1970 and 1971.

over Marietta College in September.

Senior defenders John Ebron (Mohawk) and Bob Suber (Linden-McKinley) are the greybeards of the group as they enter their third season as regular defensive performers. The 190 pound Ebron is the right end with the defensive unit and the slender Suber handles the right cornerback spot.

Juniors Dave Toopes (Ready) and Tom Hilt (Northland) are also defensive starters. Toopes at an inside linebacker position and Hilt at left cornerback. Hilt also returns punts for the Purple-clad.

A fifth defender, Denny Bernhard (Hartley), would be a regular linebacker but a severe ankle sprain has kept him on the sidelines in the early going.

Offensively, senior Joe Duffy (Watterson) is back for his third regular season at tight end. The 6-1, 190 pounder, according to Coach Gene Slaughter, "is one of our top all-around athletes." Duffy also serves the Capital University Varsity "C" Club as president for 1973-74.

and Joe Schleppl (Eastmoor) at left guard are also starters. Moore gained 64 yards rushing in his varsity debut and Schleppl also doubled as the punter in addition to his interior line duties.

Two service veterans are also among the Columbus contingent. Backup defensive end John Baylin (Reynoldsburg) has continued his grid career following a successful military football stint, as has converted tight end Larry West (East). A 6-3, 215 pound 27-year old, West was a tackle until this fall. Both Baylin and West are juniors.

The remainder of the local corps includes linebacker Dave Mangan (Bexley), guard Bob Hamilton (Northland), halfback Don Althoff (Gahanna Lincoln), halfback Bill Tinskey (Northland), and freshmen Steve Nole (Reynoldsburg), Jim Pabet (Ashville Teays Valley), Jim Pritchard (Ashville Teays Valley), Chuck Izze (South) and Chuck Betts (Grandview).

Nole and Betts are linebackers, Pritchard and Izze are centers, and Pabet is a tackle.

No Smoking Lamp Sign At Riverside

In an effort to respect the rights of both smokers and non-smokers, Riverside Methodist Hospital has put into effect a new smoking policy for patients.

The Hospital's approach is similar to that used by the airlines.

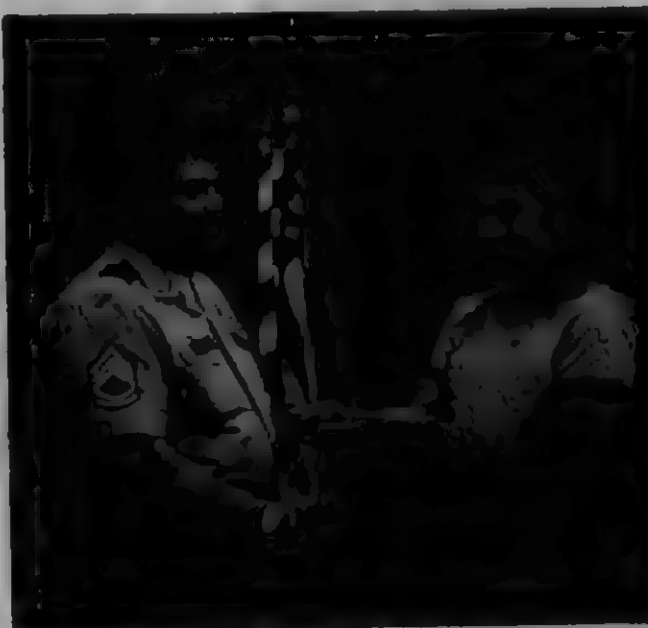

When a patient is called to be notified of admission time, he will be asked to state his preference for either a smoking or a non-smoking room.

Every effort will be made to accommodate the patient's request. In some cases, the availability of beds or medical necessity will take precedence. However, the patient may request a transfer at the earliest opportunity.

The new policy is in response to numerous complaints of present and former patients who feel the Hospital's present room assignment method places them in a position of having to "negotiate for clean air" in their room.

This system is an attempt to prevent the non-smoking patient from having to offer objections to smoking in his room, while still respecting the rights of those who wish to smoke while hospitalized.

The Hospital will continue its visitor smoking restrictions. Visitors are required to confine their smoking to lounges, dining areas and restrooms. Visitor lounges are located on every floor of the Hospital.

Past And Present Queens

WEST COLUMBUS—As part of Central High School's celebration of its 50th anniversary homecoming queens of the past were invited to an assembly, the football game and dance. Central has only had a homecoming queen since 1948. The queens and the years they represented here are (left to right) Charlotte (Susie) Martin, 1951; Janet Williams Blass,

Troubleshooter Speaks To Community Council

West Columbus—The ombudsman's office is the troubleshooter when something goes wrong. We try to unwind the mess so people get their money's worth from government," Nodine Henninger, director of the city ombudsman office said.

Mrs. Henninger has developed a simple procedure for dealing with problems because of her limited staff, which includes herself, a secretary, assistant and volunteers.

"We fill out a card with the information about the person and their complaint. It is logged into a book by time, date, name and subject (such as sanitation). We follow through with the problem and record in a different color ink what we find out; how the problem is handled. Anyone who reads the card knows what has been done," she said.

When asked what size staff she would like Mrs. Henninger said, "an additional two people would allow us to birdog problems to the end and find solutions. I would have a secretary and a researcher to track things down. I can deal with the overall operation of putting it all together."

Elma Booth told Mrs. Henninger she is doing a fine job and the mayor should be glad about that.

Her current budget is $15,230. Since Jan. 15 the office has handled 3,000 cases. She reports to the mayor and city council quarterly.

During her presentation Mrs. Henninger explained where the departments fall in the organizational chart of city government. Under the voter are the mayor, city council, auditor, city attorney, clerk of courts and municipal court.

Under these are the departments of government.
